—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

THE rules of West Point forbid the cadet to have "a horse, dog, wife or mustache."

Cadet Paul Capron, Jr., found he could get along without the horse, dog or mustache. But when he saw Marguerite Gillespie, Cadet Capron decided that the academy rules were too strict.

Miss Gillespie is now Mrs. Capron, and Mr. Capron, no longer at West Point, is looking for a job in Boston. This writer will give him one in New York, temporarily, while he looks for something better.

Ancient Sparta had rules similar, but more severe, for young men. It is wise to bar mustaches, that gather germs. Horses and dogs are not necessary. But why shouldn't a young West Pointer marry if he wants to marry?

Confidence returned, the prices went up from 5 to 20 points, and optimists said, "All the trouble is over." Both were mistaken.

Some little speculators that rejoiced and were exceedingly glad when Mr. Rockefeller said he and his son were buying stocks that were good investments wonder what is the matter with Rockefeller Standard Oil stocks. They apparently have not been bought to any considerable extent, and are still in the doldrums.

England, badly mistaken, says "American stocks will decline to a 'yield level,'" meaning that American stocks that pay $5 in dividends will sell not above $100. Those that pay $10 dividends will sell not above $200.

That is fallacious. Those that know the United States consider present yield for present income and future greater earnings as the basis of real value.

Good stocks are controlled by enormously rich men, who dislike income tax payments. They say to their managers: "Don't pay me big dividends and make me give so much to the Government.

"Re-invest my earnings, buy more good properties, make your company more valuable, then hand me 'stock dividends,' on which I don't have to pay the Government anything."

Don't gamble. But don't believe for one minute that the value of things in America depends on present dividends, or on the rent that real estate happens to pay at the moment. "It hath not yet been shown what we shall be." That applies particularly to dividends.

If you have a steel business, and run it well, you can make money in America with the help of a protective tariff.

Income tax reports of the leading steel companies show that in six years past they have paid income tax on one thousand million dollars of profit.

A billion in six years is good profit, but no more than a great industry should make in a prosperous country.

The benefit of buying at home from your own people, even if you pay a little more, resides in the fact that the money stays here, goes into other American enterprises, more factories, more production, more prosperity.

After hearing about profits of steel companies, solemn Senators yesterday voted to increase the tariff on manganese, which steel companies need, instead of putting it on the free list.

Apparently the Senators think the steel industry too prosperous. They suggest some proud father, observing that his son is fat, and deciding to give him more food.

General Motors, in its report just published, shows that during the first nine months of this year the company's sales surpassed by $77,000,000 sales for the same period in 1928.

The company's surplus in the third quarter of this year increased $30,000,000. The total assets increased more than $100,000,000.

Ford production for October was 177,497 cars and trucks, increase over last year's October of 55,801

Apparently the automobile industry is doing fairly well. But some net profits are smaller.

Uncle Sam, you will be glad to hear, has started a really big dirigible for carrying passengers, and for fighting purposes. A golden rivet, driven by Admiral

VICTIMS DIE AS DYNAMITE BLOWS UP IN TUNNEL

Workers Meet Death When Explosion Occurs on Coldbrook Water Project

Worcester, Nov. 8—Trapped 60 feet beneath the surface, five men were killed today by a premature explosion of dynamite in the Swift River tunnel of the new Metropolitan water system in Coldbrook.

Two other workers escaped death but were badly injured.

The five deaths brought the total to 12 since the project was begun several months ago.

Those killed were:

James Piotti, 40, married, the gang foreman.

Joseph Feletticonna, 38, single.

F. Pompagli, 38, married.

J. Lukes, 38, single.

J. Lorenzo, 38, married.

All the men lived at the laborers' camp in Coldbrook, but are believed to have come originally from Philadelphia.

The injured were Nicholas Lucerili, stepson of Piotti, and Eddie Grudine, 19.

According to Lucerili, who staggered, torn and bleeding, for a mile through the tunnel between shafts 7 and 8 to summon aid, 20 holes had been drilled in the rock end of the tunnel and had been half charged when the blast occurred.

BLAST SPREADS DEATH

It is believed that either a rock or a drill fell on a box of dynamite from which the sticks were being taken.

Walter Custer, another workman in the tunnel, was at the bottom of shaft 7, he said when he heard a blast and then was startled to hear a louder explosion, indicating that the regular blast had set off shed ynamite supply issued to the night gang.

Custer started toward the well end of the tunnel to see what had caused the two blasts so close together.

"Pretty soon," he said, "I saw Nick Lucarelli coming screaming toward me. Nearly all his clothing had been blown off and he was covered with blood.

CLOTHING BLOWN OFF.

"I started to put my hands on him, but he cried out and said: 'Don't touch me. I can't see. 'Keep talking and I can follow you out.'

"I got Nick to the shaft and we were hauled up. Then Peter Brasolo, the boss, and I went down the shaft again and hurried along the tunnel to the well end. The sight there was terrible and anybody could see they were all dead."

So thick were the gaseous fumes from the exploded dynamite that it was necessary to pump in compressed air for half an hour before the unconscious form of Grudine

Mrs. Buckley Admits Trips With Ferris

Mrs. Katherine C. Buckley, beneficiary in the will of Jarvis W. Ferris, Everett ice merchant, whose $230,000 will is being contested by 16 relatives, admitted in Middlesex probate court today that she had been "very friendly" with Ferris after her husband's death and had accompanied him on trips to Canada, Florida and New York.

Mrs. Buckley was bequeathed $10,000 and a yearly income of $2500 by the former president of the Independent Ice Company. She testified she had known Ferris for 16 years, and related how he died in her apartment in Commonwealth ave. on May 23 last from a heart attack.

Questioned by Atty. John F. Daly, counsel for the relatives, witness said Ferris had told her he had no relatives other than Mary Farris, an attorney, and now Mrs. George Edmund Willey of Winchester.

Just before the court recessed Mrs. Ellz P. Foster of Everett, who was bequeathed $20,000 and an annual income of $2000, took the witness stand. She related that Ferris was a good friend and a great help" to her.

The hearing is before Judge George M. Poland and the will is being contested on the ground that Ferris was of unsound mind when h e executed it.

"Cousin" of Coolidge Held in Rum Case

Mrs. Fred A. Wallace of Holliston, who claims to be a third cousin of former President Coolidge, was today arraigned with her husband before United States Commissioner Edwin G. Jenney, charged with unlawful possession of a quart of liquor and of property designed for the manufacture of liquor.

The latter consisted of a 1500-gallon still and 800 gallons of lacquer thinner, containing alcohol.

Both pleaded not guilty and were each held in $5000 bail for hearing next Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace denied ownership of the liquor, still and lacquer and say they knew nothing of the presence of the articles in the barn from which they were taken. They say they received a first payment on the property which was in process of being sold. Mrs. Wallace is a widely known music teacher.

2 ASK RECOUNT IN WALTHAM

Waltham's re-election of Mayor Henry F. Beal by the margin of one vote resulted today in an unusual recount situation.

The defeated candidate, former Mayor Patrick J. Duane, filed with the city clerk petitions for a recount in three wards of the city.

Not sure whether Duane intends to file petitions effecting the remaining five wards, Mayor Beal was forced in his own defense to begin action to secure signatures to a petition for a recount in every ward.

The situation was further complicated by the fact that the time limit for filing recount petitions expires tonight. In consequence, Mayor Beal's supporters were displaying feverish haste.

Duane requested that the boxes containing the votes be removed from the City Hall vault and sealed. This City Clerk Richard Steele refused to do because the candidates had agreed on election night that the votes should not be removed from the vault.

He was agreeable to sealing the vault and this was done with Duane's approval.

Commissioner Eugene Buckley stated following the "no contest" ruling of Referee Johnny Brassil in the seventh round of the Godfrey-Byrne affair that if he had his way neither man would ever again appear in a Massachusetts ring.

DIPLOMATS' RUM SUPPLY SHIELDED BY TWO U. S. DEPARTMENTS

SECRECY ON AMOUNT OF LIQUOR

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 8—A gentle hint that the treasury and state departments are protecting the diplomatic corps against any senatorial inquiry into the diplomatic liquor situation was dropped today by Sen. Howell (R) of Nebraska, as the national capital continued to agitate over prohibition enforcement.

Howell announced that he has been trying for six weeks to get from the two departments a record of diplomatic liquor imports in the last few years.

The Nebraskan said he could get no response from the two departments to his requests for information. He apparently hoped to use the information in a speech replying to President Hoover's demand for specific evidence of dry law violations in the national capital.

ATTACKS IMMUNITY

Howell's personal inquiry, growing out of a speech he made in the Senate last September, seemed to be running into official snags. The Nebraskan has charged that Washington diplomats had no immunity against the prohibition laws.

He further argued that all railroads, steamships and truck companies, engaged in importing embassy liquors, were guilty of dry law violations. That was why he called on the Treasury and state departments for a listof diplomatic liquor imports.

"I am still endeavoring to secure from the state and treasury departments a statement showing the records of common carriers in handling diplomatic liquors," said Howell. "I've been trying to get this information ever since I spoke to the Senate, Sept. 22."

"Have you gotten it?"

TO KEEP ON TRYING

"No, I haven't," replied Howell. "But I'm going to keep on trying."

Senate developments over the "Wall Street boom party" seemed to be awaiting some action by the grand jury.

The lobby committee continued its tariff inquiry and indicated no immediate intent to probe Brookhart's story that Otto J. Kahn and Locomb had sought to influence him in railroad legislation at the Daly dinner. This sort of table talk, it was indicated, did not be characterized as lobbying—and therefore can be ignored by the lobbying investigating committee.

PROFIT-TAKING HITS STOCKS

Stock prices rallied briskly at the opening and then fell back sharply on what appeared to be the sale of support stock purchased yesterday and profit taking by professional traders who were disinclined to stay long of the market over the two-day holiday.

Early gains in the leaders ran from 1 to 10 points, with a few specialties showing larger advances, on buying influenced by the sustained recovery in yesterday's session, and the unexpected-ly large drop of $681,000,000 in federal reserv brokers' loans. The demand quickly tapered off, however, and prices began to recede around the end of the first hour. Many of the early gains being cancelled, and a number converted into losses of 1 to 5 points

Call money renewed unchanged at 6 per cent, with the demand moderate, and time money was in fair supply at the ranie rate for all maturities.

The day's business news was rather colorless in character, although most of the earnings reports published made favorable comparison with a year ago. Rumors of another large increase in the monthly tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation to be made public at noon tomorrow had a stabilizing influence.

U. S. Steel common was again the bell-weather of the market. Opening unchanged at 174½, the stock advanced to 175¾, then broke to 171. Auburn Auto lost most of an initial gain of 31 points.

American Telephone, Sears Roebuck, Johns Manville, General Electric, Radio and several of the other leaders lost their early gains and sold 1 to 5 points lower.

MOSES SCORED BY SENATORS

Washington, Nov. 8 (INS)—Bitter personal quarrels over the tariff broke out afresh in the Senate today when insurgent Republicans from the west took the floor to flay Senator George H. Moses (R.) of New Hampshire, for describing members of the ruling Democrat-Progressive coalition as "sons of wild jackasses."

With Moses presiding as president pro tem., Senators Wheeler (D.) of Montana, Brookhart (R.) of Iowa and Nye (R.) of North Dakota, indulged in personalities in total disregard of the usual rules of senatorial courtesy.

Moses maintained his usual complacency as he was forced to recognize the embattled westerners when they took the floor. He did not deny that he had characterized the coalition as "sons of wild jackasses" at a dinner of New England exporters.

When Senator Wheeler suggested that he might want to explain, Moses said:

"If the Senator can find a more fitting appellation for the gyrated crew who run the Senate, I'll be glad to use it."

The recent statement of Senator Reed (R.) of Penn sylvania, that the Republican insurgents from the Northwest who are fighting the rates in the Haw'.,-Smoot bill "are more dangerous to the country than all the Communists combined" was also discussed during the controversy.

SENATORS ARE ANGRY.

As senators bandied such terms as "silly" and "stupid" in their quarrel, Senator Wheeler suggested that Otto H. Kahn, Wall Street banker, who declined Moses' offer to become treasurer of the Republican senatorial committee, did so because of the "wet dinner" exposed by Senator Brookhart.

"The fact that Kahn declined shows you don't need wet dinners to rise to new levels," said Brookhart.

Senator Heflin (D.) of Alabama suggested that perhaps Moses' complaint that the condition was writing a sectional tariff bill to injure Eastern manufacturers was made on the theory that "the ox knoweth his owner and the ass his master's crib."

"The cat is out of the bag," said Wheeler. "At last the people of the Northwest have wakened up to who has been running the Republican party, why they have decided tariff duties on manufactured articles and want the products of the Northwest on the free list. They know that they have been handed a 'sop' by duties on wheat and other articles, which mean nothing."

CALLED "SPOILED BOY"

Senator Nye (R.) of North Dakota particularly condemned Senator Reed for his declaration that the insurgents were more dangerous than Communists. He read an editorial from the Fargo (N. D.) Forum calling Reed's statement "stupid and selfish" and referring to him as "a spoiled boy."

Declaring the Northwest is united against the tariff bill—both insurgents and regulars—Nye told Moses that "he could get plenty of members for "The Order of Sons of Wild Jackasses" in the Northeast.

"Silence Is Golden" is truly spoken of Classified Want Ads—no noise, but they make a lot of sur—called Results.

Ex-Convict Employed by Tariff Lobby

Washington, Nov. 8 (INS)—An ex-convict has been auditing the books of the Southern Tariff Association and the American Taxpayers' League, which in the year ending September 1 collected more than $250,000 over the country for the purpose of "building up high tariff sentiment," the Senate lobby committee learned this afternoon.

J. A. Arnold, manager of both organizations, on the stand for the sixth day, denied he had known this.

William A. Gillespie, the auditor Senator Caraway (D.) of Arkansas, chairman of the committee, revealed, was convicted of conspiracy in connection with the books of a Baltimore "bucketshop" and served a year in jail.

"Did he skip your books that year or do them in jail?" Caraway asked.

"Oh, Mr. Arnold, wasn't that the reason you employed him?"

"No."

LINKS EDGE WITH LOBBY

Senator Edge (R.) of New Jersey, joined Arnold in efforts to compel southern senators to "trade" support for the tariff bill as a whole for protection on products of their individual states, correspondence between Edge and Arnold, read to the committee by Caraway revealed.

"One thing mighty sure," said an Edge letter, "some of us will resist to the bitter end efforts of senators to be protectionists in votes for products directly affecting their sections and anti-protectionists for other parts of the country. This practice has been entirely too flagrant."

Another letter said the votes of four Democratic senators, Fletcher of Florida, Broussard and Ransdell of Louisiana and Kendrick of Wyoming, were assured but that the votes of "at least two more Democrats," particularly one from Texas, were necessary to pass the tariffft bill.

DENIAL FROM FLORIDA

Arnold testified several days ago that Florida, by act of Legislature, contributed $2000 to the two organizations' campaign to "build up high tariff sentiment."

"The Governor of Florida has just issued a statement that your organization didn't get a cent from the Florida Legislature," Caraway told the witness today. "What have you to say to that?"

"The record will show it," was the reply.

Q.—Then you or the Governor of Florida has told an untruth? A.—I wouldn't say that. I'll check the matter up."

GLASS DEMANDS RESERVE BOARD STOCK CURB

Would Change Law to Compel Banks to Put an End to Gambling Crashes

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—Amendment of the Federal Reserve act to make it mandatory upon the Federal Reserve Board to assert its authority and "to prevent by penalization such disasters in stock gambling operations as have recently disgraced the country" was advocated today by Senator Glass of Virginia, a former Democratic Secretary of the Treasury.

Senator Glass last spring called upon the Federal Reserve Board to dismiss Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank of New York, as a member of the board of directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank on the ground that he had defied the board in offering call money to the market at a critical time in the market operations.

In a letter today to the meeting of the association of member banks of the Boston Federal Reserve District, the Senator wrote:

"If there are men in the financial world, as I think undoubtedly there are, who imagine themselves superior to the existing governmental banking system and who are totally indifferent to the real commercial and industrial interests of the Nation, the sooner such men are restrained and severely disciplined by adequate punishment, the better it will be for the country.

"In my view it is the imperative obligation of the administrators of the Federal Reserve banking system to assert to the limit the powers which the laws confer and, in this way, to assert the dignity of a Federal Reserve banking system which was intended to be supreme within its sphere."

Speaking in his letter of things which need "attention" the Virginian recommended "modifications of the national bank act and the Federal Reserve act so as to make it more mandatory, if possible, upon administrators of the banking laws to prevent by penalization such disasters in stock gambling operations as have recently disgraced the country."

POISONED RUM ALKY SUPPLY DRIED UP

Supply of Holiday Liquor Not Contaminated by Industrial Product

Washington, Nov. 8—Industrial alcohol production and distribution have been placed under such effective control that there will be no poison Thanksgiving and Christmas liquor from that source, Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran declared today.

From two to eight dry agents are on duty at each of the 60 industrial alcohol plants of the country, checking every step of production, while distribution likewise is supervised by experts to prevent diversions to bootleg channels.

Virtually none of the 100,000,000 gallons of denatured alcohol produced during the past year has gotten into bottling channels, Doran said. He explained that the denaturing formulas are so effective today that the bootleggers abandoned industrial alcohol as their principal source of intoxicants and turned to the manufacture of moonshine alcohol out of sugar and other commodities.

That doesn't mean that it will be safe to drink anything distributed by the bootleggers during the holidays, however.

Doran pointed out that occasionally a consignment of bootleg whiskey or gin concocted from wood alcohol, a deadly poison, gets on the market, frequently causing deaths. He also declared that much of the illicitly distilled alcohol and whiskey is poison because of improper methods or haste in manufacture.

Because of the abnormal demand for whiskey, gin and other intoxicating drinks during the holidays there is greater carelessness in production that frequently places poisons on the bootleg market.

Most of the deaths from drinking during the last Christmas holiday season were traced to acute alcoholism rather than to poison.

Half of the total production of alcohol goes to the manufacture of anti-freeze solutions for automobile radiators. Anti-freeze is not healthy as a beverage. The remainder of the output is distributed among about 4000 manufacturers of chemicals, perfumes, tobacco, leather, automobiles and others.

London, Nov. 8 (AP)—Now it can be told:

Philip Snowden was with the British Chancellor of the Exchequer throughout the difficult days of the Hague reparations conference last August.

Even during the worst hours, when it seemed that the British demands would break up the conference, Mrs. Snowden sat at her husband's elbow. They were together at the seashore one day. Mr. Snowden was looking out to sea, anxious and thoughtful, Mrs. Snowden was scribbling on a piece of paper.

After a while she leaned over and handed the paper to her husband. It contained the opening words of Kipling's poem, "If."

Bribery Charge Is Placed on File

Pleading nolo to a charge of attempting to bribe an officer, Edward J. Mordani, Gilbert rd, Belmont, in East Cambridge District Court, was fined $100 for operating under the influence of liquor.

Judge Arthur P. Stone was informed that Mordani was arrested in Belmont on Oct. 27 after the manner in which his machine was operated attracted the attention of a policeman.

When the officer stopped him, Mordani, according to testimony, tendered two $5 bills with the remark, "O, give me a break."

VOLCANO KILLS 300 IN HOMES AND STREETS

Victims of Guatemala Disaster Found Trapped in Rivers of Lava

Guatemala City, Guatemala, Nov. 8 (AP)—Overwhelmed by molten lava, or suffocated by asphyxiating gases, scores of the 300 or more victims of Monday's eruption of Santa Maria volcano have been found in their homes or along the roads near El Palmar, where they perished.

The full story of the disaster has begun reaching Guatemala City through relief workers who had brought aid to the thousands of persons in the affected region. In all, eight coffee plantations were destroyed and most of their inhabitants killed.

The bodies found in ruined homes and along the roads gave mute evidence of the horror that had overtaken the population. Some of the dead had been caught in the flows by the molten stream of lava, while others had been asphyxiated in their barricaded homes.

One of the most tragic spots was a grove of trees where fleeing inhabitants had sought refuge, some of them climbing into the highest branches, only to suffocate and burn.

Advices indicate that approximately 25,000 persons were affected by the disaster, and that more than $1,000,000 damage was caused.

Estimates of the number of dead reach 425.

"The lighter than air ship, 785 feet long, 146 feet high, will carry 6,500,000 cubic feet of helium gas. The Los Angeles carries 2,500,000 cubic feet, the Graf Zeppelin 3,700,000.

This newest, greatest of air giants, built by the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation, will have as part of its equipment five airplanes to fly around it, warding off airplane attacks in war.

Let us hope that will not come. Let us also remember that we shall be much less apt to have it if we keep ourselves ready for it.

Yesterday Douglas Davis flew from New York to Atlanta, Ga., in five hours, a record.

Shortly, New York, Chicago and other cities business men, after the stores and exchanges close on Saturday, will fly south in the winter, landing in time for dinner at the beautiful resorts on the Georgia coast, in time to swim or play golf before dinner.

Japan lets it be known that 825 "Reds" have been arrested, charged with plotting on Japanese soil, including "newly trained Communists from a special school in Moscow."

The Soviet government makes a note of all this. Soma day, in spite of all peace talk, there may be another Russian expedition across Lake Baikall, in the direction of Japan.

And results may be different from last time.

CANCELLING INSURANCE JUSTIFIED

Lynn Window Washer Loses Fight for Renewal of His License

Deaf mutes were ruled off the road today by the decision of Judge Gray in Superior court, who found their lack of faculties was a sufficient hazard as to make valid the cancellation of their automobile liability insurance policies.

The decision was made when Judge Gray declared the Preferred Accident Insurance Company of New York was justified in canceling a policy issued to William H. Hill of Western ave., Lynn, deaf and dumb driver.

Hill, a window washer, was informed his policy had been cancelled after his license had been suspended for 90 days. He had been fined $25 in East Boston District court for operating so as to endanger public safety.

When Hill applied for a renewal of his license, two motor vehicle inspectors certified his ability to handle a car. The policy, nevertheless, was nivalidated by the insurance company.

Hill petitioned to board of appeals to uphold his position. The board, consisting of Harold J. Taylor, Charles F. Lovejoy and Registrar George A. Parker held the cancellation to be unreasonable and improper. The insurance company appealed this decision.

His opinion was asked by Raymond Boudreau of Harvey st., Cambridge, who was charged with keeping and exposing and manufacturing. In a raid at his home 67 gallons of beer were seized. He claimed this did not come within the "intoxicating beverage" category.

When the court was informed that Boudreau was out of work and had seven children to support, Judge Stone placed the case on file and freed Boudreau on payment of $10 costs.

Singing Dog' Takes Man and Son to Court

A dog that would go wild at the sound of a saxaphone, but would "sing" if a piano were played, figured in a case heard today in East Cambridge Court.

David and Frank Friberg of Regent st., Cambridge, father and son respectively, were charged with keeping a barking dog. The complainant was Patrolman William H. Robinson, who lives near the Fribergs and claimed that the dog disturbed the whole neighborhood.

"If a saxophone is played the dog goes wild," testified Robinson, "and if a piano is played the dog sings."

The patrolman further testified that the canine ran afte rautos and "even barks at me."

Both defendants denied that their dog was a nuisance to anyone excep Rtobinson. The court adjudged them guilty, however. The case against the father was filed and the son was fined $5. There was no order issued against the dog.

SEVEN BURNED IN BRAINTREE

Caught in a sudden geyser of flaming oil, seven employes of the Cities Service Oil Co. plant at East Braintree were painfully burned before they could escape the molten mass.

The men were receiving instructions on the operation of a high pressure still they said and were about to remove one of the floor plates when the torrent of oil was blown out and ignited by contact with two wires which passed between the men and the still.

Foreman Ernest C. Turple, of Cotton st., Braintree, was in charge of the work at the time, and received burns.

Joseph Audette, Des Moines ave., Quincy.

Thomas Kane, Rhoda st., Quincy.

Ralph Ellis, Quincy ave., East Braintree.

Randolph Wilkes, East Howard st., Quincy.

Fred Arnold, Keith st., Weymouth.

The oil set fire to the platform the men were working on and it blazed up quickly.

The more seriously burned of the seven at the Quincy City hospital were found to be Kane, Ellis, Horne and Arnold. The other men were allowed to go home after their burns were dressed.

The explosion was caused, according to company officials, when the men started to remove a floor plate of one of the new type stills without making sure that it has been emptied of oil.

OUSTED CADET AND BRIDE HUNT JOBS

With Little Housework to Do, She Sees No Reason Why She Should Not Work

West Newbury, Nov. 8—Mrs. Marguerite Capron, bride of a few days joins her husband, Paul Capron, Jr., whose marriage caused his resignation from West Point, in job hunting.

Product of boarding schools and the drawing rooms of military society, the blonde girl, who eloped with the cadet during the Army-Yale game at New Haven, is eager to get work and prefers a job wherever her husband will locate.

The bride announced her plans as she busied herself in the kitchen of their honeymoon house here.

"I've got to go to work," she declared. "We are facing the facts. We are facing life together. We have to have work. And if he must work, I see no reason why I should not.

LIKES TO WRITE

"Neither of us has any special talents. Neither of us has any experience of a practical sort. He wants to be a newspaper reporter, and I want to write, too, so I want to work—if it's possible—where he does.

"Of course, we don't expect to have anything handed to us. We know we'll have to try hard. And it may be I'll have to change my plans, and do secretarial work. And if that's what happens, then I'm ready and anxious to try whatever offers."

TELLS OF ROMANCE

The story of the neatly executed "elopement," the boldness of which caused much surprise in army circles, was simply explained by the bride.

"We met at a cadet 'hop' last Fourth of July, and we fell in love right away," the bride said. "We didn't decide right away to get married, but a few weeks ago we started to make plans.

"My folks were going up by automobile to the game at New Haven. I simply asked their permission to go on the train with the cadets. And Paul got dinner permission, which gave him an hour and a half time off before the game.

"We've done it because we are in love. Now we're going to work. Paul has given up a military career. He's going to get a job. What I'm going to get a job and help him. We're very happy."

A report from West Point stated that when Capron married the colonel's daughter he found the "good and sufficient" reason he had been seeking for some time to resign from the military academy.

Cadet Capron, according to friends, long had disliked army life and wished to resign from the academy, but each time had been dissuaded by his future father-in-law on various grounds.

Postoffice Auctions 900 Unclaimed Magazines

For the first time in Boston postoffice history, unclaimed magazines from the dead letter mail office were auctioned off today instead of being sold for waste paper.

About 900 magazines of current issue were sold in bundles of six or seven, at an average price of 20 or 25 cents. A crowd of about 100 men and women stood for an hour this noon in Young's Hotel, temporary postoffice quarters.

Formerly the publications for which no claimant could be found, were sold for about 45 cents per hundred pounds. Now, however, the net profit to the government is about $4.78 for the same quantity at auction prices.

The inquiry of an employment agency manager as to why John Fitton, 55, did not report for work today led to the discovery of the latter, his wife, Martha, 50, and his brother Joseph Fitton, 54. The three were found lying unconscious on the kitchen floor. The house was filled with fumes. Unpacked furniture was scattered about the apartment.

Fitton, his wife and brother were all removed to the City Hospital. Their names are on the danger list.

The plane was flying upside down and the fellow dazed Goebel. For a few seconds the ship wobuled crazily while a crowd below gasped. Then the pilot's senses returned and he brought the plane to earth safely. A gash on his head was dressed and he went up again to entertain the crowd.

WARD BAKING CO.

KIDNAPED, THEN FORCED INTO BLACKMAIL

Tecumseh, Okla., Nov. 8 (AP)—A hair-raising story of extortion, abduction and threats of death made by "Chicago gangsters," told by Arthur L. Fauble, Shawnee wholesale merchant, when he reappeared after being missing 24 hours, entered the jurisdiction of criminal authorities today as the result of a sanity commission verdict that Fauble is mentally sound.

Ten charges of extortion were immediately filed against him. He did not furnish bond of $10,000.

The merchant's own story of his disappearance and contacts with a band of extortionists led to suspicion of his sanity and then to filing of the charges.

Fauble told officers he had been "in the power of gangsters" for several months. They forced him, he said, to purchase a typewriter on which numerous threatening notes were written to a half dozen capitalists of the region, and aid them in numerous ways to carry out their "plot."

About three weeks ago, Fauble said, the "gangsters" forced him to drive to Wichita, Kas., tossing the typewriter and part of Fauble's records by the roadside as they went. After keeping him a prisoner in Wichita for a day, he said, he was taken to the Arkansas river, forced to leap from a bridge and "given a chance" for his life as he fled in the darkness amid a volley fired by the "gangsters."

At the opening of his sanity hearing several days ago, Fauble's counsel introduced witnesses who said they had seen him in a restaurant on the road to Wichita on the night he said he was kidnaped, the defense will base its case on Fauble's story, his attorney indicated, contending that Fauble was forced to play his part in the alleged plot through fear of death at the hands of the "gangsters."

VOTE BACKS UP M'DONALD ON INDIA

London, Nov. 8—Prime Minister MacDonald's Labor Government has weathered its third storm within a week in the House of Commons.

After many hours' debate the Commons voted withdrawal of a Conservative motion questioning the recent declaration of Lord Irwin, viceroy, on eventual attainment of Dominion status for India.

Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, told how he had agreed to Lord Irwin's declaration but later withdrew his approval.

The stand of Sir John Simon, a prominent Liberal, surprised many. He urged that the commission be allowed to continue its work, undisturbed by political controversy.

Criticism by David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, was particularly severe, and Capt. Wedgewood Benn, secretary of State for India, said he hoped India would realize Lloyd George represented only a handful of members of the House of Commons.

B. & M. TO HOLD SAME POLICY

A desire to carry out the policies of the late President Hannauer of the B. & M., was expressed by the new president, Thomas Nelson Perkins, former chairman of the board of directors of the road, and two days ago elected to succeed Hannauer.

"We will strive to give New England the best possible service, on both freight and passenger ends," he said. "We also hope that industrial New England will cooperate with our plans for our big enlargement program."

He then discussed the new North Station and land filling in developments which he stated would be finished by 1930.

NOVEMBER CHARGE PURCHASES PAYABLE IN JANUARY, 1930

CHARGES FRAUD IN NOVA SCOTIA LIQUOR VOTE

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 8 (AP)—Irregularities in the recent liquor plebiscite, in which Nova Scotia voted for government control, were charged today by the Rev. W. D. Wilson, president of the Halifax city and county plebiscite committee.

"We understand that appropriate steps will be taken in the matter as soon as the Assembly meets," he said.

"It would be improper for us to anticipate the action of our representatives, on whom it naturally devolves to rescue the good name of our city and our province. We are confronted with a challenge to our Democratic institutions."

Sells Ancient "Book of Kings" for $13,000

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—A volume that brought only $3000 in London several years ago was sold at auction here for $13,000. It was a first edition in Holland's "Basiliologia: a Book of Kings," published in 1618 and known as the Sir Thomas Hrooks copy.

The buyer was Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach. It was a n item in the library of the late John C. Williams of Morristown, N. J., which to date has brought $51,375 at auction.

GIRL, 20, SUES GODFATHER FOR $200,000

Chicago, Nov. 8 (INS)—Miss Eileen Bowen, 20, was christened in the arms of Michael Conroy nearly two decades ago; today she is suing her godfather, now 45 years old, for $200,000 in a breach of promise suit.

According to the suit, Conroy left his fiancee waiting at the church altar this fall and sent a note of apology saying that he had to help his sister clean house.

At the christening nearly 20 years ago, Conroy, according to the girl's relatives, cradled the infant carefully in his arms and joked about waiting until the girl grew up to marry her.

Synod Asks for Textile Board

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 8 (AP)—The synod of the Province of Sewanee, Episcopal Church, voted to petition Congress to authorize President Hoover to appoint a commission to study the textile industry, both north and south, at the earliest date and that the result be published by the government.

The action followed an address by Spencer Miller, Jr., consultant of the national council of the Episcopal Church on industrial questions.

OTHER NATIONS RESPECT U. S. TRADE MARKS

Washington, Nov. 8—Most foreign nations have a greater respect for an established trade mark than has the American public, Donald J. Moore, president of the New England Export Club, told the Chamber of Commerce of the United States today.

The occasion was a luncheon given to the Boston club by the national organization.

"That general statement should not be considered as meaning that your product will sell itself abroad merely because it has been sold," Moore said.

A study of foreign markets and instruction of foreign representatives in the manner of selling American goods should be the one major consideration of export managers during the next year or two, he added.

Business men are studying more closely than ever the possibilities of foreign trade promotion, and the selection of his foreign personnel is one of the greatest problems of the American manufacturer, said Moore.

Girl Auto Racer Escapes Jail Term

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP)—Joan La Coste, automobile race driver from Memphis, Tenn., convicted of attempted robbery, today was placed on probation for one year. She had faced a jail sentence of from one to fourteen years.

At the close of a dramatic trial, a jury found her guilty of entering the hotel apartment of Mrs. Rebecca Robbs early in October with intent to rob.

Credit for Victory Given American

Publisher, Boston Evening American:

THE overwhelming vote cast in favor of our bill to abolish the Schoolhouse Commission is a tremendous satisfaction to us all. The editorials in the Boston Evening American, both this time and also last spring, were of tremendous effect. Thank you for all you have done.

Sincerely yours,

BERLIN MAYOR TO RESIGN

Berlin, Nov. 8 (INS)—All newspapers of this city, regardless of political affiliations, joined today in predicting that Mayor Gustav Boess would probably resign following the culmination of the disciplinary trial which he demanded against himself.

A fist fight between Socialist and Communist representatives in the city council broke up the meeting of that body before an imminent vote of censure on the mayor could be taken.

His honor now appears to have been forsaken by all but the Democrats and Socialists.

VATICAN RAPS WALL STREET

Vatican City, Nov. 8—Osservatore Romano, the official organ of the Vatican, took cognizance of the market disturbance in Wall Street in an article which severely criticized the materialism of Wall Street and condemned the "market vampires and exploiters" who operate there.

The New York Stock Exchange, Osservatore said, has dimmed the fame of Monte Carlo, which is now a "microscopic entity" compared to Wall Street, to which the "fatal roulette" has moved.

To Use Gold-Headed Cane if Rutgers Wins

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 8—John M. Thomas, president of Rutgers University, is having a gold-headed cane polished, expecting to take it to church Sunday.

If Lafayette beats Rutgers at football tomorrow the cane will be returned to the place it has been since 1926, when Mr. Thomas said he would not wear it until Rutgers won.

U. S. REPLIES TO SECOND NOTE FROM CHINA

Shanghai, Nov. 8 (AP)—Foreign Minister C. T. Wang today confirmed reports that the Nationalist government had received replies from the United States, Great Britain, France and the Netherlands to its second note regarding the abolition of extra-territoriality in China.

Wang said the Washington note expressed the willingness of the American government to discuss the question, "Looking Toward Immediate Abolition." He asserted he expected conversations between the Washington and Nanking governments to open soon.

The Foreign Minister said the question would be taken up separately with the various nations concerned and reiterated that the Nationalist government is announced intention of achieving abolition of extra-territorial rights by January 1, was "unchanged."

Denmark Bars Trotzky

Copenhagen, Nov. 8 (INS)—Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian Bolshevist leader now sojourning in Turkey, will find no haven in Denmark. The Danish government has formally rejected his application to reside here.

LEAPS TO DEATH OFF BROOKLYN BRIDGE

New York, Nov. 8 (INS)—An unidentified youth committed suicide today by jumping from the famous Brooklyn bridge. When he landed in the East river, 152 feet, he fought off the crew of a tugboat who tried to rescue him. Then he sank.

Eugene Venritte, taxicab driver, was driving his cab across the bridge when he saw the youth crawl through the steel girders and the rail which guards the roadway on the south side of the bridge. Venritte stopped his car, jumped out and ran, shouting, toward the young man.

The youth saw him coming and leaped.

Venritte saw the man's body hit the water. He was not killed immediately but floated. The crew of a tugboat close by steamed up and attempted to pull him to safety with boathooks. He fought all their efforts. Then he disappeared beneath the surface of the river.

A light gray overcoat was found on the bridge. It contained nine cents in change and a white metal watch and chain.

'SHOOTS IT OUT' TO DEATH

Shawnee, Okla., Nov. 8 (AP)—Determination of an alleged bank robber to "shoot it out" rather than face a possible death sentence in court had resulted today in his own death and that of one of two officers with whom he waged a short but bloody gun battle.

When four officers surrounded a house near Tarjo, Okla., where Owen Edwards, 25yr suspect, was reported hiding, James A. Kinney, 32 yr-old assistant chief of police, entered the house and ordered the fugitive to put up his hands. Edwards replied with bullets and Kinney fell, mortally wounded. Claude Tyler, state officer, fired from a doorway behind Kinney and Edwards dropped and died almost immediately.

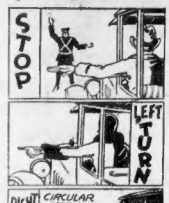
Turns and Stops Must Be Indicated by Signals



Section 7 (a) "The driver of any vehicle before starting, stopping or turning from a direct line shall first see that such movement can be made in safety, and if any pedestrian may be affected by such movement, shall give a clearly audible signal by sounding the horn, and whenever the operation of any other vehicle may be affected by such movement, shall give a signal as required in this section, plainly visible to the driver of such other vehicle, of the intention to make such movement.

(b) The signal herein required shall be given a sufficient time in advance of the movement indicated to give ample warning to any persons who may be affected by said movement, and shall be given either by means of the hand and arm in the manner herein specified, or by a suitable mechanical device, except that when a vehicle is so constructed or loaded as to prevent the hand and arm signal from being made or from being visible both to the front and rear, the signal shall be given by a suitable device.

(c) Hand and arm signals, as required herein, shall be made as follows:

(1) An intention to stop shall be indicated by extending the arm horizontally to the left of and beyond the side of the vehicle.

(3) An intention to turn to the right shall be indicated by extending the arm horizontally to the left of and beyond the side of the vehicle, and by moving the hand in a circle.

BY DR. MILLER McCLINTOCK
Traffic Expert, Department of Public Works.

Certain customary hand signals have been used in Massachusetts for many years, but have never been defined or required by law. Where the hand signal is used this section describes the required method. The rule not only makes it necessary to give a hand signal under conditions described but also makes it an offense for failure to give hand signals in accordance with the method set forth.

Dr. McClintock will comment daily on the new highway rules in the columns of the Boston Evening American.

Hotel Guests Are Routed by Blaze

Havre De Grace, Md., Nov. 8 (AP)—An early morning fire in the Bayou Hotel today drove out more than 30 guests and employes, many of them here for the duck hunting season on upper Chesapeake Bay.

The third and fourth floors of the hotel were wrecked and damage was done to the lower floors of the hotel before combined efforts of Havre De Grace, Perryville, Aberdeen and Belair fire departments check the flames.

Girl's $75,000 Thaw Verdict Made $25,000

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—The $75,000 verdict awarded by a jury to Marcia Estardus, night club hostess, in her $100,000 suit for mistreatment against Harry K. Thaw was reduced today to $25,000 by Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy.

The verdict was returned two weeks ago after second trial of the case in which the girl charged that Thaw had bitten her and paddled her with a hairbrush at a New Year's Day party in his apartment in 1927.

TWO ARE FREED IN GASTONIA KILLING

Gastonia, N. C., Nov. 8 (AP)—Judge P. A. McElroy's inquiry into the slaying of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins came to an abrupt close today when the prosecution closed its case and the defense announced it would offer no evidence.

Roy Carver and Howard West, two of the 16 defendants charged with murder in connection with the death, were released for lack of evidence.

The 14 others held in the case were ordered placed under bond for their appearance before the grand jury at the January term of superior court. Judge McElroy fixed bond for all those held at $2500 each, except Horace Wheeler, whose bond was set at $5000.

Those held were: Horace Wheeler, Jack Carver, W. M. Borders, Troy Jones, Fred T. Morrow, E. F. Haynie, L. M. Sossoman, Lowrey Davis, O. H. Lunsford, Theodore Simms, George Fowler, M. H. Holbrook, L. H. Thompson and Yates Gamble.

Judge McElroy said there was very little evidence against "one or two" of those held, but that in view of the conspiracy charge against them he thought they should be held for the grand jury.

Thaw Pleads $75,000 Verdict Is Excessive

New York, Nov. 8 (INS) Harry K. Thaw, Pittsburgh millionaire, with his attorney, was to appear before Supreme Court Justice Levy here today in an attempt to have the $75,000 verdict awarded Marcia Estardus, Broadway actress, set aside as excessive.

CALLS WILLARD HOTEL MAN IN 'BOOZE PARTY'

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—Frank S. Hight, manager of the Willard Hotel, where the dinner referred to by Senator Brookhart as the "Wall Street booze party" took place in December, 1926, has been requested by Dist. Atty. Rover to appear Monday before the grand jury.

Rover said he had requested Hight to bring him all hotel records relating to the dinner about which Senator Brookhart, who attended, testified before the grand jury this week.

Hight is the second person connected with the dinner, given by Walter Fahy, New York broker, for new members of the Senate, who has been requested to testify before the Grand Jury. Edward E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, was asked by Rover to appear Monday and has accepted the invitation.

Senator Brookhart said on the floor of the Senate that he saw Loomis pour some "alcoholic stuff" from a flask and drink it.

Otto Kahn, New York financier, was also present at the dinner, but Rover has not indicated that he would be asked to testify.

BANKS LOCATES NEW FIELD IN SAXONVILLE

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

After having his field in Framingham washed out by the State supervisor of aviation, Robert L. O'Brien, Harland F. Banks looked around and found himself a field in Saxonville, two miles from the center of Framingham, in which to hold his two-day aerial whoopee party Sunday and Monday.

The discovery of this field was a godsend for Harland and Billie Leonard, for it meant that the two days of spectacular flying would not be denied the residents or surrounding towns of Framingham and that George H. Watkins, chief pilot of Massachusetts Airways, of Springfield would not have to cancel his appearance in another Argo sportplane.

And both boys are going to be there, both Billie and George. In addition to these two boys flying Argos, there are two others who will also be on deck to thrill the spectators. One will be Bill Harmon of South Dartmouth, and another a chap from Charlestown, R. I. whose name had slipped Banks' memory when we were talking with him.

At any rate, there will be four Argos on the field on Concord st., Saxonville, which field is owned by the Roxbury Carpet Company, Sunday noon.

Add those to four or five other stunt ships, and what have you got? You'll have to figure it out for yourself when you see the all-stunt, all-race, all-event air meet that Banks has arranged. A complete program of events will be published here tomorrow.

FINDS THINGS CHANGED

After an absence of many months, Lou "Slim" Gordon, mechanic of the tri-motor Fokker Friendship, which conquered the Atlantic with the late Bill "Dusty" Stultz at the controls, and Amelia Earhart as passenger, returned to the Boston airport to pay a short visit with the boys.

The first words uttered by "Slim" were: "When I got here, I didn't know whether to come in or turn around and go back. The place has changed so that if the old Boston Airport Corp. hangar wasn't out there, I wouldn't know it was the Boston airport where Bill and I prepared for the transatlantic hop."

It goes without saying that the only remaining members of the gang who were over there when the "Friendship" was being set up on pontoons, received "Slim" with open arms. While Gordon only had a few minutes for a reunion, several of these minutes were spent as all reunions among the flying personnel all over the world are spent. And when we saw the last of "Slim" he was telling us to keep our nose down, and to look out for trees.

FLIES IN CHICAGO

Gordon has spent the past year or so touring South America, and after he returned to New York, there was a Sikorsky to be delivered to the Public Service Company of Chicago. Al Caperton was going to fly the job out to the gun town, and Gordon was given the job of accompanying the ship and seeing that the Wasp engines behaved themselves. When the two boys arrived in the Windy City they were immediately asked if they wouldn't like to stay there. Several things cropped up which made them like the company more and more, and now "Slim" may be found flying the "Sick Horsky" for that outfit.

His wife, the former Amy Bruce of Brookline, being in this neck of the woods, Lou came on to collect her and his car, and start back for the Cubs village, and get a home of their own under way.

The first fellow Slim met on the airport over on Jefferies' Point was Danny Duggan, and after saying hello in the most approved fashion, Danny brought him down to Bay State Flying Service, where the independent gang hangs out. Upon the entrance of Slim, bedlam broke loose, and it was minutes before the handshaking and hellos were out of the way so that a little sane conversation could go on.

Gordon divulged the information that he was never so happy with an outfit as he was with the boys out in Chicago, and that he intended to stay with them from now on.

In New York, several weeks ago, Lou met Burr Leyson, who formerly flew off the Boston Airport, and who was Charlie Jeffries' pilot of the Brixton Bulldog, which ship we described in our column last Saturday. Leyson, so Gordon said, had been flying Charlie Levine's Triad amphibian around for Levine and that everything was going smoothly.

After a long period of gossip, A. D. Ross, senior officer in charge of the weather bureau station at the airport, came in, and another period of hellos was in order.

All in all, "Slim's" appearance was the signal for a general confab and Duggan could be heard bewailing the fact that Lou couldn't be on hand a week or more hence when the next airport party is held in the Elks Hotel.

"DOC" MARTIN BACK

A complete summer on Martha's Vineyard, spent trying to keep the resident students of the Curtiss-Wright flying school in food and other things, has failed to decrease the avoirdupois of H. E. "Doc" Martin, if appearances mean anything. "Doc," he really isn't a doc, but he has been christened that by the boys, returned to the airport here to keep track of the resident students who have been moved up here from the Vineyard for the winter.

Last Call for Suit in Court 29 Times

New York, Nov. 8 (INS)—Vera "Kittens" Leightmer, whose $150,000 suit against Jefferson Seligman, international banker, has been called in supreme court 29 times, must submit to a doctor's examination today and if in good health, her suit will be thrown out.

In a private sanitarium and declaring she was in a "highly nervous state," Miss Leightmer requested that the case be advanced to December. Her request was denied.

TEACHER HELPS TRAP ESCAPED CONVICTS

Belfast, Me., Nov. 8 -The courage and wit of a girl school principal was responsible for the capture of the two escaped convicts, one a convicted murderer and the other a bandit, who fled the Thomaston State prison while working in the piggery as trusties.

Miss Lena K. Sargent, commercial school principal, was riding [illegible] on the Atlantic highway when she was accosted and ordered to stop by the two fugitives Allen A. Twitchell, a life termer for murder, and Herman Cronkite, under sentence for a robbery.

With the utmost courage and coolness, Miss Sargent stepped on the gas and almost ran the pair down in the road as she sped by them. Realizing that they might be the widely-sought fugitives, she continued at a fast clip into Belfast, where she notified Deputy Sheriff Frank H. Cooper and state police. A posse was immediately organized and located the men [illegible] a mile on the Searsport highway, still attired in their prison garb.

Twitchell was convicted in 1923 of the murder of a Polish woodsman and sentenced for life. Cronkite was serving a six-year term for assault and robbery by violence. He was eligible to parole next year.

Railroad Progress Aids Prosperity

St. Albans, Vt., Nov. 8—No business can be called successful unless it keeps constantly going forward, and the railroads are living up to this standard in a manner unsurpassed by other industries, holds Judge J. W. Redmond, one of the receivers of the Central Vermont Railway Co., in a public statement here today.

"The progressiveness is a guaranty to the public that with its continued support and co-operation the railroads can be relied upon to do their vital part in insuring the country's progress," says Judge Redmond.

Search for Salem Man in Holdups

Lawrence, Nov. 8—Police today intensified the search started yesterday for a Salem man, and former resident of this city, whom they wish to question regarding the holdup in Middleton Wednesday night of a taxi cab driver and a similar holdup of a Lowell taxi driver in this city late last night.

Search began yesterday when police received information regarding the identity of the man who held up a Salem cab driver at gunpoint and robbed him of $4 in money and drove away in his automobile.

Two Schools Close as Pupils Seek Pay

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, Nov. 8—Students of the National law school and of the school of applied sciences, the latter being a private institution, walked out in sympathy with striking students of the agricultural school.

The strikers are led by Justin Sam, a son of the President Sam who was killed by a mob in 1915 after he had ordered the massacre of political prisoners and precipitated American intervention.

Authorities are generally puzzled as to the exact cause of the students' strike. Those in the government schools are receiving free tuition and limited scholarship funds. They at first refused to do school work for pay but now they demand additional payment for the privileges of receiving an education.

Antiques Added to Museum Collection

Several valuable and rare antiques, including additions to the Chinese collection at the Museum of Fine Arts, have been recently received, it was announced at a meeting of the museum's committee.

Among the objects is one of the earliest standard measures in existence. This was presented by Dr. Denman W. Ross and is of pewter inlaid with gold. It bears a date corresponding to 81 A. D. At that time the Chinese used the decimal system and the measure, about four inches shorter than the present foot ruler is divided into 10 parts, re-divided into tenths, which are marked off by gold stripe inlaid in the pewter.

Student Ailments Caused by Worry

According to Dr. Lloyd J Tompson, assistant professor of mental hygiene and psychiatry at Yale, told students at Boston University's school of education that the mental troubles which bother college students are due to a "chronic state of excitement because they are afraid that they are afraid that they are not going to live up to their family expectations while at college."

"The student often comes to college suffering from over-protection on the part of his parents in pre-college days and in many cases has been lorded over by his father, who tells him what courses to take and what college to attend. The student suddenly rebels in college when he discovers that most of his freshman courses are prescribed."

"Bon-Tone Is a Good General Body Building Tonic"

Dorchester Man Tells How Medicine Relieved Badly Rundown Condition

Every day we receive hundreds of testimonials from people all over New England, attesting to the merits of Bon-Tone. The following is a very interesting one we received from a resident of Dorchester, Mass.

Mr. George G. Ingalls

W. A. Rigney Company,
Newark, N. J.

Dear Sirs—I would indeed be very ungrateful if I failed to tell you how much I have been helped by taking Bon-Tone. All this summer I have been in a badly rundown condition—such a listless, tired, all-gone feeling. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and when a friend of mine advised me to try a bottle of Bon-Tone, I did, and I am at present on my third bottle, and there has been a wonderful improvement.

No more dizzy spells—no more headaches—no more the ailments which I previously suffered. I shall continue to take it just as long as I feel it is needful.

I will boost Bon-Tone to all my friends. It is a great tonic and I heartily endorse and advise its use to anyone wishing a good general Body-Building Tonic.

Yours gratefully,
GEORGE G. INGALLS,
150 Adams Street, Dorchester, Mass.

After all, what is wiser than to profit by the experiences of others?

Call on the Bon-Tone man who is meeting the public daily at Epstein Drug Store, Scollay Square, Boston. He will tell you of many more remarkable cases. Bon-Tone is also for sale in Cambridge at Cole Drug Store, 636 Mass. Ave., Central Square, and in South Boston at John S. Austin's Drug Store, 436 Broadway, Perkins Square.

Call 'Headless Ghost' Cider Mill 'Dream'

Owipee, N. H., Nov. 8—When residents of this peaceful town read the yarn about the "Home of the Headless Ghost" they wondered whether somebody had imbibed too much hard cider.

The reason why they wondered along this line was because the old "Dr. Colby" house, in this town, from which the "headless ghost" is said to have wandered across adjacent fields, has been a cider mill as far back as the present generation can remember. It is operated by James Kenney.

[illegible] town officials said today they never heard the yarn about the "headless ghost" and were of the opinion that somebody had obtained some of the cool product of the cider mill, gotten it to go and then whole [illegible]

Queen Mary's Own Recipe for Making Sponge Cake

THANKSGIVING DAY CALLS FOR CANDIES

Martha Lee Provides the Recipes for Dipping in Chocolate and a New Wrinkle in Doughnuts

Of course Thanksgiving or any holiday wouldn't be anything without a liberal supply of sweets, whether they are store ones with professionally perfect curlicues on their tummies, or home-made ones, which, by the way, may be made perfect looking, also.

Home-made candies may be dipped in chocolate, and quite successfully too, if regular dipping chocolate is used, and sufficient care is taken in the process.

To make chocolate creams successfully one must first make the cream fondant, which may be made the day before and the chocolate dipping be done the next day. Here is an excellent recipe for plain fondant.

PLAIN FONDANT

3 c. sugar
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
1 c. water

Mix ingredient in saucepan and wipe down with a damp cloth. Cook to 240 degrees without stirring. Pour onto a wet marble slab or a greased platter and let cool to luke warm. Then manipulate with a short spatula, working back and forth, never in circles, until the mass creams. Then knead in the hands a few minutes, place in a bowl, cover with a damp cloth and allow to ripen for 24 hours. Shape into balls or patties, let dry off lightly, and dip.

TO DIP CHOCOLATES

Buy regular dipping or confectioner's chocolate. Never try to use ordinary baker's chocolate. Cut chocolate in small pieces in the top part of a double boiler.

Put water in lower part and heat not quite to boiling. Remove from fire, place upper part containing chocolate over the hot water and stir till melted, never letting temperature of the chocolate become higher than lukewarm or about 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Always remove from fire if it goes higher than this.

When completely melted remove from hot water and stir constantly with spoon or the fingers until 85 degrees F. Chocolate is then ready for dipping. It should never be used hotter than this. Most mistakes in dipping come from using the mixture when too hot and too thin.

Have the candies or fruits for dipping dry and do the dipping in a cool room, not over 70 degrees. Take a piece of candy in the fingers or place on the end of a small fork such as a lemon fork.

Place in the chocolate, cover completely, remove, let the excess chocolate drip off, then place the piece on oiled paper, removing the hand or fork slowly in order to let the chocolate drip down in a design or point on top.

If the chocolate becomes too thick as it is being used, warm again over the water, always taking care not to over heat. Or fresh warm melted chocolate may be added to the cold, thick mixture until the right consistency is again reached. The chocolate will remain the right consistency longer if a fairly large amount is melted at a time.

DOUGHNUTS IN WAFFLES

The young lady on the right is making doughnuts in the new doughnut machine built on the principle of an electric waffle iron. Doughnuts made in this way are really baked instead of fried, although they have the crisp brown crust common to the doughnut family.

She makes her coffee by one of the most approved methods, too, you see—in a glass coffee pot.

Best of all by this method you use less coffee—at least one-third less, and your coffee is always good and always the same. This vacuum coffee pot is easily cleaned and the vacuum draws all the flavor, aroma and healthful qualities from the coffee instantly when mixed with the boiling water.

CHILDREN FOND OF COOKIES

Now that there is a tang in the air, and the matter of the kiddies luncheons looms up, and the dropping in of the neighbors for a friendly cup of tea, it isn't so hard to keep the cookie jar full. When I was a kiddie there were always a variety of delicious homemade cookies in the big jar, and with an apple formed many an after-school lunch. They are nourishing and filling, and after one gets the knack, easy to bake.

MARSHMALLOW COOKIES

Cream ⅔ cup shortening; add 1½ cups sugar and cream again. Beat in 2 eggs; add 6 tbsp. lemon juice and grated rind of 1 lemon. Fold in 3 cups flour stiffened with 1 tsp. baking powder, ¼ tsp. soda and ½ tsp. salt. Roll out on slightly floured board and cut out. Bake in moderately hot oven for 10 minutes; remove from oven, place half a marshmallow in the center of each and return to oven to brown.

SUNSHINE DROPS

Beat 2 egg yolks until light and thick and add 4 tbsps. orange juice, 1 tsp. lemon juice, 1 tsp. grated orange rind. Gradually add ¼ cup sugar, continuing to beat. Sift 1¼ cups flour, 2 tsps. baking powder, ¼ tsp. salt. Fold the beaten whites of 2 eggs into the first mixture add the dry ingredients and mix together as lightly as possible. Pour into buttered and floured cup cake pans and bake in a moderate oven about 20 minutes. Cool and cover with frosting.

DROP COOKIES

Cream ¼ cup fat with 1 cup brown sugar. Add 2 beaten eggs, 2 tbsps. lemon juice and 2 tbsps. water. Sift 2 cups flour, 2 tsps. baking powder and ½ tsp. salt together and add to the mixture. Put 1 cup peanuts through the food chopper, using the finest cutter, and add. Drop by teaspoons onto shallow greased pans or on a baking sheet, having the cookies about an inch apart to allow for spreading. Bake in a hot oven until brown.

Two New Wrinkles for Housewives

Here is how candies may be dipped in the plates as good as it is done in factories.

TRY THIS RECIPE

There are more ways of stuffing peppers than varieties of a certain famous pickle. But none more delicious than this recipe:

Select large sweet green peppers. Wash and cut them into halves and remove the seeds and core. Prepare flaked crumbs from a soft stale loaf of baker's bread. Season with salt, pepper and poultry seasoning, to taste.

Fill the halves of the peppers and dot over with butter, or over each half lay a piece of bacon. Set in a buttered pan and bake until the peppers are done and the crumbs are brown. Serve at once.

You can vary this recipe by using little bits of ground ham or other meats in with the bread crumbs. The poultry seasoning is splendid for seasoning the meat, also.

HAIL JELL SHERRY

How the good old times come mourned the loss of their cooking sherry—the key ingredient of so many famous recipes. No wonder they have hailed the new jelled sherry with joyful acclaim! This gelatinized flavoring is made from ripe, old sherry, free from adulteration, preservatives or artificial coloring.

It adds zest to any recipe calling for wine. Add it to your one recipe for Lobster or Crab Newburgh or Chicken a la King (2 tbsps. to a pint of other material). Or in Brown Sauce, thusly:

Brown Sauce—One tbsp. to a cup of your favorite brown sauce will make it even more tempting.

Fish Sauce—Use 2 tsps. to a cup. Gives aroma and flavor lacking in most fish sauces.

Here's An Answer to That Universal Pie Query

How can I make a tender flaky pie crust?" is asked me so often by women [illegible] a day, all the year round, and although I do have in our files as many recipes for pie crust and filling as there are varieties of a certain famous pickle, there is one combination that seems to bring me more "thank-you's" than any other, and that is the use of a ready-prepared pie crust and a pie filling that I am always glad to bring to the attention of either the bride or her mother.

Probably brides are a little more ready to adopt the short-cuts to quicker cookery than the mothers who for years have cut their [illegible] shortening into their flour and if the finished results were not as satisfactory as usual, have folded their hands in resignment and murmured, "I just haven't any luck with anything today."

You are bound to have good luck, however, if you use this ready-prepared pie crust, with its sister filling. The sifting, measuring, mixing and chilling have already been done for you, only the fine and purest ingredients being used. This gives this pie crust that homemade taste and leaves your family of tender, delicious pastry.

DAINTY PASTRY WOULD DELIGHT ANY KING

George's Consort Prepares Toothsome Edible With Own Hands in Kitchen of Buckingham Palace

And now—attention, please—the Boston [illegible] can is able to offer to its readers [illegible] for [illegible] the fit for a king.

"It's the recipe for sponge cake that Queen Mary of England makes with her own hands and in her own private kitchen for King George. It is taken from the latest issue of Hearst's International and Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Incidentally, the Queen does considerable cooking and when her royal husband was critically ill he would take no nourishment except that which she prepared for him in her white-tiled kitchen, kept for her own use in Buckingham Palace.

Here is the sponge cake recipe:

Three eggs, with whites beaten separately; weight of 3 eggs in powdered sugar, or ⅔ cupful, weight of 2 eggs in self-raising flour, or 1 cupful.

Put yolks and beaten whites of eggs in basin, sift in sugar and beat up, then sift in the flour. Have ready a cake tin lined with paper. Put in mixture and place in hot oven. If gas is used, lower gas immediately cake is in oven and do not look at cake for at least 20 minutes to half an hour. Gas should be very low. Test with skewer and if the latter is clean when taken out, the cake is done.

JEWISH WOMEN CHARGE RACE PREJUDICE

By NANCY BREWSTER

Providence, Nov 8—Behind closed doors, delegates to the New England Regional Conference of the National Council of Jewish Women were told that Jewish girls were being discriminated against in professional and industrial fields and the women were asked to help solve the problem.

Mrs Frances Pollack, national chairman of vocational guidance for the council, declared such discrimination to be a fact, revealed in a survey in which Jewish girls of 38 states were solicited for information.

The girls stated that teaching positions and stenographic employment were denied when they made known their faith.

The girls were asked to leave the assembly hall before Mrs. Pollack spoke, but the content of her address was discussed from whom delegates after the session.

It was said that Mrs Cesar Misch, leader in Rhode Island, founder of the council in Providence and prominently identified with the General Federation of Women's Clubs, denied that such discrimination existed in Rhode Island. Mrs. Misch affiliated with the Providence School Committee said that reports had come to her of discrimination but on investigating she found them to be grossly exaggerated.

Other women took issue with Mrs. Pollack, refusing to believe that any such race prejudice existed.

However, the women promised to investigate conditions and do their utmost to bring any such existing facts to public notice.

REPORTER'S BARRED

Mrs Pollack refused to announce to the press the subject matter of her address or comment on what she said. She refused to address the women unless the newspaper reporters were asked to leave.

It was learned that Mrs. Pollack stated that in a survey of 38 states girls had declared they were unable to gain positions when they declared themselves to be of Jewish faith.

She told of a Wellesley graduate of high standing scholastically, a girl of very fine type, who was unable to secure a position. The officials of an employment agency advised her to state her religious faith as other than Jewish and the girl did so. She declared herself to be a Unitarian. She secured the position.

Mrs. Pollack said that the same girl still occupied the same position and that her religious faith was still unknown to her employer.

The speaker urged the women to educate the girls and the public and to assist in every possible way in solving the serious situation which today confronts brilliant Jewish girls.

Mrs Israel Bernstein of Portland was re-elected president of the New England Regional Conference. Other officers elected were Mrs. Hyman Medtech, Stamford, Ct., vice-president; Mrs. E. Gardner Jacobs, Providence, secretary.

Mrs. Hyman Freiman, president of the Boston Section of the National Council, was elected treasurer.

Mrs. I. K. E. Prager of Boston, reporting on the National Triennial, which takes place at Los Angeles next January, urged the women to "sacrifice" if they must but attend the triennial.

PROGRAM FOR WOMEN

"It is to be the biggest thing in the life of the Council, in your everyday life and in the life of your community," Mrs. Prager stated. She told of a new program to be outlined and presented at the triennial, a program designed primarily to catch the imagination of youth and to inspire the younger Jewish women to join the Council ranks and work in the interests of organized Jewish womanhood.

Mrs. Maurice Goldman, chairman of the national department of immigrant aid and principal speaker at the morning session, told of an enlarged field open to council women to extend service to foreign-born women.

She cited instances of the international net work so finely laid as to link up every section of the country with European demands for assistants in locating relatives and friends in America.

Very few realize that problems exist for the Jewish farmer, or that America has a Jewish farm population which demands the co-operation and aid of such a powerful body as the National Council of Jewish Women. But such is a fact.

Mrs Samuel Captman of Bridgeport, Ct., national vice-president of the department of farm and rural work, stated that Jewish farmers were confronted with the same problems of rural life.

She said there is need for education and civic betterment and community development among the Jewish farmers.

"They have our problems, too. They need social life among the women and religious education and training among the children. Then there is one problem of keeping the Jewish farmer on the farm, the council is the only Jewish agency in this entire country doing social service work in the rural districts.

TRUMPING OWN ACE IN DUMMY.

Introductory four-card suit bids (as distinguished from the informative type) are those made with hands containing a choice between two or more suit bids, or between a suit bid and a No Trump South's holding in this deal illustrates the latter situation.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction Bidding: South bid originally one Heart. Despite his No Trump distribution, 4-4-3-2 and his high card strength in three suits, the four card Heart suit is his preferable call, as his supported suit is of but two cards. Should partner take out to Spades, South can go to No Trumps and, as will be seen, his original one Heart is introductory to any take-out or to a leave-in by North.

Contract Bidding: Following South's one Heart North makes a jump assist to three, his trump length and side high card strength sufficient to ask partner to bid for a game if his side strength warrants. South, holding the necessary side values, bids four Hearts which becomes the final declaration.

The Play

West leads initially the 6 of Clubs, Dummy's Queen winning the trick. Declarer now leads trumps, the 4 from Dummy, East plays the 3 and South finesses the 9 against the possible holding of two Heart honors by the East hand. West wins the Heart lead with the King and continues with Clubs, playing the 7, which forces Dummy's King. Declarer again leads trumps, the 8 from Dummy, East plays the 10, and South the Jack which holds.

South now leads the Ace of Clubs and trumps it in Dummy in order to finesse his Diamonds—the 3 of Diamonds from Dummy, the 7 played by East and the Jack by South, thus driving in the Diamond Ace.

West, now in cannot lead Clubs which would give Declarer a discard and a ruff so shifts to Spades, leading the 4. Declarer, going up with the Ace in Dummy, returns a Diamond for a second finesse, the 9 holding the trick. South now lays down the Ace of Hearts, dropping Eastis Queen. He next leads the King of Diamonds trusting the outstanding adverse two Diamonds will be divided as he cannot get back to the Dummy for a third finesse of the suit. The Diamonds break and South plays the thirteenth Diamond for the game trick, giving up a Spade in the end.

Park ave. was there, and Wall Street and 1st ave and the East Side. The boxes were agittter with jewels, fashionable frocks and silks.

Arthur White, scarlet-coated ringmaster—ex-jockey, ex-soldier, ex-prize fighter—stepped into the tanbark arena and blew his bugle, and the show was on.

OLD VANDERBILT RIG

Four-in-hands with passengers in evening dress, recalled the society of another day. There was the black and cream coach "Venture" owned by William H Vanderbilt and built in England 25 years ago for his father, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, drawn by four dapple grays.

There was the yellow and black coach "Bumblebee" with Guy Ward, owner and whip, and there was Victor Gore's black and red "Liberty" drawn by white horses.

But King Horse was at his best in the ladies' saddle horse event. Six women riders, half of them astride and the other half riding sidesaddle, and all in the formal black cravenette suits and tall silk hats of the exposition habit, put him through his paces.

Mrs. James Hewlett, who rode astride, took first place on William H. Nichols Southerland Rose.

TEAMS OF THE NATIONS

Then came the parade of the foreign and American teams. To the strains of a military march, the white gates of the arena swung open and in rode the officers of the Polish team, three abreast.

Next came the prancing bays of the blue-coated Italian officers, followed by the Canadians, the cavalrymen of the Irish Free State and eight American officers.

The horses, prancing to the center of the tanbark ring, halted in single formation before Gen. Charles A. Summerall, chief of staff of the United States Army, while the band played five national airs but their riders paid no heed to the jazz.

The exhibition of Battery C, 16th Field Artillery of the United States Army, was the most brilliant event of the brilliant show. To the stirring strains of the band, eight caissons whirled into the ring, each drawn by a dozen white horses.

On the driver's seat and on every other horse rode a guard in white breeches and black coat, his white shirt front and three-cornered black hat crossed and re-crossed by scarlet ribbons and gold braid.

In artillery formation they charged across the ring, wheeling and turning through issues of burning torches while the crowd burst into a thunder of applause.

The boxes were filled with notables of half a dozen nations. Mrs. Brooks-Aten turned over her box to the officers of the Italian army team; Desmond Fitzgrald, minister of defense of the Irish Free State, occupied a box, and Oliver Harriman and W. H. Vanderbilt were hosts to other parties.

Southern Club Plans Armistice Program

One of the features of the annual Armistice assembly of the Southern Club of Boston next Monday night in Copley Plaza Hotel will be the dimming of lights at 10 o'clock and reading of "Flanders Field." Persons from nearly every state below the Mason-Dixon line will be present. Those in the receiving line will include Mrs. Charles E. Murnan of Brookline, Maj. Robert E. Green, club president; Mrs. William G. Gay of Cambridge, Mrs. Margaret Swartout, Mrs. George Benton, Mrs. K. A. Kefauber and Mrs. John H. McCleary, all of Brookline; Mrs. William H. Duncan, Newton, and Charles E. Murnan, vice-president. Ushers will be Capt. Terrel M. Ragan, Capt. Franklin A. Harwood, Sergt. Willard B. Freeman and George Baton.

English Biscuits Made in Watertown Plant

In England's wayside inns and fashionable brewing rooms, the "biscuit" is a dainty favorite, and "biscuit" to the English means a delicate blend of flours, shortened with special pastry butter, enriched with eggs and milk, flavored with chocolate, custards or choice fruits.

Heretofore, these English biscuits have been imported at considerable expense and trouble, but now English ovens and baking methods have been brought right over to our own Watertown in the good old U. S. A. These English quality biscuits can now be purchased at your nearest grocer's in attractive pound packages or in bulk, and at extremely reasonable prices.

I recently went through this Watertown plant and can assure you that it is as spotless as your own kitchen and that the materials used are just the same first-quality ingredients stocked on your own pantry shelves.

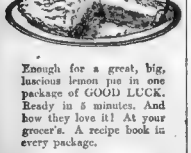
LEMON PIE FILLING



Enough for a great, big, luscious lemon pie in one package of GOOD LUCK. Ready in 5 minutes. And how they love it! At your grocer's. A recipe book in every package.

GOOD LUCK DESSERTS

EASY DATE DISHES TO MAKE

DATE MUFFINS

1-3 cup butter
¼ cup sugar
2 level tbsp. baking powder
1 egg
¾ cup milk
3 cups flour
½ level tbsp. salt
½ pound dates

Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and the dates chopped fine. Mix well together, then add the beaten egg. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder together twice and add to first mixture alternately with the milk. Bake in greased muffin pans twenty to twenty-five minutes in hot oven (400 degrees F.)

STUFFED DATE SALAD

20 dates (3-8 pkg.) pitted.
½ pkg. cream cheese
Lettuce
¼ cup peanut butter
¼ cup cream or rich milk
French or mayonnaise dressing

Rub the cream cheese and the peanut butter separately to a paste with the cream. Stuff half of the dates with each mixture. Arrange the cheese and peanut butter and stuffed dates alternately in a circle on a bed of lettuce leaves. Serve with French or mayonnaise dressing

DATE MACAROONS

To make two dozen macaroons you will need:

2 egg whites
¼ tbsp. salt
½ tbsp. vanilla
1 cup (½ pkg.) dates, pitted and minced
¾ cup granulated sugar.
1 1-3 cups (a 4-oz. pkg or can) of cocoanut

Beat the egg whites stiff but not dry, then add the salt. Beat in the sugar one-quarter cup at a time. Add the vanilla and fold in the cocoanut and cut dates. Drop the snowy batter by rounded teaspoonfuls, an inch apart, on a baking sheet or inverted pan which has been greased with unsalted fat or oil. Keep them small—don't heap the teaspoon.

In baking be sure that your oven is slow. If you have an oven thermometer the proper temperature is 275 degrees F. The secret of chewy, good looking macaroons is a slow oven. The baking time depends on your oven and therefore varies from 20 to 30 minutes. Take them out when they are very light golden color or when the surface seems dry on being pressed lightly with the forefinger.

Let them stand a minute before removing from the pan with spatula or long, flat knife. They shouldn't stick to the pan a bit, but if they do (because your oven was too hot) dip the spatula or knife in hot water. Keep them in a covered metal box. A fresh piece of bread put in with them will help keep them chewy.

CRUMB DATE PUDDING

¼ cup bread crumbs
2-3 cup seeded chopped dates
2-3 cup chopped nut meats
1 level tsp. salt
1 cup confectioner's sugar
1 level tsp. baking powder.
3 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla.

Mix the bread crumbs, dates, nuts, salt, confectioners' sugar and baking powder thoroughly. Add the eggs well beaten and the vanilla. Place in a shallow buttered pan and bake thirty minutes in a slow oven. Cut into squares and serve with cream.

CAKE IS TASTY

From Miss Daurice F. Darling, director of the home service department of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co., comes this recipe for Sunshine cake.

SUNSHINE CAKE

8 eggs
½ tsp. salt
1 cup sugar
½ tsp. cream of tartar
¾ cup sifted pastry flour
1 tsp. lemon flavoring

Separate eggs; beat yolks and salt until thick and lemon colored. Add flavorings. Beat whites to stiff froth; fold in sugar; then combine with beaten yolks. Fold in sifted flour and cream of tartar. Bake in an ungreased tube pan in a moderate oven 50 to 60 minutes.

Town Plans to Buy Closed Woolen Mill

Huntington, Nov. 8 (AP)—The selectmen have called a special meeting for tonight to see if citizens will subscribe $30,000 for the purchase of the Dunn woolen mills, which have been closed for nearly a year.

With the closing down of several smaller plants, several hundred are without employment. The opening of the Dunn plant would provide work for 200.

Kissing Chorus Girls Barred Off Campus

Minneapolis, Nov. 8—A delightful scheme to boost the circulation of the Gopher, undergraduate year book at the University of Minnesota, has failed.

Twelve chorus girls were to be on the campus an hour and 15 minutes and kiss everybody who subscribed. Dean C. E. Nicholson put his foot down.

SEASONING

LEFTOVER MEAT IS USEFUL

What do you do with leftover meat at your house? Does it stay in the refrigerator until it is finally thrown out, or do you make use of every small piece? So often just a small amount is needed to flavor a sauce, or bring out the best of the vegetable flavor that I feel there is no excuse for failing to use even the smallest meat left-overs.

Beef, lamb and veal as well as pork are all suitable to use in the preparation of left-over dishes. While left-over vegetables, such as carrots, green beans, beets and asparagus, in fact, any seasonable vegetable in combination with rice, macaroni and noodles may be served with the meat in one way or another.

BAKED HASH

1 cup left-over meat
2 cups raw potato, cut fine
1 tbsp onion juice
½ cup gravy or water
2 tbsps chopped parsley
½ tsp. pepper
¼ cup drippings

Melt fat in frying pan. Put in all the other ingredients. Cook in a slow oven—250 deg.—for ½ hour. Fold and serve as omelet.

BAKED HAM WITH NOODLES OR MACARONI

1 cup leftover ham
2 cups cooked noodles or macaroni
1 cup milk
½ cup crumbs
½ tsp. salt and pepper mixed
1 tbsp. butter

Grease a baking dish, and place in alternate layers, cooked chopped ham, and cooked noodles or macaroni. Season. Add liquid, cover with bread crumbs, dot with butter and brown in a hot oven, 400 deg. F.

STUFFED CABBAGE

1 firm head cabbage
1 cup cold chopped meat
1 egg
1 cup bread crumbs
1 tsp. celery salt
3 tbsps. fat
3 tbsps. flour
2 cups, milk
1 tsp. onion juice or grated onion
¼ tsp. pepper

Cut center from cabbage and chop part removed. Melt fat, add flour and seasonings, then add milk gradually. When smooth and thick add bread crumbs, meat and one cup chopped cabbage. Stuff cabbage with this mixture, tie leaves together and enclose cabbage in cheesecloth. Steam or boil one hour.

THE WATCH TOWER

With fresh rhubarb and asparagus in the markets, there is enough substantial evidence of spring to make us glance at the calendar. The rhubarb is retailing for 10 cents to 15 cents a pound. And a rhubarb pie right now is not to be sneezed at.

Mushrooms are reasonable (49 cents to 60 cents a pound), and if you haven't a recipe for a rich brown mushroom sauce, do let me send it to you.

Squash and brussel sprouts are two other good buys and hothouse tomatoes are lower. Roadside stands are showing the most glorious cauliflower at 15 cents to 40 cents a head, according to size and quality—and the quality this fall seems extra fine.

Remember, in picking your cauliflower to choose solid, compact, not loose, fuzzy ones that are discolored.

Native McIntosh and Baldwin apples are leading the fruit list with a few Florida oranges offered at 35 cents to 45 cents a dozen. And kumquats among those present at 18 cents to 25 cents a quart. Nearby eggs in the city market are 52 cents to 85 cents a dozen, with the Massachusetts special pullet-sized eggs 75 cents.

Pork rib roast prices are lower this week—25 cents to 29 cents a pound—and native fresh killed duck is reasonable at 35 cents to 38 cents.

Cloudy Tonight and Tomorrow

It will be cloudy tonight and Saturday with not much change in temperature, according to the official forecast. Light rain or snow may fall in New Hampshire tonight and it will be warmer in northern Vermont.

WILKINS NEARS ANTARCTIC BASE

S. S. Melville, Nov. 8—Approaching the Falkland Islands, there is a nip of ice in the air. Borne on the South wind, it stings our nostrils and awakens memories and stirs the imagination. It starts us wondering how long it will be before the warm and scented tropic breezes shall greet us once again.

It is exhilarating, cold in the sparkling sunshine, and this weather tasters us eager to reach our base on Deception Island and stir up our Whirlwind engines from their Winter slumber, and soar once more in search of the Lost Antarctic.

King Rides the Waves

Bonn, Germany, Nov. 8—Frau Victoria Subkoff, 63, sister of the former Kaiser, today was in a critical condition in St. Francis' Hospital here.

Although when brought to the hospital, it was stated the princess was suffering from a serious throat infection, it was widely rumored today that she had swallowed poison either by mistake or because of her recent troubles. These rumors, however, lacked confirmation.

Mrs. Pantages May Win Her Freedom

Los Angeles, Nov. 8—Mrs. Lois Pantages, convicted of manslaughter in the death of Jiro Rokumoto will be taken in the court of Superior Judge Charles S. Hardy in a habeas corpus hearing on her probation application.

Three doctors have reported to Judge Hardy she is suffering from a permanent disability as well out of the accident and must be operated upon at once.

3 A. M. CURFEW SET BY SOCIETY MOTHERS

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—A band of 70 mothers of this year's crop of debutantes is intent on a 3 a. m. curfew.

"Stop the music at 3 o'clock in the morning," is their slogan in the crusade to discourage dancing till dawn and later among the younger set whose parties their daughters will attend this season. The expectation is that eligible young men now can attend parties and still go to work next day.

Seating the guests promptly at the designated hour, no matter who or how many are late is to be the silent rebuke for the stragglers who keep dinner waiting.

Discussion of ways and means to carrying on the campaign took place yesterday at a meeting at the home of Mrs. Seth M. Milliken in Madison ave.

Mrs. John Henry Hammond, president of the New York Debutantes' League, said at the meeting:

"The movement for early hours now on trial in New York is being watched by junior and parents' leagues all over the country. It is up to us to make it fashionable to have early hours."

Miss Mary Delafield, a debutante of the season, spoke in behalf of the young people. She said:

"At first the new rules were not very popular, as no one wanted to go to bed early, but now we like them because we find we can go to more parties."

Mrs. Barrett Wendell Gets Girl Scout Post

New Orleans, Nov. 8—Mrs. Barrett Wendell of Boston and Portsmouth, N. H., was today elected vice-president of the National Girl Scouts organization at its 15th annual convention, in session here since Wednesday. Mrs. William H. Hoffman of Barrington, R. I., was re-elected president. Also elected vice-presidents were Mrs. Owen D. Young of New York, wife of the chairman of the General Electric Co., and Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of New York.

Mrs. Wendell was for many years a member of the Girl Scout Council of Massachusetts, and secretary of the Massachusetts Girl Scout executive committee for 10 years. She is a member of the examination board of the Boston Public library and chairman of the Massachusetts Department of the National Civic Federation.

61 Conventions to Be Held Here in 1930

Delegates of organizations ranging from soda water bottlers to seekers of the occult will attend the 61 major conventions scheduled for Boston in 1930. It is estimated that nearly 400,000 persons will attend these various conclaves. The American Legion convention, which will convene here in September, is expected to draw at least 200,000 visitors.

First Fire Since June Brisk Blaze

Rochester, N. H., Nov. 8—Rochester's first fire in five months, while not causing a large monetary loss, gave the firemen an eight-hour battle, during which six members of the ladder company were overcome with smoke and nearly the entire department affected by the fumes.

A still alarm called the chemical crew from the central station to the large mill of the W. H. Champlin Co., where a fire was burning briskly in the shaving house. The blaze had gained considerably headway and an alarm was sounded from Box 28, calling out the entire department.

COOKING PROBLEM TO BRIDE

The bride entering her kitchen ette apartment, city or suburban home has many adjustments to make. One of her first and greatest problems is the preparation of two or three meals a day, for young husbands have healthy appetites.

Many brides are too ambitious and even before they have mastered the fundamental recipe in cooking endeavor to prepare dishes that the seasoned chef would approach with caution. It is a wise bride who is not overly anxious to attempt the preparation of fancy dishes before she has learned some more of the simple ones.

Keep the meals as simple as possible, but choose foods that harmonize in flavor and color. A hot dish with one or two vegetables in the form of potatoes and a succulent or stem vegetable, a cold, crisp salad with a piquant dressing and a dessert—nothing extravagant but something simple, yet tasty, that will satisfy the sweet tooth.

And perhaps you are wondering just how much you should purchase for the various dishes making up your evening meal? It is almost impossible to state exact proportions as the dietary requirements of some people are greater than others. Then, too, some men seemingly enjoy food more than others and an average portion would not satisfy their hunger.

The protein foods entering into the menus are, of course, the most expensive, and because they are so valuable in the diet, should be purchased with the greatest care. It is well to remember that a pound of meat as purchased is usually ample for two people; that four medium-sized potatoes or one-half cup of macaroni or rice will more than meet the starch requirement for the meal.

If you plan to serve mashed potatoes, 3 medium-sized potatoes or 2 large ones will be sufficient for 3 generous portions of mashed potatoes.

The purchase of fresh vegetables and fruit is not so great a task, as berries and fruit are usually put up in relatively small baskets or containers; while greens, such as spinach, chard, green beans and peas are sold by the pound and one pound is usually enough for two ample portions. Carrots, red beats and white turnips are sold in bunches of from four to five each in a bunch. One bunch of these root vegetables is plenty for two.

When purchasing canned products, the bride often finds that the smallest sized cans, although perhaps more expensive, are in the long run economical, because it means no left-overs. Canned milk should be purchased in the small-sized tin. Soups, canned vegetables, fruits and meats should all be purchased in the new 8 oz. size, just sufficiently large for two servings.

Alice R. Barlow, member of the Handel and Haydn Society, Massachusetts Women's Club and other Boston organizations.

Here's a message to Miss Boston from Alice R. Barlow, artist, song bird and musician, who says:

"Hurry up girls! You'd better write a note to Martha Lee this very day and obtain enrollment for the January evening cooking class for brides and business girls! If you don't, you'll be sorry. Of all the Boston choral societies and clubs that I belong to, I find Martha Lee's Cooking classes the most interesting and helpful.

"Why, my sister, Mrs. Vivian Ormerod of Providence, R. I., travels back and forth from Providence every Tuesday night just to take in these wonderful cooking lessons! We think it is the opportunity of a lifetime and feel that the Boston Evening American is doing wonderful work to offer these valuable lessons without charge of any kind."

Rev. Dr. Ryan Defends Faithful Reporters

Washington, Nov. 8 — Three Washington Times reporters, now serving 45 days in jail for refusing to turn prosecuting witnesses against the speakeasies they have listed in a newspaper expose, "were not only not morally obliged to give the grand jury the information demanded, but were morally obliged to persist in their refusal."

This was the "theological opinion" on the actions of the reporters, handed down today by the Rev. John A. Ryan of the Catholic University of America.

The Rev. Dr. Ryan was asked for such an opinion by the Baltimore Catholic Review, the publication in which it appeared today.

"Whether the personal inconvenience of serving 45 da.. in jail is sufficient to absolve them from the contractual obligation of secrecy is a question that he d not be considered in his place. Dr. Ryan added significantly. His theolog cal opinion in full follows

"On O ober 20, three reporters employ _ by the Washington T..es were sentenced to serve forty-five days each in jail for contempt of court. The action so designated by Justice Peyton Gordon consisted in a refusal of these men to disclose to the grand jury the names and addresses of places where they had purchased liquor.

DUTY UNDER THE LAW

"The law which they violated when they thus refused to testify as stated in general terms by Justice Gordon when he pronounced sentence :

"It is the duty of every private citizen when he kn ws a crime has been committed to give his testimony before the grand jury to enable the Government to prosecute the criminal It is the duty of these men as witnesses to respond to the grand jury's questions'

"The crime in question was, of course, the sale of liquor to the reporters. They bought it, not primarily, it seems, to quench their thirst, but in order to provide facts for the campaign of publicity which the two Hearst papers in Washington were carrying on with regard to the non-enforcement of the Volstead Act In the Capital City of the nation. Their refusal to make known to the grand jury the names of the persons from whom and the places in which they purchased liquor was based upon promises which they had made to the liquor sellers.

"Had they not given these promises, they would not have obtained the liquor and, therefore, would have lacked the facts which the employing newspapers desired for the purposes of their campaign.

"Were these three reporters morally obliged to fulfill what Justice Gordon interpreted as a legal obligation? Apparently they were not under any moral obligation. The duties of witnesses in such a situation are discussed by the oral theologians in relation to the keeping of secrets. The treatment of the question by the Rev. Thomas Slater, S. J., in his 'manual of moral theology' is typical

"After describing the secrets called 'natural' and those called 'promised' he discusses at some length the third kind, which is committed to a person only on condition that it will not be revealed. This, of course, was the case with the three Washington reporters. Concerning this kind of secret, Father Slater writes.

SECRET IS BINDING

"'A secret which is confined to another under the condition that secrecy is to be observed, constitutes the matter of an onerous contract and binds more strictly than either a natural or a promised secret. Such are secrets of office which officials of all sorts become aware of in the execution of the duties entrusted to them; professional secrets of doctors, lawyers, priests, and others, who are consulted as experts by people in doubt or difficulty; as well as all others which are entrusted to any person under the express or implied condition of secrecy'

"With regard to the obligation of making known secrets to a court when one has been sworn as a witness, Father Slater says: 'A witness in a court of justice when lawfully questioned about what he knows under the obligation of natural or promised secrecy must give the evidence required. Professional secrets, however, and in general, secrets which belong to the third class, are privileged, and must not be declared unless they have ceased to be binding for some such reason as those mentioned above Secrecy in this case is demanded by the natural law, which gives the fullest possible security to those who consult others in their difficulties, and even the precept of one's superior cannot avail against the natural law, as Saint Thomas teaches."

FOREIGN LEGION GIVES UP MAN AS SLAYER

Sidi-bel-Abbes, Algeria, Nov. 8 (AP)—By surrendering a murderer to the civilian police to stand trial for a crime committed prior to his enlistment the French foreign Legion has caused earnest confabs in the barracks here and the places frequented by the legionnaries.

For years the idea has been generally accepted that no matter what crime a man was accused of in civil life he was safe from prosecution so long as he remained in the Foreign Legion.

Civilian detectives long have complained that when they called at headquarters, evasive answers were received concerning alleged criminals whom they sought. Or by strang coincidences, it appeared that these men had been detailed for service in the lower Sahara or on the fringe of the Hoggar, where the hand of the law lengthy as it is reputed to be, was too short to reach.

Recently two Paris detectives arrived at Sidi-bel Abbes and told the Colonel that "We have a warrant here for Gaston Froissart, who killed his grandmother with an axe in 1927. We found her and he enlisted in the Legion as Roi Bernard."

"Prove to me that Bernard and Froissart are the same man," the Colonel said.

Bertillon was sent for. Measurements were taken, and the establishment beyond all doubt of the fact that Froissart without the shadow of a doubt. The man was then surrendered.

German Writer Is Accused in Murder

At the time of the latter's death Lampel and Koehler were members of a communistic organization. Lampel and Koehler fell out and Koehler received letters threatening his life. Lampel denied the charges and the police are investigating the death by the latter.

WHAT EVERY YOUNG GIRL SHOULD KNOW
(Pictorial Review)

"You've got to teach strength so that the weak can be protected and teach it to girls and boys alike." Two boys came to see a girl of eleven who lives in our neighborhood. They got into an argument and started pommelling each other and it went on for some time, stopping them. The girl stumbled the tree under which the boys were rolling about and jumped right on top of them. She knocked out a tooth in her upper jaw, but she stopped the fight. She had what I call the right upbringing"—HENRY FORD.

"When a street car stopped at 15th st Bartell crawled under the front end and lay there. Motorman and conductor argued with him. He kept replying, 'Let me alone!' The conductor finally called police, who, with the aid of firemen, finally pulled Bartell out by the feet, although he clung to the rails. He was sent to an insane hospital and he did not recall the incident.

'PEDESTRIAN' DRUNK TEST RULED OUT OF COURT

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

What Has Gone Before

MARY PATRICIAN DAWN, pert, young, demi-brunette, sees her little brother, Dickie, fall in from after a dive in the lake. Pat brings up the apparently lifeless body. All hope seems gone when suddenly an airplane swoops down out of the sky. Pat's father arrives with a pal, Bruce, one youth as pilot. Quick action follows, then Dickie is safe. Later Guy Elliott kisses and takes Pat for an air ride. Happy days follow, with Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bruce with seductive lure of shining eyes. Later, while airplaning with Guy, Pat has a glimpse of Barbara in another plane.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER 6

THEY landed and sat a moment in the cockpit. The silver plane circled above them. It looked so free, so triumphant and joyous.

"Oh, isn't she game!" said Pat, filled with admiration.

Very. Too much so at times. It will be dark in a very few moments now. She should come down."

"Look—pretty, isn't it? An absolutely perfect landing! Come, we have to go over and congratulate her on her new plane and her recovery. He gave Pat no chance to demur, but rushed her across the field to Barbara's plane.

She was just climbing out. It seemed to Pat that she drew up ever so slightly in astonishment when she perceived the two of them.

Carelessly, as though Pat were his little sister, Guy introduced them, and he kept Pat's hand tucked for a moment in his arm—as he had caught it to rush her across the field. She felt glad for that.

"So you got your new plane, Mrs. Bruce, and it's a beauty. You're a very brave lady, indeed."

"They tested this out pretty thoroughly. Besides, I was so eager [illegible] to get it." Barbara pulled off her gloves and rested a slim, delicate hand on the wing. "I wish you'd hurry with your plane, Father tells me the new design soon will be out. You're doing the work. That's fine news. I've put in my order for the first one finished." She glanced with a winning smile, and for the first time directly at Pat: "Better hurry, Miss Dawn, and call for the second. You're a pilot in your own right?"

"No. I'm not; but how I'd love to be! What a thrilling sense of power to guide a ship through the sky. I doubt, though, that I'd ever have nerve enough to jump as you did. That was wonderful."

"When it's a case of jump or die, most of us jump. It's not courage, but instinct. Just the will to live. We've all got instinct—even the blackest pessimists. It's amazing how it persists," said Barbara as they walked to the clubhouse, "this will to live—this hunger for happiness."

She swung along, a little taller than Pat. Now and then she turned those dark eyes on her and gave a little soft laugh. She went on talking in this strain—easily, pleasantly. Pat liked it when the pale face looked to hers for confirmation. She thought she had never seen anyone so nearly white or any hair so gold. And the eyes were deep and beautiful and most mysteriously sad.

They seemed to follow as Barbara waved them good-by. She sat musing at the wheel of her automobile. And her eyes followed Pat and Guy.

"He must love her! A woman like that—" thought Pat as she settled quietly in Guy's small car. She felt herself with a strange, tremulous disturbance.

They drove without talking. And the silence between them seemed full of a rich, dark music—Barbara's voice.

"Why doesn't he talk?" whispered Pat's overcharged heart. Oh, why aren't all manner of important things being said?

Already she could see the hill—and now they were rounding the curve—coming right up to the garden hedge.

He yawned—stretched out his arms—looked down at her and laughed.

"You're pleased, aren't you? And it's very gorgeous—now your plane will be produced. Aren't you very thrilled?"

"I am, indeed."

"What shall you do when all your dreams come true?"

Live happy ever after, my darling Pat, unless you do down there to Stanford and forget me. Pat, shall you play at love with all the handsome college chaps?"

"I suppose so."

"Oh! Carelessly like that!"

"Well—they say one learns of these and those from this and that."

"Is it necessary to learn such things?"

In the dark she could feel his challenging, almost angry eyes. But she answered sharply: "Men think so! You'd be ashamed to ad-

Afflicted in Thousands Pray for Health at Tomb of Priest in Malden

Four-year-old Antoinette Boudreau of Salem knelt painfully supported by crutches at her mother's side at the tomb of Father Patrick Power in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden. "Walk, Antoinette," her mother said, and for the first time in her life the little girl arose on her feet without the aid of crutches.

Approximately 25,000 persons trekked into Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, in the largest outpouring of pilgrims since the miraculous cures at the grave of Father Patrick Power were first reported. From early morning until darkness descended over the graveyard they streamed through the gates, a parade of crippled and blind, with faith that their afflictions would be lifted from them. The rush was so great that cemetery officials decided to keep the shrine open all night. Thousands of vigil lights and candles gleamed about the grave in the darkness as extra squads of police stood guard. (Staff photo.)

SLASHES SELF; DIES IN RIVER

A discarded coat containing a suicide note led to the finding of a man's body in the Charles river near the Speedway racetrack in Brighton today.

The unidentified victim, about 55 years old and well dressed, had slashed both wrists before hurling himself into the river.

Officers William J. Erwin and Jeremiah F. Murphy of the Metropolitan District police found a green topcoat and a blue suit coat on the river bank behind the racetrack shortly after daybreak.

A pencil lay upon the topcoat and inside was the note declaring, "My body will be found in the river."

The two officers obtained grappling irons and 15 minutes later had recovered the body. The man was about five feet 10 inches in height, weighing 160 pounds, with gray hair, brown eyes and a medium complexion. His shoes and stockings were black, his tie blue and white and his suit blue.

The instrument with which the wrists were slashed was not found during the first search. The body was sent to the North mortuary, where an autopsy will be performed.

Day and Night Crowds See Cures at Tomb

The healing waters from the chalice on the tombstone of Rev Patrick Power in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, has brought health to seven more pilgrims, on whom miraculous cures have been reported.

During a day that saw about 25,000 persons kneeling in prayer before the shrine, the crowd was frequently swept into an exaltation of religious fervor when cures were reported.

Throughout the night the gates of the cemetery remained open.

A little five-year-old boy, deaf and dumb since birth, heard for the first time the voice of his mother, and had answered her in clear and ringing tones.

The throng at the grave listened in awe-struck silence as Mrs. Anna Panora of McKinley st., Revere, raised her little afflicted son to the level of the headstone and spoke to him.

"Jimmie!" she cried. "What?" the boy responded.

"Jimmie, say 'Father,'" his mother begged.

SALEM GIRL CURED

A four-year-old girl, Antoinette Boudreau of Salem, knelt painfully at the shrine, tiny crutches supporting her paralyzed legs. She had never walked since her birth.

Her mother carried her to a small nearby chapel which has been devoted recently to visitors to the cemetery. The child knelt again at the altar railing.

"Walk, Antoinette!" her mother urged.

The little girl rose from the altar rail. To the amazement of the thousands who watched, she left her crutches at the altar, walked erect and firmly down the aisle, out of the chapel, and back to the priest's grave, where she knelt again, tears flowing from her eyes.

Sarah Sammartanio, 15, of East 3d st., South Boston, also limped to the grave on crutches. Like Antoinette, she had never in her life walked without them. Suddenly she rose, placed the crutches on the grave, and walked away—cured.

PARALYSIS VICTIM

Joseph Hubazb, 14, a pupil at Revere junior high school, a victim of infantile paralysis which has crippled him for 18 months, visited the shrine for the second time. In the sight of amazed thousands he removed the braces from his legs and walked unaided to the chapel.

John McCann of Whipple st., Lowell, eight-year-old third grade pupil, came to the shrine and prayed that the strength in his paralyzed arm would be restored.

Within a few moments he raised his little arm above the grave, and in a shrill, childish voice, testified that he could move it without pain for the first time in his life.

A little four-year-old Dorchester boy, Edward Dildea, Jr., was brought to the shrine by Miss Rose Travers of Brookline. He walked for the first time in his life when he rose from prayer.

Francis Maggio of Waverly st., Everett, who two days ago reported that he was able to stand with out crutches after a visit to the shrine, announced today he had walked for half a mile without their aid.

CHURCH HEADS AT RECEPTION

A notable step in the Episcopal Church movement in this city was taken when dignitaries of the church and some 300 guests were hosts at the first reception in the remodelled and enlarged Diocesan House in Joy st.

The majority of the guests were individual donors who had helped toward the restoration of the old mansion to its former beauty, adding likewise in the erection of a new wing. In the receiving line were Bishop and Mrs. Charles L. Slattery, Bishop William Lawrence, Bishop Samuel G. Babcock and Mrs. Babcock, the Rev. Ernest J. Dennen, archdeacon of Boston and Mrs. Dennen, and members of the Diocesan Council.

Secret Is Out

Miss Audrey Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Butler of Braintree, Mass., and Elwyn L. Hennessey, son of Mrs. Raymond L. Short of this town were married on Aug. 10.

3 TOWNS FIGHT WOODS FIRE

Apparatus from Needham and Dedham and 50 members of the street department of the town of Brookline toiled for four hours to extinguish a fire, which swept nearly 1000 acres of land in the Causeway Meadows.

The blaze started near the Needham line, and, borne by a strong wind, traveled north to the tracks of the Needham branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad where the high gravel embankment stopped it.

Thousands of spruce and pine trees on 300 acres of land owned by the town of Brookline and constituting a part of its water-supply system were destroyed.

'NEVER SAW A BAD BOY,' GEORGIAN TELLS NEW ENGLAND TEACHERS

MOST OF 'EM ONLY SICK, HE SAYS

Lays Stress on Character; Spelling Not Essential to Salvation

That in his entire teaching career he had never come in contact with a really bad boy was the opinion of Dr Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools in Atlanta, Ga., at the second session today of the annual convention of the New England Association of School Superintendents, the Massachusetts School Superintendents' Association, and the New England Practice Training Association.

The convention is being held in the Gardner Auditorium at the State House.

Dr Sutton, who has charge of corporal punishment and the expulsion of children from schools, said:

He said that while he did not minimize the importance of education, he felt that a knowledge of the workings of the body is essential to the welfare of the child.

"A knowledge of spelling is not necessary to salvation," he pointed out. "I never knew a boy who was written by the Lord Himself and found in it one word of the three different ways Mary chose to write their names that it was difficult to decipher them.

"I would suggest that you have your stenographer sign your letters and you make your mark," he advised.

Of 37 boys labeled "criminally inclined" placed under his charge, he revealed, 26 later graduated from the University of Georgia, "and every one of them is now a fine upright citizen of the state."

He said the trouble lay in one of the schools with which he was connected turned out differing from five pints of milk.

"When the boy was in school," he added, "and the milk was pasteurized and sterilized, the boy underwent a mental and mental transformation."

Ee-Yow, Cowboy! Don't Pull Leather!

Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley ase he appeared riding a bucking broncho in the rear of police headquarters today. The "super" staged his private rodeo with "Jack Hoxie, movie star, with the 101 Ranch show, now at Boston Garden. "Cowboy Mike" wore a sombrero and a nonchalant grin as he galloped around like a native son of the open range. It was Hoxie's opinion that the "super" would make a "top-hand" on any man's ranch. COMMUNISTS ACCUSED BY WORKMEN

Independent Circle Members File Suit to Prevent the Change of Control

Charging that Communist members are trying to obtain control and dissipate the assets of the Independent Workmen's Circle of America, Samuel Wilcon and other members have filed a bill in equity in Suffolk Superior court.

The plaintiffs allege that William Caspar and Communist followers are attempting to seize all tangible property of the circle by admitting to membership groups of men in violation of by laws and state laws and by ousting officers not in sympathy with their views.

Judge Elisha Bishop of Superior Court today appointed Atty. Maurice Tobey as master to hear the case.

Former Asst. Atty.-Gen. Albert Hurwitz, for the plaintiffs, said the respondents had forced adoption of a resolution "recognizing" the Communist Party of America "as the party which leads the revolutionary class struggle of the working masses in America."

Mr. Hurwitz said the resolution was detrimental to the organization. He also said the respondents schemed control of the organization by declaring vacant the offices of president, general secretary and board of appeal.

In addition, Mr. Hurwitz said the safe, papers, documents and other effects of the organization had been taken over by some of the respondents and that the alleged illegal acts would deplete the assets.

The Circle has 30 branches, 29 of which are in Massachusetts, with headquarters at 88 Leverett st., West End. The organization has 2500 members and insurance of $4,000,000.

Perfect DIAMONDS

Absolutely Flawless

All Platinum Rings $100.

Finest Quality 10% Iridium

Here's The Story

Jason Weiler & Sons' Amsterdam Agency late in September notified Boston headquarters that they had secured a special lot of perfect—absolutely flawless—blue-white diamonds at a price radically under what was then being quoted on the Diamond Bourse. Moreover, our Agency informed us that this was the most favorable transaction that they have completed for many years, mentioning that the Weiler reputation, for spot cash purchasing, enabled them to obtain this lot of beautiful gem diamonds from a broker, who was compelled to liquidate a large portion of his stock.

While this importation was on its way across the Atlantic our ring designers prepared a value to match the diamonds. They have produced four exquisite ring styles in solid platinum, embellished with smaller cut diamonds on the sides. These solitaires, set complete with the perfect diamonds, are now ready for your inspection and selection.

In Our More Than Half Century of Diamond Selling Experience We Have Never Offered a Greater Value

One smaller cut Diamond set on Marquise design on each side of the center gem, $100.00.

Three smaller cut Diamonds set in step-side design on each side of the center gem, $100.00.

Two smaller cut Diamonds set in twin Marquise design on each side of the center gem, $100.00.

31 MEN NEAR DEATH AS FISHING SCHOONERS CRASH OFF CAPE

BOATS BACK IN PORT FOR REPAIRS

Alertness of Lookouts Averts Tragedy of Sea 3 Miles Off Highland Light

The fishing schooners Mary O'Hara and Rita B., both of Boston, were in collision three miles off Highland Light, Truro, early today.

Both boats were slightly damaged. The alertness of their respective lookouts prevented a possible tragedy as both ships, warned, veered from their courses just before they struck.

Both crews were below decks with the exception of lookouts and helmsmen.

RECOUNT HALTS AUTO AWARD

The winner of the Ford automobile in the Curley plurality vote estimating contest cannot be announced for several more days, due to the mayoralty vote recount situation.

The original plan of the Boston Evening American's special committee had been to open the sealed ballot box as soon as the official count had been announced. This official figure was expected next Monday.

Since the recount may bring changes either upward or downward in the tabulations, the figures finally given out after the official recount will obviously stand as the 1929 election results.

When the recount tabulation is known, in another week or 10 days, the committee will be notified to open the box. The 50,000 cards containing estimates of Curley's lead over Mansfield will then be examined.

As the situation now stands, any person who made the calculation that Curley would lead by a margin of anything from one vote to 20,000 or even more, will stand a chance of winning this automobile as the recount may alter the vote unexpectedly.

VICTIM'S PLEA FAILS TO SAVE

George Voukovsk, principal witness for the government against Michael Modrich of Shawmut ave., who was found guilty by a jury in the superior criminal court of stabbing Voukovsk in the shoulder and back, said as he left the stand:

"I hope nothing will happen to Mike. He's my cousin, you know."

Judge Philip J. O'Connell, however, took a different view and sentenced Modrich to one year in the House of Correction.

Modrich and Voukovsk lived together and took turns in cooking meals. Voukovsk was preparing the food one night and Modrich went out to buy cigarettes.

He was late in returning which irritated Voukovsk and an argument followed, which ended when Modrich drew a knife, and stabbed his friend.

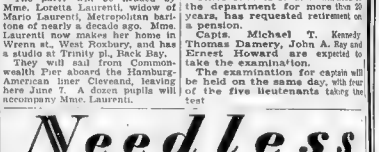
Needless Suffering



The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Bayer Aspirin! For there is scarcely any pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; to neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Bayer Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

For your own protection, buy the genuine. Bayer is safe. It's always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

MOTHER SEEKS $7000 FROM DAUGHTER

Fears She Will Have to Ask for Charity Unless It Is Returned

A temporary injunction has been granted by Judge Elias Brookings of Suffolk Superior Court to Mrs. Ellen J. Devlin, 74, of Chubbard at Quincy, mother of 12 children, restraining her daughter, Mrs. Rose Meaker of 20 Massachusetts ave., Quincy, from disposing of property valued at $7000.

The mother claims she turned the property over to her daughter last April for safe keeping, with the understanding it was to be returned to her when she asked for it. She says she asked her daughter to return the property a week or ten days ago, but the daughter refused.

Mrs. Devlin says she fears she may have to ask for assistance of a charity organization if the property she claims as her own is not returned.

The case will be tried on its merits later in Norfolk Superior Court at Dedham.

Old Teacher Resigns

After serving 44 years in the Chelsea schools, Miss Ruth Dehon of the Spencer ave. school faculty will retire from active duty Dec. 1.

Ride Him, Super! He Sure Does—And How!

Amid the shouts and cheers of an assembled multitude, Michael H. "Cowboy" Crowley, superintendent of the Boston police department, wearing a broad sombrero made a non-stop ride from the alley behind headquarters on Berkeley st., to Stanhope st., and return today, astride a broncho, long since "busted."

As the genial "super" mounted his steed, someone from the police headquarters pressroom told him the horse was saving in the middle, but the beast carried its burden successfully and said burden rode the horse with equal success thus earning the title already mentioned.

The nag was brought to police headquarters by Col. Zack Miller and Jack Hoxie of the 101 Ranch Wild West show, now playing at the Boston auditorium.

MRS. WHITING FOR DRY LAW

An orgy of lawlessness if the 18th amendment is repealed was predicted today by Mrs. George Whiting of Cambridge, member of the constitution defense committee, when she addressed delegates to the meeting of the International Order of the King's Daughters.

She attacked the repeal activities of Mrs. Pauline Sabin, president of the National Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform, declaring that Mrs. Sabin had no substitute plan and calling on all women to work against the proposed referendum next year.

"We must organize to fight this thing," said Mrs. Whiting. "We will have a house to house canvass to secure names and pledges in support of prohibition. We must save our commonwealth from the orgy of lawlessness that will come unless we defeat this measure."

A[illegible] Mr A[illegible] feet [illegible] keen, [illegible] and [illegible] what the author's [illegible] term detective comedy. There is no fuss or [illegible] in this new play at the Plymouth; only a gentlemanly murder. Whereupon Mr Milne's characters dig into the thing for two hours before the assassin is discovered. Only the cast is in any doubt; the spectator has full knowledge of what has happened without leaving his seat.

WITH the theater surcharged with grisly mystery plays, shockers and hair-raisers, this new fashion of endowing crime with a veneer of refinement certainly has its uses. It is easy on the nerves, though two of the blackest gunmen you ever met turn up as house guests at a lovely week-end party in dear old Sussex. English gentlemen to the core, they, a trifle heavy in polite felicitations, is amusing enough if you can only free your mind from a suspicion that all, from the murdered gentlemen down to his pretty ward, are custom made nitwits. Only the girl in the case, played by Vivian Tobin, shows signs of disputing the officially established evidence that the old gentleman is a suicide.

WITH only a woman's intuition to guide her, she displays a brand of courage that never fails with a sympathetic audience, no matter how illogical it may appear or how difficult to accept without a smile. It is no job for a nice girl with so many strong men running about the place. If the dialogue creaks it is not Mr. Milne's fault; he at last keeps herself quite neat and well in hand.

OLD friends drop in to give the comedy life and color; Harry Davenport just to be about, and Harry Beresford to complete one situation as rural constable hot on the job. Mr Beresford plays the simple-minded dullwitted policeman so naturally that we hasten to apologize for holding certain dreadful suspicions. He must have learned the trade in some good school.

IN "The Perfect Alibi" the dramatist takes the popular mystery drama and puts it in reverse. The suspense, if any, is for the actors and not the audience. If the idea, as it works out is not wildly exciting there is still left three acts of amusing entertainment and some excellent characterization.

FIRST OF MENJOU'S FRENCH FILMS STILL IN MAKING

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

ON Board Texas Special En-route to Hollywood, Nov. 5—Takes almost as long in France as it does in Holly wood to get a cast assembled and a production under way We would have thought that Adolphe Menjou by this time had finished his first French film and was ready to begin a second Not so. He is just getting ready to begin work and he chooses as his leading woman the same one with whom he made his debut in the movies, the fair-haired Katherine Carver.

Lettelia O. Parsons

George K. Arthur, who is doing the two-a-day and getting some really good results, sails for Paris on Dec. 3 to play an important role in the Menjou picture to be called "Mon Gosse de Pere."

The story is by Leopold Le Marchand and to my rather feeble French translated, it is something read "My Brat of a Father." Maybe I am wrong about the title.

TAMING FILM SHREW PROVES 'TOUGH' BUT JOYOUS JOB

MARY PICKFORD BUTT OF DOUG'S TEMPER IN PLAY

GIRLS, what would you do if —You were waiting at the church dressed in beautiful bridal robes; your guests were assembled; your attendants were ready; the organ was playing; the minister was becoming impatient —and the bridegroom was missing? When he does finally put in an appearance dressed like a tramp —what would you do? That is the problem faced by Mary Pickford in "Taming of the Shrew," which comes to Loew's State next week.

Douglas

And it is just one of the hilarious situations furnished by Shakespeare in his immortal glorious comedy which brings "America's Sweetheart" and her famous husband, Douglas Fairbanks to the screen for the first time as co-stars. It is in this situation we find Miss Pickford as the stormy vexatious Katherine getting a taste of her own medicine from the dashing, swaggering, conceited, yet lovable Douglas as Petruchio, he who undertakes to tame the spitfire of Padua.

Up to this time in the famous comedy, Katherine has held the whip hand. She has succeeded in making life unbearable for everyone in the vicinity until her meeting with the magnetic Petruchio. How Miss Pickford handles the situation and how it ultimately ends makes "Taming of the Shrew" one of the outstanding comedies of the year.

Director Sam Taylor, the man who directed Miss Pickford in "Coquette," has given the production of "Taming of the Shrew" a deft touch, a subtleness which makes it one chuckle from beginning to end, enhanced by the original Shakespearean dialogue in the all-talking picture.

Supporting the two stars, as members of a featured cast, are Edwin Maxwell, as Baptista, Dorothy Jordan, as the beautiful mild-mannered Bianca; Geoffrey Wardwell, as Hortensio; Joseph Cawthorn, as Gremio, and funny Clyde Cook as the faithful servant Grumio.

Beautiful Barb

BARBARA KENT

"WELCOME DANGER."

LLOYD GRABS CUTE QUEUE

MOTION picture men have some pretty tough assignments to handle, and if you don't think they have try to find in this town or any other town, for that matter, a Chinese with a queue. Twenty years ago, or even later than that, you could not find a Chinese who was without a queue. But the old order of things changeth. Harold Lloyd had a sequence in "Welcome Danger," now at the Uptown and Washington St. Olympia, which called for an Oriental with an old fashioned queue. This could have been faked, perhaps, but Lloyd always insists on the real thing.

Search of Los Angeles failed to reveal one. It seems Chinamen can go to their celestial reward now even if their heads are shaved. Then the entire Pacific Coast was scoured, and at last in San Francisco, there was found the last adherent on the Pacific slope to the custom of China before she joined the republics.

Wang Lee is his name, he is 65 years old, and during the filming of "Welcome Danger" he got his first trip to Los Angeles, or any place else in a first class Occidental railroad train. Old Wang landed in the gold rush days, and has been rushing ever since—for laundry and delivering it. He was not greatly excited, however, about his picture debut.

Midnight Show Tonight at Chelsea Olympia

Manager Charles A. Goldreyer of the Public Olympia in Chelsea, will initiate the midnight show idea for his theater tonght. Regularly the house would change its feature tomorrow, but this week begins its new bill at 11:30 tonight. The big film is "The Cock-Eyed World."

NEW PLAYS TRIED OUT IN SESSION

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 8—A bone-crushing Michigan eleven that cannot be stopped by straight football will be met by one of the most deceptive attacks that the Harvard eleven has ever shown, here tomorrow afternoon when the Crimson clashes with the Wolverines.

The Crimson eleven ran through a long drill of kicking, passing and plays in the compact Michigan Stadium today after a light breakfast at the Michigan Union. The players were then whisked away to the Oakland Hills Country Club, about 40 miles away. They will stay there until game time tomorrow.

The bowl was cleared of all possible Michigan scouts and then the Harvard players under the direction of Head Coach Arnold Horween and Backfield Coach Eddie Casey ran through a half dozen new plays, no one of which has been used in any of the Crimson games to date.

A triple pass, ran off so perfectly that Glenn Warner would have good ground for a plagiarism suit, is the feature of the new Harvard attack. The boys have only a double pass which differs from anything in that regard that they have shown to date.

COUNT ON GILLIGAN

Forward passing was also in order and Tommy Gilligan tossed home accurate passes right into the hands of his ends and brother backs. The feeling is prevalent that Gilligan will attain the stardom that he is held capable of against the heavy and slow Wolverine.

The starting backfield, though will be generalled by Barry Wood Eliot Putnam, Charlie Devens and Wally Harper complete the quartet

Nick Kennard's squad of dropkickers also worked out for several minutes with Wood showing the best distance and accuracy

He put several over from the 35 yard line at difficult angles. Duke Dunn, who graduated from Michigan in 1925, put the line through its tricks.

Duke took off the coat and vest, rolled up his shirt sleeves and demonstrated what they might expect from the 1925 tackle to tackle Wolverine line

SCOUTS REPORT.

Michigan has been scouted by Capt. Eddy Murray of the 1928 Harvard team and Fred Gillette, Crimson star. The report of the two scouts led Horween to believe that no team could defeat the Wolverine with a straight football attack.

Both Ohio State and Illinois outplayed the Michigan eleven and Harvard will attempt to do the same.

Michigan's stadium drew the enthusiasm of Bill Bingham, Arnold Horween and the other Harvard officials. It is compact, the goal posts being within reaching distance of the spectators seats. It is strictly a football field and one can see from every one of the 87,000 seats. The field has been sold out since October 8, the Michigan authorities say.

FLIES AGAINST RAMS

Chessy Antos, above, Eagle backfield star, who will play for Boston College against Fordham tomorrow at Fenway Park. Antos is a brilliant broken field runner and is hard to stop once he gets beyond the line of scrimmage. He will have his work cut out for him, however, as the Fordham line is one of the strongest in the East.

MICHIGAN READY FOR HARVARD

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 8—Showing more drive and fight than any time previously this season, the Michigan football squad was marking time today with only a light signal drill scheduled as a final effort to round into shape for the Harvard game tomorrow.

Following the short signal practice Coach Harry Kipke has scheduled for today the Wolverine squad will be taken to the Barton Hills Country Club, about five miles from the city where the men will be quartered until just before game time tomorrow.

Far away from the noise and bustle which fills this small college town on the eve of a big game, Coach Kipke and his men will hold their final skull session, laying their plans for the season's most important battle.

The three defeats suffered by Michigan already are forgotten. Judging from the pep shown by the squad in its final hard workout the squad is unbeatable. Coach Kipke is hoping that his men will carry the same mental attitude into the battle with the Crimson.

The reason for all the optimism is the spirit and accomplishments of the squad in its last two scrimmage sessions.

"For the first time this year our men have shown the real Michigan fighting spirit. Plays that heretofore have not clicked are working smoother. Every man on the squad is in fine physical condition and all are imbued with the spirit of beating Harvard. Although we respect the strength of the Crimson eleven, our boys feel that Harvard can be beaten, and if they remain in that state of mind we may record an upset."

Kipke named his starting lineup but intimated that he might change his mind at the last minute. The Wolverine eleven will start a backfield composed of Sinnatt at quarter, Dahlem and Gembis at the halves with Morrison at fullback.

Stationed on the line will be Captain Truskowski and Hewitt at the ends, Poorman and Auer as tackles, Fee and Steinke as guards, with Bovard at center.

The Harvard squad was slated to work out this afternoon in the stadium, after which the Crimson eleven will leave for Ypsilanti, eight miles distant, not returning until game time tomorrow.

TUFTS OFF TODAY FOR AMHERST

THE Tufts football team will leave this afternoon for Amherst, where they will meet the strong Amherst eleven tomorrow.

This is the first time the two teams have met on the gridiron in years and they enter the game evenly matched, with the outcome a question mark.

Each team has lost but one game this year, Tufts losing to New Hampshire and Amherst losing its opener to Princeton by one touchdown.

Arthur Sampson will take 28 men on the trip, the squad being scheduled to stop in Northampton tonight and making the short hop to Amherst tomorrow morning.

The men making the trip are: centers, Tobey, Crockett; guards Rachdorf, Ruggeiro, Giles, Mill, Budnick and Morse; tackles, Littleton, Staffon, Story, Butters and Wilkinson; ends, Godfrey, Arlanson, Peck, Ellsworth and MacRae; backs, LeCain, LeMaistre, Ingalls, Holland, Kelly, Gibbons, Muskavitz, Wright, Merchant and Pittock.

The team will be considerably strengthened by the return of Hit Holland, the signal barker and interfering back, whose defensive work has been so outstanding for the Jumbos this year.

Coach Sampson intimated that his starting lineup would be Arlanson and Godfrey, ends; Staffon and Littleton, tackles; Rachdorf and Ruggeiro, guards; Tobey, center; backs, LeCain and LeMaistre, Holland and either Ingalls or Muskavitz.

'Cav' Has Strong Team to Pit Against B. C.

By RALPH GILROY
Former Princeton All-American Back

WHILE Arnie Horween and his Harvard warriors will be striving to bring home the bacon from Ann Arbor and while Dartmouth will be fighting for a victory over Tuss McLaughrey's Brown Bears down at Providence, one of the best battles of the current season will be in progress out at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon, when Maj. Cavanaugh will throw into the fray against Boston College the strongest eleven since he took command at Fordham.

"Cav" showed a lot of confidence in the strength of his football squad by scheduling two engagements against major opponents within four days.

He invited the West Virginia "Mountaineers" to come on to New York to engage his eleven last Tuesday, which was election day and a holiday in New York.

After a gruelling battle in which the Major's Rams should have scored at least three or four times, the Fordhamites had to be content with a scoreless tie.

THE football world is wondering if Cavanaugh's eleven has recovered sufficiently to play its best brand of football against the Eagles.

The physical wear and tear of the hard battle with West Virginia should take its toll on Fordham out on the Fenway turf tomorrow afternoon.

After two years of mediocre success Cavanaugh seems to have developed an eleven which can hold its own with the best in the East. The most noticeable achievement of the current Fordham campaign was a decisive 26 to 0 win over "Dick" Meehan's New York University eleven earlier in the season.

The Major's eleven is one of the few undefeated outfits in the eastern section but has two tie games in its record. Davis-Elkins managed to get a 6 to 6 tie two weeks ago.

TOMORROW'S struggle will be a battle between two undefeated elevens, since Joe McKenney's Boston College eleven also has a clean slate. Joe's outfit has one tie game in its record, that against Villanova, a 7-to-7 affair, earlier in the season.

The Fordham eleven has played against stronger opposition than have the McKenney boys. The Villanova contest was the hardest test for the Eagles, whereas Fordham has taken on three tough opponents in N. Y. U., Davis-Elkins and West Virginia.

The experience gained in these three battles should make Fordham a formidable opponent tomorrow, but the Eagles should be fresher and in better physical condition for the 60-minute battle.

MAJ. CAVANAUGH will show the Fenway audience a big strong rush line with one of the best snapper backs in the East in Capt. Stano. Stano has been a consistent star in every engagement this fall and is right now being mentioned by the metropolitan football critics as an outstanding candidate for the "All-Eastern" eleven.

With a big, heavy forward wall, Cavanaugh will undoubtedly try to hammer the Eagle line into submission. In her game with N. Y. U. Fordham used the aerial game to great advantage and in Murphy, the Ram's quarterback, Cavanaugh has a good passer.

FORDHAM will, no doubt, take to the air, but in doing so the Major will remember last year's

FORDHAM 5-3 PICK OVER B. C.

BOSTON COLLEGE and Fordham, undefeated elevens, will stage their annual wrangle on the greensward of Fenway Park before a capacity crowd of more than 30,000 tomorrow afternoon. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

The Ram is favored at 5-3 odds to butt the Eagle into his first defeat since 1927. Rival records show that Fordham has a very distinct edge on Joe McKenney's gang from the Heights.

The dopesters are getting ga-ga trying to settle this one. They know that Fordham's team is one of the best Maj. Cavanaugh has ever produced. But Boston College's power is a mystery for the Eagles are really an unknown quantity

Because of this, and the very important fact that B. C. has every psychological angle in its favor, many, who actually believe Fordham will beat B. C. by three or four touchdowns, are not risking their bankrolls

The grim old Major and his Maroon giants came into Boston today. Cav will be honored at a big reception in South Boston tonight. He's coming back home to a mighty welcome but Cav never liked the task of beating B. C. and the former pupil, Joe McKenney

However, he's confident. And his heart will be cracked in half a dozen places if Fordham doesn't come through for him. A year ago he was defeated, 19-7, but

ARMY ON WAY TO ILLINOIS

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 8—Final preparations for the Illinois game were completed by Army as they ran through a signal drill and a brief workout on passing and running plays. There was no semblance of scrimmage. All hands are in perfect physical condition. The Cadet corps was assembled on the field to give the team a rousing send-off.

A squad of 38 players, in charge of Coach Biff Jones, left here on a special train. They will arrive at their destination some time today and will be quartered at Danville, where the team will have a final signal rehearsal

The West Point party will be in charge of Lieut.-Col. W. K. Wilson, who will represent Maj.-Gen Smith, superintendent of the Military Academy, who is unable to attend.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Using the irons, you are often confronted with the necessity of making a three-quarter swing or a half swing.

The first thing you decide in an iron play is the club you will use plus how strongly you will use it. That is, we will say you decide to pull a mashie. The green we will say is open in front and the pitch is about 100 yards, so if the ball falls either in the opening to the green or beyond the shot will be good enough since the roll will do no harm. Now it is obvious that about a half swing with the mashie will be sufficient here. This calls for a stance about half open, which will be about midway between a full open stance and an ordinary square stance. The reason for this is because you here wish to choke your mashie 'own a bit—that is, you don't want its full power, hence the half back swing. Now the proper way to choke a club is not with your arms, but with your stance. This half open stance cuts short your back swing, and makes you stop half way back. You go ahead and swing otherwise exactly the same as for a full swing. Having determined to use a half swing, the half open stance makes your action automatic; also you can, having assumed your stance, concentrate your entire attention on the ball.

Codmans to Play Rosary A. C. Sunday

The Codman A. A. will play the Rosary A. C. of South Boston at the Norfolk St. Playground, Dorchester, on Sunday afternoon. In four years the Codmans have won 41 of 42 games.

The Codmans have three ex-Dorchester high captains on their roster, which, by the way, is peculiar in that it consists of five groups of brothers. There are Reg. Arnold and Ken Dyer; Joe and Louis Silverman; Joe and Ted Dalton; J. and D. Moran, and J and P. Ryan, playing on the first Codman eleven.

Both Godfrey and Byrne Have Licenses Revoked

BANNED OUT OF LOCAL RINGS

today was attended by Commissioners Buckley and Niland. Gen. Foote did not attend the meeting, but concurred with the finding of his associates.

No action was taken against Jimmy Dougherty, Godfrey's manager, or the handlers of either boxer. The blame for the ring fiasco has been placed on Godfrey and Byrne.

Brassill and Commissioner Buckley contend that the bout was one of THOSE THINGS.

"Godfrey flicked with his left hand all through the bout," said Buckley at the ringside. "He did not try to do any execution with his right. Byrne, on the other hand, contented himself with hitting Godfrey on the shoulder. I do not believe either man gave his best efforts."

Brassill nailed the bout after giving three warnings. As early as the end of the third round the referee went to Godfrey's corner and warned the negro against stalling and told him to fight.

"This is the last time I shall warn you," declared the referee.

Brassill, however, stepped in between the big fellows in the sixth round and gave them a third warning.

When the action wasn't speeded up in the seventh frame, Brassill halted the bout and entered his verdict of "no contest."

GODFREY and Byrne will each forfeit $2000. Under the Massachusetts boxing law no provision is made for the disposition of forfeited purses and the money is held by the club staging the show.

In some States, there is a provision in the boxing laws which calls for forfeited purses to be turned over to some public fund.

There have been few instances in Massachusetts of where the boxers have not been paid. When the purses have been ordered held up, the public has not got any part of its money back, while the club staging the show has usually been involved in litigation.

Boxing clubs would prefer having the money held up in bouts donated to some public fund as it would relieve them of much adverse criticism.

ANY first class heavyweight would have knocked out the Godfrey who faced Byrne. Perhaps George did carry Byrne, but no headliner would have been obliged to have asked any concessions from the Leiperville giant who showed in the Arena.

Godfrey weighed 255 pounds. He was hog fat with huge rolls of excess weight around his waist line. He tired quickly from the lightest kind of effort. Apparently Godfrey trained for the bout in a wheel chair at Atlantic City.

Pete Herman of Boston disposed of Joe Dow of Lawrence in four frames. Steve Ketchell of Haverhill kayoed Jake Hicks of Cambridge in two rounds, while Sammy Mango of the North End upset Pat Santo of Revere in four chapters.

Andy and Fay Kosky will meet at an Arena club show a week from tonight.

McGILL WINS OVER KAPLAN

Pat McGill, the fighting Wakefield Irishman, chalked up his fifth straight mat win of the season, last night, at the Grand Opera House, when he defeated Abe Kaplan, the Jewish champion, in two straight falls. The first fall came after 28 minutes and 50 seconds of grappling, a toe hold doing the trick. The second and final fall was won in 14 minutes and 30 seconds with the aeroplane whirl.

The semifinal bout was also a rip-roarer with Boo "Ibber" McCoy of Cambridge, turning in one of the best performances of his career, defeating Harry Mammas of Springfield, a wrestler of the Stasiak type. The Cantab wrestler managed to come out on top, winning in 31 minutes 20 seconds with a head and hip lock.

McCoy by his work last night proved that he will be a figure for championship honors before the season is over.

ANDY MARTIN TO BATTLE KOSKY

One week from tonight, Fay Kosky, brilliant featherweight from the West Coast, will make his Boston debut at the Arena against Andy Martin of the South End, outstanding contender for the featherweight championship of the world.

Three weeks ago, they fought in Providence, R. I., and Kosky won the decision over the shadow of the South End.

Martin's defeat at the hands of Kosky was one of the major upsets of the season. Martin had trounced Bud Taylor, Bushey Graham, and Eddie Shea in turning in three of the finest performances ever seen in a local ring.

Previously he had whipped Benny Bass, Dominick Petrone, Johnny Datto, and every featherweight of prominence in the world. Then Kosky came East, an unknown in this part of the country, and defeated him.

Kosky will arrive here Sunday and will start training Monday at one of the local gyms. Tickets for the show will go on sale immediately at the Arena A. C., 333 Washington st., room 314, and reservations may be made by telephoning Hubbard 4642 or Liberty 8707.

B. C. H. PLAYER BADLY HURT IN GAME

With only a minute left to play in a football game between the freshmen of Boston College high school and Cathedral high school at the Randolph st. playground, South End, yesterday afternoon, Francis Golgay, 14, of 259 Harvard st., Cambridge, playing end for the Boston College high team received an injury to his spine which physicians at City Hospital fear may prove serious.

Golgay was running interference for one of his teammates when an opposing player lunged at him in an attempt to take him out of the play. The force of the impact threw Golgay to the ground and when he failed to get up he was carried off the field. An examination by a doctor at the field revealed that the boy's injuries was serious and he was immediately removed to the City Hospital.

St. John's Prep and Dean Academy Elevens Meet Today

GRID RIVALS CLASH AT WIGWAM

DEAN ACADEMY of Franklin marches into Braves Field this afternoon to clash with a splendid St. John's prep eleven. A fine record for this fall plus the presence of a flock of individual stars in the St. John's lineup makes Tom McNamara's team the favorite.

Though the Wigwam is a scene of battle [illegible] many of the St. John's boys are former Boston school athletes. Coming to the Hub will be [illegible] a visit back home to these lads.

Joe Santaniello and Tom O'Donnell, who played for East Boston high, have been playing the best football of their careers for St. John's. Santaniello, right tackle, has as hard a charge as any lineman in prep school ranks.

O'Donnell, left end, is a fine pass receiver and is capable on defense. He can fan his way through interference and make the tackle on defense as well as many college players.

Jim Doherty, who captained English high, is right end of the St. John's team. He has played well all season. Doherty and O'Donnell make a great pair of wingmen. Jim Cowhig, left half of the eleven formerly [illegible] for Boston Commerce.

Dean has some [illegible] boys, Johnny Cormier and Jack Walsh and Tom Bell of Dean. Coach [illegible] Lynn and St. Mary's of Lynn [illegible] are the [illegible] Dean [illegible] Lynn. Walsh [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible].

Roxbury Latin [illegible] with Country Day today at the field of the latter. Frank Allen, at left end of the Roxbury Latin team ranks high in any list of private school wingmen. He has a lot of courage, is fast and knows how to handle himself. Allen should make a good college end before many years pass.

Country Day expects to give the visiting team rough entertainment. The schools are old rivals and always put up a fine battle.

Newton high goes to Cambridge tomorrow afternoon for an important Suburban League tilt with Rindge Tech. Rindge Tech has four points in the standing of the league and a win will put Tommy Murphy's eleven into a tie with Somerville, which leads the league with six points.

Essex Aggies come to Stadium to tackle the [illegible] eleven of the [illegible] schools. The latter has [illegible] total of 382 [illegible] points to their better than [illegible] average.

Stoneham [illegible] the class of the [illegible] Greater Boston school team and [illegible] tar with Bill [illegible] at the field going well [illegible] functioning properly, [illegible] could have any [illegible] to the limit.

Bill Broderick [illegible] ended, ed Salem eleven to [illegible] N. H., to play the [illegible] high football team. Salem seems to [illegible] stuff to roll right through the rest of its schedule without a [illegible] though the contest tomorrow is no walk away.

11 Grid Games to Go on Air Tomorrow

The following games will be broadcast [illegible] afternoon:

CALZA HERE TO TRAIN FOR GO

George Calza, the Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, is in Boston. The former Hub favorite, who meets Ruddy La Ditzi, the crack Hungarian, in the semifinal bout of the all-star card to be presented by Billy Avery at Mechanics Building next Wednesday night, is here to complete his training.

Calza, appearing in splendid condition, came from Springfield, where he tossed Paul Jones with considerable ease on Wednesday night. After visiting a number of his old friends, the husky Italian star went to a gymnasium and worked out for more than an hour.

"I feel better than ever," said the Italian idol, "and this time I'm confident I can wrestle my way into a match with the man whom I consider the greatest grappler I've ever seen, Dick Shikat."

Calza declared he has been angling for a shot at La Ditzi for three years. "La Ditzi deliberately ran out of a match with me in Philadelphia several years ago," chirped the Italian, "and I've been after him ever since. I understand they had a lot of trouble getting him to agree to this Boston bout. I have great respect for La Ditzi, but I'm confident I can throw him."

Avery's card as a whole is unquestionably one of classiest staged in Boston in years. In the feature tussle Dick Shikat, recognized as the world's title holder in New York, Pennsylvania and numerous other states, takes on George Manich, the giant Pole.

The third match brings together Jim McMillen, former All-American football star at the University of Illinois, and Joe Stecca, the latest Italian hero. The other bouts are Hans Steinke and Bull Komar; Carl Pojello and Glen Wade.

Crusaders Ready for Game With Terriers

Worcester, Nov. 8—Holy Cross smeared Boston University plays in its final workout. The first-string squad was divided and the probable starting line-up was given the opportunity of breaking up the plays of the invaders as brought back to the squad by Holy Cross scouts.

Head Coach Cleo O'Donnell, at the end of the long workout, declared that, in his opinion, the Crusader squad was in fine shape for this time of the year. Barring injury tomorrow, the team will be at top shape for the game with Harvard a week later.

MYERS' ARM IS BADLY INJURED

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—Dave Myers, New York University's star negro quarterback, probably will be kept out of Saturday's game with Georgia, but this question will not be definitely decided until after an examination tomorrow. In today's practise, Myers' left shoulder drooped and his left arm hung limply at his side. He tossed the ball around with his right hand, though a port-sider.

Myers said today that he was not in condition to play, and that three times during the Georgetown game last week he had told a trainer that he was hurt. The trainer, however, failed to relay the message to Coach Chick Meehan, and Myers remained in the game.

Bentley Likes Job of Manager

Big Shift in B. U. Line for Holy Cross Game

WHEN Boston University faces Holy Cross at Worcester tomorrow, four new faces will be found in the Terrier forward wall.

Two tackles, a guard, and an end have been promoted to the varsity as a result of their stellar showing in recent scrimmages, and the B. U. coaches hope the shift will enable the Terriers to hold the Crusaders.

George Cataldo and Lee Stone have returned to their berths at left and right tackle respectively, after a long period of service with the scrubs.

Both Cataldo and Stone started the first game of the season against West Point but in the next contest on the schedule with New Hampshire, Dick Knowles and Lou Lobel were injected in the varsity lineup and have held forth until this latest shakeup.

The former first string tackles have shown a new lease of life in the past week and have clinched their old positions.

After a season of ups and downs, Joe Barrett has finally established himself as first string right guard and will probably remain a fixture at that post for the remainder of the year.

H-D YEARLINGS AT STADIUM

While Harvard's varsity football team will be trying to make it five straight in the game with Michigan at Ann Arbor tomorrow, about 10,000 thousand of the faithful will gather in the Stadium to watch the Harvard freshmen battle with Dartmouth's 1933 eleven.

Prospects for the Caniab yearlings to come through with a win look pretty slim just now. They have yet to down any of their opponents this year.

TOTAL DELIVERED PRICE

Freight and Delivery. An authorized amount to cover the freight charges paid by the dealer and the cost of unloading, inspecting, supplying fuel and oil—preparing the car for delivery to you.

Accessories. A charge for any additional accessories that may be purchased.

Frankness about automobile prices

THERE is a difference between the list (f. o. b.) price of a new automobile and the price you pay the dealer.

What makes that difference?

General Motors dealers tell you frankly on their standard price tag. You see exactly what you are paying for freight and delivery, for additional accessories that may be desired.

Nothing is hidden. Nothing is added. There is no extra charge to permit a seemingly better trade-in offer. There is no extra charge to cover advertising, etc. The tag tells all.

Make this tag your guide in comparing automobile values. Look beyond the list price. Find out what is added by the dealer to make up the delivered price. For it is the delivered price that you pay.

Marsters Still Triple Threat in Spite of Injury

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

AL REFUSES TO REMAIN QUIET

By BILL GRIMES

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 8—For three months, at least, Al Marsters, greatest of all time Dartmouth backs, is destined to wear a steel brace to support the fracture of the transverse process at the third and fourth lumbar vertebrae.

According to Dr. John F. Gile, the attending physician, Marsters will be able to take some light exercise in the spring.

Contrary to the reports which were sent out of this town, that Al's injury resulted from a kick received in the Yale game, Dr. Gile is of the opinion that the fracture came from a wrench applied to the lower end of the big back muscles, which snapped the lumbar vertebrae at their bases.

He does not believe that a blow alone could sever these lumbar vertebrae but admitted that a kick coming at the instant of the wrench might have played a minor role.

This information will be of great interest to Yale in general and Frank Marting in particular.

At present Al Marsters is confined to his bed in the Dick Hall House, where he will remain for at least two weeks. The steel brace which he must wear during the long winter months, will not be ready until the first of next week. In the meantime, his only treatment consists of having his back baked every three hours.

For three seasons, Al Marsters has kept his opponents on their toes watching that he did not break away. Although out of football, he is still a triple threat, so far as Dr. Gile and his nurses are concerned.

He has been ordered to remain perfectly quiet, but the moment the doctor's and nurses' backs are turned, the bulbs and squirms around with about the same agility he did on the gridiron. Already on two occasions he has been caught out of bed, and the next similar offense will call for drastic action being taken to keep Al on his back.

Since his injury, which has forced him out of the game, when he was headed for All-American selection became known Al Marsters has received thousands of letters and telegrams. Telegrams from all over the country have been pouring in to the Dick Hall House for Al every hour of the day, while each delivery contains fan mail which would make the most popular movie fan green with envy.

MARSTERS is enjoying every minute of his stay at the hospital. And, he is the life of the place. He keeps up a running conversation from the moment he wakes up until he drops off to sleep.

Although the visiting hours are from 2 to 4 and 6:30 to 8, Al is never without company. By hook or crook, visitors manage to get by the information desk, and hours before the regular visiting periods Al's quota is exhausted but still they come.

Even in a tragedy, there is always someone with a perverted sense of humor. With one exception, all of the messages received by the Dartmouth star were of sympathetic and good cheer nature. But a former Exeter and Yale man took it upon himself to send Al a penny postal card upon which was written, "Why, O, why, didn't you trail along to Yale with Hoot Ellis and Butch Loud, instead of suffering under the sting of three consecutive defeats, while Alvin Booth is sitting on the top of the world." And he had the nerve to sign his name and class at Exeter.

MARSTERS is taking his injury in the most philosophical manner. He admits that he had it coming to him, for it was the first time that he was ever injured in a game. He went through Arlington high, Exeter, his freshman and sophomore years without more than the usual number of minor bruises.

He was put out of the game last season during a dummy scrimmage. Until last fall, Marsters bore such a charmed life that he never even bothered to use ankle bandages and only on rare occasions would he agree to rub down, even after a tough game.

Naturally, Al is very much disappointed that he must stay out of the remaining Dartmouth games, but he is particularly disheartened over the fact that he will be unable to play in the annual East vs. West game in San Francisco next Thanksgiving from New Haven, to received a letter from Dick Hanley, who will be in charge of the East team, informing him that he had been one of Hanley's first selections.

Al was very anxious to make a good showing before Hanley, as there was talk of him being chosen to assist Hanley at Northwestern next season, which would have given him a chance to study law at the Evanston institution.

AL will remain at the Dick Hall House until just before Thanksgiving and he will accompany the Dartmouth team to Philadelphia for the Cornell-Penn game and then go to Atlantic City with the squad until Saturday, when he will return to the Quaker City for the Navy game.

Marsters had decided to take a law school course either at Harvard or Northwestern. If he remains in the East, he will do some newspaper syndicate work during the football season, as he does not feel that he can afford the time off from his studies to take up coaching. As soon as he receives his sheepskin from Dartmouth, he will go down Maine to again be a councilor at Izzy Zarakov's boys' camp.

SPEAKING of Dartmouth's chances for the rest of the season, Al believes that the Green will go as well, if not better than when he was in there. He joked about himself as a quarterback.

"They can never criticize me for showing the scouts our plays. We had a number of plays perfected that I forgot to call."

Through the foresight and thoughtfulness of E. K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, Al Marsters will be able to follow the Dartmouth-Brown game tomorrow afternoon. If that game is not broadcast, E. K. Hall has arranged for a direct wire from the Brown field to Al Marsters in the Dick Hall House.

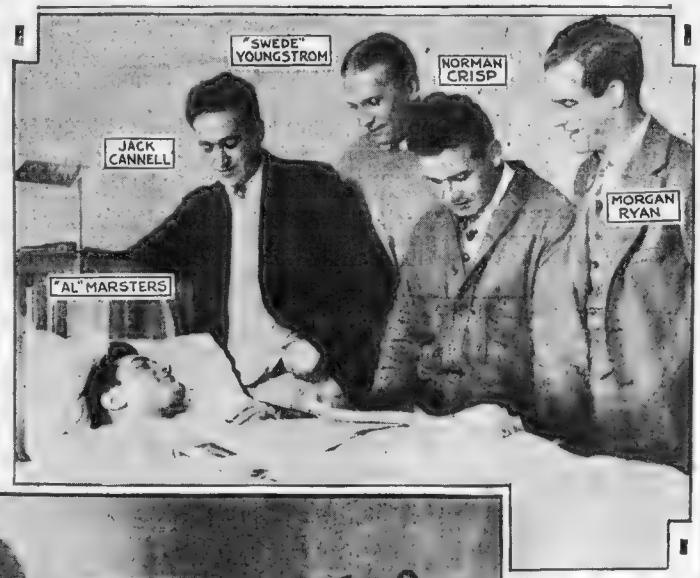
Someone will be assigned to telephone a play-by-play story to Marsters, and incidentally, will be instructed to omit the unnecessary suspense such as featured the broadcast from New Haven, and he will be drilled prior to taking up his telephone duties that the contrasting teams are Dartmouth and Brown and not Harvard.

Harvard Harriers Meet Yale Today

Harvard's varsity and freshman cross-country teams will be out to defend a perfect record over Yale begun in 1923, when they race the Eli teams along the Charles river today. Crimson harriers have lost no races to Yale since Jaakko Mikkola became their coach.

Chances for two Harvard victories today are considered excellent inasmuch as neither the varsity nor the freshman team has lost a race this year, while both the Yale teams have been defeated.

FRIENDS CHEER CRIPPLED GREEN STAR



FORDHAM 5-3 PICK OVER B. C.

that wasn't bad. B. C. had a championship eleven and was scheduled to win.

B. C. realizes the Fordham power. They've known it for a month. The Maroons are big and fast and fearless. Boston College will be outweighed in almost every position. They're relying on one asset for victory—smartness.

McKenney is prepared for a battle of brains vs. brawn. He's spent this week in readying his team to supply the former. He's drilled his team in Fordham plays. He tipped them off to all Fordham formations. His boys know the weak points of each individual member of the Cavanaugh club. If they keep their heads, they'll win.

On the eve of the big game two positions on McKenney's starting club are still unsettled. But they're not causing any worryin. There's not a dearth of material but rather a doubt concerning the best selection against Fordham.

Joe Kelley or John Marr will start at fullback and either Joe Mirley or George Colbert at quarterback. They're all experienced players and closely rival each other in ability.

Rumor had it that Charley Murphy and Capt. Paddy Creedon wouldn't be able to play for the Eagles tomorrow due to colds, but they'll both be in there.

The rest of the squad is fit as a symphony of fiddles. All are itching to go. They're glad that they'll be the underdogs, for it will make them fight harder for Joe McKenney.

CAVANAUGH'S TEAM STRONG

engagement with Boston College, when, with the score tied, Johnny Dixon stepped in the way of a Fordham aerial and romped for an easy touchdown which proved to be the winning margin for the Eagles.

Cavanaugh will probably go easy with the air game and stick to slams at the Boston College line, as he did in the West Virginia game.

THE Eagle forward wall has played good ball this season and should prove a stubborn defensive barrier to the Fordham running offense, but Joe McKenney will hardly look for any consistent running offense aimed at a heavier Fordham frontier.

Joe's best bet all year has been the aerial game and with one of the best passers in the East in Colbert doing the heaving, and one of the best forward pass receivers in Johnny Dixon, the Fenway crowd should see some aerial fireworks tomorrow afternoon when B. C. gets the ball.

No matter how strong a defense Cavanaugh forms against aerials it is hard to see how Fordham is going to stop this Colbert to Dixon combination from hanging up one or two touchdowns.

BESIDES being a first-class passer Colbert, the Eagle quarterback, does some nice open field dashing and has an accurate drop-kicking toe. "Chesty" Antos should give the Major a lot of heartaches if his teammates can shake him loose outside the Fordham wings. Capt. "Paddy" Creedon should pick up some valuable yardage through the Fordham tackles to help out the Boston College cause.

Tomorrow's encounter should prove interesting to the spectators from many angles. Maj. Cavanaugh not so long back was the Eagles' mentor and taught Joe McKenney a lot of football. The Major still has a flock of rooters in these parts who will be on hand at the Fenway tomorrow afternoon cheering for the Fordham eleven.

ALTHOUGH the Major has revised his offense since leaving Boston College, he still sticks to some of the good "old" plays. Joe McKenney has broken away from the old Cavanaugh system and has combined the best features of successful offenses, such as put on by Hoskins and Warner, to give Boston College a varied and brilliant attack.

Brown in Fine Shape for Green

Joe Schein has been ordered away from the field until today, although he will start against Dartmouth.

Tiger Lineup Picked for Opening Game

MANAGER EDDIE POWERS today announced the lineup of the Boston Tigers who will open their Canadian-American league season against New Haven Eagles in New Haven Arena Sunday night.

Capt. "Deacon" Waite, premier stick-handler and third high scorer of the league, will be at center with Johnny Loucks, the Calgary bricklayer, on left wing, and "Yank" Boyd, recruit from Toronto, on right. Eddie Carman and Reg Mackey, the veteran defense men, will be at the points, and Herb Rowe is in goal.

Bill Regan, giant defense man from Creighton Mines, Ont., will be worked in easily for the first few games. He has come well up to expectations in practice, but Manager Powers needs to rely on veterans for defense work at the outset.

The second-string forward line will consist of "Dutch" Osborne and Reg Mills, newly signed players at center and right wing respectively, and Clark Heydon at wing. Regan and Pokal Contant will relieve it.

A third forward line, comprising Eddie Burke, White Field and Sonny Manning also is likely to see service. The Tigers never have been so strong in reserves and are equipped to carry the game to the opposition at top speed throughout 60 minutes.

The final practice scrimmage will take place in the Arena at 7 o'clock tonight, and the Tigers' management has invited friends of the team and followers of hockey to attend.

Huntington Plays Moses Brown Team

Huntington school football team will close the season with Moses Brown tomorrow morning at Providence. As last year's battle was a scoreless tie, both teams will fight to the end for victory.

SHEPHERD DOGS ON EXHIBITION TOMORROW

Nearly 250 of the finest shepherd dogs in the world, including 91 champions, will be on exhibition tomorrow and Sunday at Horticultural Hall at the 15th national specialty show of the Shepherd Dog Club of America, held under the auspices of the Shepherd Dog Club of New England.

The first time the national show has been held in Boston, it is expected by Rupert Kehoe, superintendent of the club, to exceed all national shows previously held in the United States.

Great interest has been evidenced in the show and the advance sale of tickets is largest than ever before. The New York group of fanciers have reserved 250 tickets and requests have come from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Over 31 champions are entered. This is the largest number of champion shepherd dogs ever gathered together. Twelve of these champions are entered in the champion log class, seven in the champion bitch class and the remaining 12 are on exhibition alone.

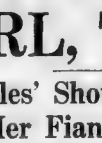
GIRL, THOUGH DEEPLY IN LOVE, HAS TROUBLES

'Dimples' Should Go With Her Fiance Only

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
As Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

IT is not only the love-lorn who have heart problems to meet. Oftentimes it happens that a girl happily in love, whose affection is fully requited, finds herself placed in what my correspondent calls an "unusual position." Here is her letter:



Beatrice Fairfax

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I have often read your column, but I never thought I should have to consult you about any of my love affairs. However, here I am:

"I am placed in an unusual position. It may not be unusual to you, but to me it is. Recently, I have had two men propose to me, which isn't unusual in itself, except for the fact that I am engaged already.

"My fiance is now abroad on a business trip. We have not as yet formally announced our engagement, but will when he comes back.

"One of the proposals came from a man I've known since I was in junior high and, possibly, a few years ago his proposal would have thrilled me unspeakably. But now—well, I've graduated from junior high!

I have told both of these men that I was honored to reply, but that even now I was planning on being married. Should I have been more tactful? And also, should I continue to go out with them when I realize how they feel toward me? Please help me.

"DIMPLES."

An engaged girl often finds herself facing what seem to her unusual problems, because, not having been engaged long, it is her first experience with the conditions she has to meet. Especially difficult is the situation when the engagement is not yet announced and the fiance is away.

Of course, the two young men who proposed to Dimples did not know that she was deeply interested in one particular young man until she, herself, told them she was planning marriage. Had they known, they would naturally have stayed away and sought other interests when they found themselves becoming fascinated. No man will deliberately seek the heart-break of disappointed love, and this Burt can usually be prevented when a girl knows in time that his suit is hopeless.

For this reason, the engaged girl who is thoughtfully kind, makes her position quite clear to all other admirers if she possibly can do so. Even in case the engagement cannot be announced, she makes it plain by her words and actions, that she is entirely absorbed in one young man, who is her sweetheart.

That is one reason why it is not advisable for an engaged girl to go about with men other than her fiance. Of course, there are other equally good reasons—her fiance is happier, knowing she is not dividing her interests and comradeship for it goes to prove she is in love with him. And above all, because she is in love with one young man and pledged to him, an engaged girl doesn't not feel the need of other companionship or attentions.

When a fiance is away, and both parties to the engagement agree willingly to the arrangement, it may be allowable for the engaged girl to go about with other young men just for the sake of companionship, permitting her fiance, of course, the same privilege of associating with young women. But in such a case, it should be frankly made clear that both are engaged. And at best, the arrangement is a little unwise, often leading to confusion and heartaches. At the same time, both fiance and fiances should make themselves pleasant to outsiders and not concentrate entirely on their own affairs.

The Premature Guest

DRAWN BY
Nell Brinkley

SAID he, coming up the walk, having invited himself to tea . . . "all too soon . . . said he, humming it low to himself, that incorrigible, whose own mother, Venus, even told the whole world that he was not to be trusted, said he, humming Dryden's blithe couplet:

"May widows wed as often as they can,
And ever for the better change their man!"

Delicately this unchanging changeling balances his cup of tea, this is he whose best language is a sigh, in spite of his light-mindedness. This is he whom it is fatal to embrace. For once knowing him, capricious, gay, sorrowful, the tender lovely heart cannot do without his company.

He says little, only sighs—and smiles. And STAYS ON. And gently hums spring-time-like lines under his breath, such as, "Who loves again in haste pays sincerest tribute to the happiness of love that's past!" And such as, "A mighty pain to love it is . . . and 'tis a pain that pain to MISS!"

The pretty lady in black touches the dew in her blue eyes, and looks at her guest with suspicion.

"You should not have COME!" says she. Yet he is a marvelous comrade, and it is nice to see his engaging person beside her fire again.

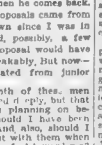
But 'tis a pain that pain to MISS!"
—NELL BRINKLEY.

The Truth

ABOUT AN ANCESTRAL HOME
By ELINOR GLYN

I HAVE arrived at my Paradise place, girls. I have driven through a deer park where the graceful animals have grazed, "father to son," since the hunting parties of the nobles of the Middle Ages were turned into private enclosures in about 1400.



Elinor Glyn

And then I have arrived at the stately archway of stone, and gone through the old oak door. I have been greeted by servants who have known me long.

Then I've been escorted through passages of stone, with knight's armor hanging on the walls, corridors of oak panels, hung with portraits, and finally to the "Green Parlour," a survival of the time of Queen Anne in the beginning of the 18th century.

The "Green Parlour," the smallest of a number of big salons, is filled with art treasures collected for hundreds of years. Then a greeting from my hostess, whose boundless charity, sympathy, graciousness, and serenity are famous.

No fuss—no gush—just affection and good manners. Then the great institution in England called "tea" is observed, with the 10 or 12 other guests who have already arrived present.

There is always a joke about the English people and their passion for "tea." Even cocktails, which are superseding it in some smart socials, have not displaced "tea" in the country homes.

But telling you of this grand home is to give a lesson. No one has a right to any inherited rank or property which carries obligations with it, unless he or she fulfils those obligations fully.

It is just as wrong for the sons of American millionaires to squander riches on unworthy objects as for any other citizen. Safety first. Kate gives both their dues in the end.

"But when you start with kisses—" she flashed. "Oh," she went on, suddenly afire with unhappiness, "I wished I lived a hundred years ago when it was all decided for a girl. And a man came with an old-fashioned bouquet and a stovepipe hat. He made a grand bow and hardly dared kiss the tips of her fingers until it was all settled and the fiddlers were tuning up for Lohengrin."

She rested her elbows on the fender and answered moodily. "I guess we have to live in our own epoch. One has to meet issues. And a girl can't be a wall flower. Morals are all a matter of geography, anyway! So when it's the fashion to kiss we should kiss. When it's the vogue to neck—et us neck."

He laughed softly and caught her to him: "Pat, you little liar! You little darling. You think nothing of the kind!"

She reached up and closed her hands tightly about his neck. "Oh," he whispered against her brown, tingling ear. "You're glorious! You're just—just beautiful—" She thought she would die of the rapture when his lips closed on hers.

Pat touched it. The dress stood in her mind now for the four years that would stretch between her and life. She must go to college—fit herself for independence. Richard Dawn had no fortune. Only the money he earned month by month. Sometimes the struggle had been hard enough. He was determined that Pat should never be helpless or stranded if a dark day came and he not here to guard her.

Yes—she must be ready to make her own way. They were doing their part—beautifully—they always had.

Why, when they bought this house here, putting most of the ready cash down for the first payment, there hadn't been a great deal left over for the furnishing. Both Richard and Laura had been much more piercingly concerned that Pat should have her room as she wanted it than that their own should suit.

Pat wanted dark furniture in Spanish renaissance. She wanted a rich old chest with carvings. She read the books and garden magazines and had many pictures in her mind.

One day she and her mother went to Monterey. They'd heard of an old Spanish family who had just the things and would sell them.

Pat felt guilty because the price was quite a bit more than they'd counted on. But oh, how she wanted that quaint bed with the low posts all turned by hand . . . and the lovely old coverlet in bizarre stripes and green and peach-gold.

It was in her room now, and it looked as though it grew there, so nicely it went with the rough plastered walls, toned to a mellow apricot, and with dark oak floor. She had the chest, too, and drapes that hung like sunlight on the windows Richard and Laura deserved a worthy return.

Ah, yes — she would certainly want to be a fine, successful person. They expected this of her.

But she went now to the miniature balcony just outside her window. She leaned on the iron railing and looked down to the shadowy trees. Oh, old trees, but so ever young, so touched with deep, eternal tranquility.

She fancied herself walking down a lane with him. The world and its beckonings. Its lure and promise all brushed aside. Only a girl and a man. In the glowing and lovely distance a little home, a little child.

Pat saw herself go and thought with a pang: "That's what I want. That's all that I want! Dear God, let me have him!"

Soups With Food Value

IN many homes, where there is not a strict, set diet for the children, it is often difficult to know what to have for lunch, since it is necessary to have a hot dish, and one doesn't want a foretaste of dinner.

Why not, in this instance, try soup? Not a thin, watery soup, but a rich cream soup or a clam chowder which is practically a meal in itself, or a rich puree soup which contains usually new or renewed vegetables, but milk or cream as well.

This, with a generous salad, bread and butter, and a nutritious dessert such as rice pudding or cup cake, make a completely balanced meal. And with most normal people it would be no hardship to omit the "nutritious" dessert and substitute fresh fruit. This is not only much easier to prepare, but gives our diet some of its much needed vitamines and mineral salts.

Here are some soups with good food value, which may be used at dinner, of course, if you so elect.

PUREE OF SPLIT PEA AND TOMATOES

Soak ½ lb. of peas over night in plenty of water. Drain and add 2 qts. of cold water, 2 cups of canned tomatoes, 1 sliced onion and 1 celery top and cook until peas are very tender. Mash well, then press through sieve. Season with salt, pepper, cayenne and add ½ tsp. soda. Smooth together 1 tbsp. of butter and 1 tbsp. of flour and add to blend the mixture. Just before serving add slowly the hot puree to 1 cup of thin cream or top milk which has been scalded. Do not boil again. Serve with croutons. Serves eight.

NEW ENGLAND CLAM CHOWDER

Dice 1-3 lb. salt pork and saute with 1 medium sliced onion. Add 1½ cups of diced potatoes, saute a few minutes, then add ½ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, a pinch of thyme, ½ tsp celery seed, 2 tbsps of chili sauce and 1 cup of water. Simmer until potatoes are almost tender. Add 1 cup of chopped steamed clams and 1 tbsp. of flour smoothed with 2 cups of cold milk and stir until slightly thickened. Add 2 cup clam broth last, that there be no danger of its curdling. Be sure to serve with plain crackers or pilot crackers. Serves 4.

Faithfully yours,
Martha Lee

A Kiss for Corinna

Serial by May Christie

CHAPTER 61

"CORINNA! Corinna!" squeaked Monsieur Julian. "Don't speak like that to Miss Van Wyck! Oh, Mademoiselle, I do apologize—excuse her—"

"I shall do nothing of the sort! —I didn't come here to be insulted. I'm through with the place—with all of you!"

"I shan't." Corinna faced them recklessly. "I've stood Miss Van Wyck's rudeness long enough. She's always been a cat to me. I never singed that hair of hers. She did it on purpose since she left this shop, so as to spite me."

"How dare you, girl? Be silent! Go! Get off your hat! Your services are no longer needed!"

Corinna's chin went up. A flame blazed in her eyes as she flung back at him: "You don't have to fire me, Mr. Julian, for I'm through forever with this place. I wouldn't serve such customers as these beasts of women!"

"That's enough. You go! You go immediately!"

As Corinna went out by the back stairs, her heart bursting, Denise made a flaunting exit by the elevator, her lips curling, and utterly ignoring the frantic apologies of Julian.

"I've finished with the one! Now —how I'll get even with the other!" she was saying to herself.

At that she hailed a taxi in the street and directed the man to drive as fast as possible to Mr. Criswell's office.

"Darling there's a lot of things I have to talk to you about. Will you give me a minute? Come out for coffee?"

"I'm extremely busy, Denise, and I should be glad if for the future you'd keep away from this office."

"Uncle, what ails you? How can you be so—so horrid?"

He gave her a long, cold, soul searching look through his glasses. "I mean what I say. Have your own way in my home, if you must —but you shan't play the devil among my employes. I've just had a talk with Craig. Through him I have learned of your scheme—of your disgraceful—your shocking behavior!"

"What? So he lied to you, just because I turned him down when he was crazy about me."

"You never turned him down. You pursued him like a—like a—an unmentionable woman. Don't interrupt. I know all—all about it."

"Don't lie. My God!" Mr. Criswell thumped his fist upon the table. "If you had to vamp somebody, why had you to pick one of my most valuable collaborators? Chase Mortimer—chase any fool who's not important in my business."

The cold truth faced Denise in a most brutal manner. Her uncle wouldn't let her speak—refused to listen to one syllable.

"I'd be so ashamed, if I were you. I'd go and hide myself in Crabtree—I'd—I'd do penance!" His usually quiet voice boomed across the inner office. "But Craig got beyond your reach, your machinations! He's at this moment, if I'm not mistaken, off marrying a girl he's been devoted to for years—and both knowing that you vainly tried to take him away from her!"

Good God! This was awful! Denise's only hope to save her face lay in one sentence her uncle had uttered—it contained the name of —Mortimer.

His faculties a little dulled, then, he lent an unastonished ear to her proposals.

"You are fond of me, aren't you, old Mort? You know I've often stood by you when others wouldn't. Wouldn't it be a great lark to dash up to Greenwich and get—married?"

He grinned at her. "Me? Oh, I'd be the helluva husband—"

"Come on." This was a good way of paying out her uncle and Mort's father, who had rammed these words anent Mort down her throat.) "You suit me O. K. Well play a fine trick on them."

"There was a row at the beauty parlor. That precious Van Wyck woman fraced up a plot against Corinna as she'd be fired. The kid tumbled straight into it. Corinna walked out in an awful state. She's going home to her people."

Listen, World!

Elsie Robinson

Heaven knows why any sensible girl should object to an obliging male around the house, but they tell me they do. "And seein' as we can pay our own way, why shouldn't we live as we pleases?" say they.

No, it isn't just smarty talk. Some of them actually do it. Kate Pullman, for instance, who told proudly of her new, deliberately, illegitimate baby in the October number of COSMOPOLITAN! Kate's tickled pink with her experiment, but will she be tickled 20 years from now? Rose Wilding thinks NOT.

Seventeen years ago Rose Wilding also decided to live as she pleased. She was going to be a Free Soul and have Her Very Own Baby without the handicap of a husband. Which she did. And now she's telling the result in the November issue of COSMOPOLITAN. And if you're bent on being a Free Soul and don't want your style cramped, DON'T READ THAT ARTICLE! For Miss Wilding has come to the conclusion that Freedom isn't all it's cracked up to be. Maybe it's at right for mama. BUT IT'S THE KID WHO MUST PAY THE PRICE! And as the grim truth of that comes home to Rose Wilding, her youthful defiance of conventions doesn't seem quite so glorious.

"After 17 years of motherhood," she says, "I have only now realized a cruel but profound truth. The child you bear, from the moment of its first breath, is in no sense a part of you but a complete and separate entity.

HE MAY GROW UP NOT ONLY TO DISAGREE WITH YOU BUT EVENTUALLY TO JUDGE, EVEN CONDEMN YOU BECAUSE WHAT YOU THOUGHT RIGHT HE MAY REGARD AS WRONG . . . THE CONCLUSION HAS FORCED ITSELF UPON ME THAT WE CANNOT, WE DARE NOT, THINK FOR OUR CHILDREN. WE MAY DEFY TRADITIONS FOR OURSELVES BUT WE CANNOT BE SURE OUR CHILDREN WILL ENDORSE THE CHALLENGE."

Rose Wilding was a radical; she never doubted that her boy would belong to the radical world. But, from the time he could toddle, her boy had no use for the radical world. He wanted a Regular World, like other little boys, with Regular Homes and Regular Papas and Mamas. And from the first, the world Rose Wilding had despised made it plain that it had no room for her son. He was Nobody's Baby.

She had thought that wouldn't be hard. She had sneered at the cowardice, hypocrisy and deceit of the conventional world. But with her baby's first, stammering question, "Where is papa?" she found herself invoking the same hypocrisy and deceit—to save him hurt! Never had she been able to live with that freedom and honesty which she desired, for THAT WHICH MEANT FREEDOM AND HONESTY TO HER, DID NOT MEAN FREEDOM AND HONESTY TO HER SON—INSTEAD, IT MEANT BONDAGE AND SHAME.

Now, though the boy is 17, she has still not found the courage to tell him the truth about his birth. It must be done soon, for he is about to enter the university, but she faces the ordeal in anguish. What will he say? How will he judge her this boy who is part of her flesh but whose spirit is alien? WHAT WILL HE SAY WHEN HE KNOWS WHAT SHE DID TO HIS LIFE?

Chalifoux of Marlborough st. are at the present time stopping at the Weylin Hotel, while Mrs. Walter Hines Page of Beacon st. and Mrs. Charles Greely Loring of Otis pl. are at the Ambassador Hotel.

THE LATEST VENTURE IN the modern field of drama will be the production of "Hosea" —from the pen of Eleanor Wood Whitman, who is at present a pageant writer, having been before her marriage a Bible lecturer at Wellesley. The play will be staged in the splendid auditorium of the Young Women's Christian Association at Clarendon and Stuart sts., on the evening of November 13 at eight o'clock.

THE PLAY IS IN CHARGE of the following named committee: Mrs. Frank H. Hill, chairman; Mrs. William E. Birdsall, Mrs. Joseph D. Leland, Mrs. Chester A. Moody, Mrs. Richard H. Gorham, Mrs. Lewis J. Johnson, Mrs. E. Talmadge Root, Mrs. Charles Todd Wolfe, Miss Marion Holmes, Mrs. George L. Paine, Mrs. John Orth, Thos. Grenter

Boston Federation of Churches has sponsored the production, recognizing that dramatization impresses certain facts on the mind as has been so well shown by the Passion Play at Oberammergau in Germany. A fine example of the bringing out of the hidden stories of the Old Testament is shown in "Hosea," or, according to its other title, "Reaping the Whirlwind."

Sequins Seek Fashion's Spotlight as Many Smart Beaded Evening Frocks Make Appearance in Paris

(SKETCHED IN PARIS)

Noted for Brilliant Fabric, Originality of Detail

Paris Bureau of the Boston Evening American

PARIS, FRANCE, Nov. 8— The sequins is the sequel to the glittering story of this season's modes for evening display. Many there are who have conjectured as to the return of the beaded evening frock. A few of these glittery creations have been seen, but the response seems to be most marked to dresses that intrigue by the magnificence of the fabric and originality of detail.

Velvets, lamees, chiffon lame have all played their part in making the new clothes appealing to their discreet lavishness, but now the irredescent dress is going to make a bid for patronage.

One of the most popular women, here, an American, married to a Frenchman, and famous for her style sense, has been seen in a gown almost entirely composed of irredescent paillettes in deep blue with godets of tulle breaking the shiny surface of the skirt. As yet, there has not been a marked duplication of this type of dress, but we have seen many dresses with discreet touches of bright sequins.

We have had sketched for you, one of Worth's new creations expressing the sequin influence, in an artistic way.

(SKETCHED IN PARIS)

IT is an evening dress of white tulle with appliques of sequins marking the many ruffles of which it is composed. The shirred flounces which form the skirt are deeper in back, the lowest one actually touching the floor. The bodice is snug fitting with a square decolletage in front and "V" shaped at the back. With the frock is worn a white moire coat lined with black velvet. The shoulder is decorated with a large flower merging the two fabrics, and a huge bow which may be worn as a scarf about the throat.

WE have sent you as well, a sketch of a lovely afternoon frock from the important house of Redfern. It is of dahlia crepe georgette with a yoke of matching lace. The frock is formed of piecings joined together by fagotting, an always welcome touch, while overlapping uneven edged godets compose the skirt. The lace yoke sports a jabot knotted in front. This is an extremely well liked model.

NEW RUM LAW IN CANADA AIDS TEMPERANCE

Toronto, Nov. 8 (AP)—The spread of temperance and the sale of liquor will go hand in hand under new regulations proposed by the government of Toronto.

Literature advocating temperance and warnings against excessive drinking and operation of automobiles while under the influence of liquor will be given with every permit at the government liquor stores.

In keeping with the campaign promises of Premier G. Howard Ferguson that more stringent regulations for the liquor traffic would be put into force, Atty Gen. W. H. Price today made public the proposed regulations.

These also called for cancellation of permits of veterans and disabled men to others and for closing of the liquor stores giving one man two or more permits. The attorney general said he would advocate more stringent penalties for operating automobiles while intoxicated

LAW AND ORDER LEAGUE IS NEW 'RACKET'

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP)—The gentlemen, believed today it had uncovered a new racket under the name of the South Side Business Men's Law and Order League.

Among members arrested by prohibition officers yesterday were W. Ellis J. Payne, organizer, and Mrs. Lena Wisdom, 60-year-old widow, listed as president.

Detail information, agents Donald Bates attorney said to league's organizer authority was given signed it served to punish those who violated the prohibition laws and "using the money for the overthrow of law and order."

Anderson said the government was informed that the league sold alcohol and provided a degree of protection to speakeasies and bootleggers who refused to buy alcohol from it. The league is alleged to have received such visits.

Payne, known as a professional reformer, gathered a large following. I've been fighting liquor and vice for 30 years," he said.

Wife Says Dry Agent Has 2 Cars, 2 Homes

New York Nov 8 (AP)—A wife's testimony on how her prohibition agent husband, on a salary of $3000 a year, acquired both a town and country house, two automobiles and a speed boat was so rapped by Brooklyn Supreme Court today.

Mrs. Julia J. Kerrigan appeared to contest an action by her husband that an order requiring him to pay $35 weekly is many months in arrears for support of their children. He contended he was without funds and dependent upon his father for support.

Errant Dogs to Get Their Day in Court

Springfield, Nov 8—Every Springfield dog owner must have his day in court before he can be ordered from the streets as a menace, under a bill filed with the Springfield Kennel Club. The plan was first publicized when it was drawn up unexpectedly to the club's committee which will be presented to the city council short ly. Under the provisions of the proposed amendments the dog's owner denied by the present ordinance an opportunity to defend the dog before a judge. Another amendment to the present law sets what is said to constitute a menace. Any person or keeper of a dog who shall fail to comply with the provisions of the present law or who shall be convicted by a fine of not more than $10, given for the first offense, and for subsequent offenses shall be fined not exceeding that the dog is known by him to be vicious or dangerous or on 2 attached any person or persons to such an extent or in such a manner as to have been a menace or a nuisance to the city or country.

NAME WINNER IN AUDITION CONTEST

Two local singers, representing the Boston district in the Atwater Kent Foundation competition, have been declared winners in the Massachusetts State Audition, which was held from WEEI last Saturday night.

Miss Mae Taylor, soprano, pupil of the winning female voice is a native of Nova Scotia, a student at Dana Hall, and a pupil of Mrs. Alice Stevens at the New England Conservatory of Music. John Percival, baritone, the winner among the men, has already gained prestige singing with the People's Symphony Orchestra. He has studied with Arthur Wilson for more than two years, and at present is devoting his time exclusively to the study of music. Percival is a graduate of Andover, '23, and of Harvard, '29. Both these local winners in the State contest will be heard in a special broadcast from WEEI Sunday, November 24, from 6 to 6:15 o'clock.

Miss Taylor and Mr. Percival will compete at a district audition to be broadcast from WEAF some time in November. The district winners, a woman and a man, will compete in the finals in New York with winners of four other district auditions, during the Sunday night Atwater Kent Hour, December 15. The two first place winners in the finals will each receive $1000 in cash and two years of musical tuition, and all 10 of the finalists will receive a share of the awards, which will total $25,000, plus tuition.

The second place winners in this State contest are Miss Vernice C Coolidge of Hudson, representing the Worcester district, and Frank J. Lynch, tenor, of Holyoke, representing the Springfield district

NAVAL LIMIT PRESIDENT'S TOPIC

President Hoover is expected to take the entire nation into his confidence regarding the plans for international naval limitation in a speech to be broadcast over the Columbia and NBC Systems, which he will deliver before the American Legion in Washington on Armistice Day night, Monday.

On the 10th anniversary of the day the World War ended, the President will speak before a huge commemoration meeting sponsored by the veterans in the Washington Auditorium, and because of the extraordinary timeliness of his remarks, it has been arranged to broadcast the speech to all parts of the United States, Canada, and, by means of short wave transmitters, even to European nations involved in the question of naval disarmament. The broadcast program will begin at 8:15 but it is not expected that the President will begin his remarks until half an hour later.

McNUTT TO PRESIDE

The program of the American Legion's Armistice Day commemoration meeting will be presided over by Col. Paul V. McNutt, past commander of the Legion, in the role of master of ceremonies, and another leglonnaire on the speaking program will be Maj. O. L. Endenhamer, the recently elected national commander. The appearance of Gen. John J. Pershing is contingent upon his return from Paris

Colonel John Thomas Taylor, in charge of the Armistice Day celebration, states that 12,000 individual Legion posts composed of ex-service men and 6000 Legion auxiliary posts comprised of ex-service women, have arranged to hold meetings coincidental with the Washington function, indicating that the radio attendance from this source will exceed one million. The throngs inside of the auditorium will be augmented by a monster overflow meeting outside the building, to whom the speeches will be relayed by public address systems.

SEES OPPORTUNITY

"Following immediately upon the heels of Ramsay MacDonald's 'peace visit' to this country and preceding by fully two months the impending Five Power Conference called for London in January, it is said that President Hoover will seize the Armistice Day celebration as a highly suitable occasion for discussing what now impends in the field of naval disarmament. Barring the broad observations on naval limitation and peace, which were contained in the joint statement issued by Prime Minister MacDonald and President Hoover on the eve of the British statesman's departure from Washington nothing definite about the 'conversations' has been forthcoming The world may depend upon some concrete revelations in the speech of the President in this broadcast.

Mammy Mimic on Federation Program

Katherine Tift-Jones, whose negro characterizations in "The Old South," a popular NBC program, have won wide acclaim, will appear on a program with Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in the near future. The appearance will not be a broadcast, but will go before the State Federation of Women's Clubs of New York.

Mrs. Jones, who will don a negro mammy's costume for the occasion, will present a sketch entitled "Thirty Minutes of the Old South."

Bostonian

MARTHA ATTWOOD
Metropolitan Opera soprano, prima donna of the A. E. F., is to be the Armistice Day co-star with Henry Hadley, American orchestral director, in the General Motors Family Party Monday evening over WEEI and NBC stations.

RADIO TO GET PUCCINI OPERAS

As forecast exclusively last week by the Radio Editor of the Boston Evening American, the operas of Puccini will be broadcast for the first time in the history of radio, the National Broadcasting Co. announced today. "Madame Butterfly," considered one of the most beautiful of his music dramas, has been selected as the initial production in a series of six Puccini operas. The radio curtain on the new operatic series will rise at 7 o'clock Saturday night, November 16, and the broadcast will be heard through a coast-to-coast network of stations associated with the NBC Outstanding opera singers will take the solo parts in the Puccini series. Among them will be Madame Frances Alda, Pasquale Amato, Merle Alcock, Mario Chamlee and Alfred O'Shea.

Deems Taylor, as international figure in the world of music, will be the narrator in the broadcast versions, which will last one hour.

Gennaro Papi, long a director of Italian operas at the Metropolitan Opera House, will direct the entire series and under his baton will be an orchestra of musicians thoroughly familiar with Puccini's music.

The series is sponsored by the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corp. One opera will be presented each month. In December "La Tosca" will be broadcast. The other four selected for the series are "Manon Lescaut," "The Tryptich," "The Girl of the Golden West" and "La Boheme."

The musical works of Puccini have for years been carefully guarded and permission to broadcast always has been refused. The refusal has been based on the belief that full artistic justice could not be done to the operas by broadcasting. In releasing the six operas, the copyright owners have inserted a proviso which gives them artistic supervision of the radio productions.

A network of forty-six radio stations including Pacific Coast transmitters associated with the NBC System will broadcast the series WEAF will be the New York outlet for the program.

JUST AS HE WAS CONGRATULATING HIMSELF ON THE FACT THAT HE HAD NOT BEEN MOLESTED FOR A WEEK, BARNEY WAS HANDED A LETTER THROUGH AN OPENING IN A PANEL.
IT CONTAINED THE STARTLING INFORMATION THAT BARNEY'S LIFE IS IN GRAVE DANGER, AND THAT MR. ELI HAWKER, ONE OF THE TOWN'S MOST ESTEEMED CITIZENS, IS AT THE HEAD OF THE GANG WHOSE INTENT IT IS TO REMOVE BARNEY FROM THE REALM OF THE LIVING.
THE POLICE REFUSE TO GIVE CREDENCE TO THE ANONYMOUS NOTE, BUT BARNEY'S CURIOSITY IS AROUSED AND HE INTENDS TO SEE MR. HAWKER OF WHOM HE HAS NEVER HEARD BEFORE.
GOOD-BYE, MR. HAWKER. OUR ORGANIZATION IS GREATLY INDEBTED TO YOU FOR THE TIMELY HELP YOU HAVE GIVEN US · HUNDREDS OF HOMELESS AND WIDOWS WILL BENEFIT GREATLY.

TRADE EFFECT OF BIG CRASH IS STUDIED

By FRANK H. MELDON
Financial Editor

The effect of the recent crash in the stock market on business is being painstakingly studied by economists, and a great many conflicting conjectures are the result to date. In one big Boston investment-banking house customers are being told that the rich men were the big losers, that they will refrench, lay off workers, etc. We seem to recall the stories published not long ago to the effect that "big business" had poured into stockholders' hands and that the old days of individual management were gone. These stories are as true as ever.

* * *

To get at "normal" business results one generally accepted system is to make comparisons covering a five-year period. If carloadings are to be taken as a business index, why not make them also cover a five-year period, instead of merely going back one or two years?

About a year ago, when American financiers first became interested in the commercial possibilities of the Dead Sea of biblical fame, there was published a special study of the outlook which was widely copied. The project proposed a great dam, which was to be built by Felix M. Warburg, international banker and one of the richest men in America, to generate electric power. Recently it was announced that a concession had been granted to Mr. Warburg to exploit the chemical resources of the sea. The company's concession binds it to produce at least 40,000 tons of potassium chloride annually for the 10th year. Bernard Flexner of New York is another American director of the company, which has the Earl of Lytton, former Viceroy of India, as its chairman.

* * *

Closing of the stock market at 1 p. m. continues today and tomorrow; a continuous session in order to enable brokers to catch up with their work. The 1 p m closing of banks have not been of markedly effective in enabling brokers to "catch up," for the simple reason that the "unfinished" shares has continued in swamping volume. We are likely to have abbreviated trading sessions for some time to come.

The rally yesterday was in line with the dedications which appeared in this column before the opening of the market, when we noted the wide spread in bid and asked prices Wednesday afternoon as indicating any rally would be likely to be a jump one.

Gross earnings figures show no reason for the slump in public earnings of public-utility enterprises in Massachusetts. Gross of telephone and telegraph companies as reported to the Department of Commerce by classified companies or systems operating gas electric light, heat, power, traction and water service, and including practically all of the important organizations in the United States were $1,000,000, as compared with $179,500,000 in August, and $179,346,145 in September, 1928.

When you wanted to illustrate an action as ridiculous, you would say "like sending coal to Newcastle" This might have been paraphrased in recent years by saying, "that's like shipping oil to Maine." The unexpected however, has happened. The recent purchase of Sinclair & Co. New Brunswick seed business by a prominent grower in Maine, and the forwarding of this shipment to Aroostook County, were features of news bulletin sent out from the New Brunswick Government clearing house of information.

The State of Maine long is supposed to have taken the lead in the United States in the production of potatoes. Perhaps the decline if you want to get good potatoes," has been a familiar saying for years.

* * *

So large and so important is the raising of that crop to the State that it furnishes the larger part of the freight traffic every year handled by the Bangor & A. road took Rowland. In fact, the latter is known as the "Potato Railroad." Discovery of several new kinds of crops know that the seed must be changed every two or three years at the longest if the best results are to be obtained.

Although New Englanders are supposed to be as ultra-conservative as economics), it develops that Maine potato growers are changing their seed, and instead of looking for it on Long Island, another important potato growing center, or in the Central West, show have gone to the Pro... Forbes Thinks Lowest Prices Are Now Over

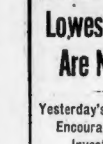
Yesterday's Market Had Encouraging Signs; Investors Buy

By B. C. FORBES—

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—My bold guess is that yesterday marked the climax of the death grapple in Wall Street, and that many stocks will not sell even one dollar below the bottom prices already reached.



B. C. Forbes

I repeatedly endorsed Secretary Mellon's advice to buy bonds when stocks were sky rocketing sensationally. Now is the time to buy stocks—paying for them, of course.

Farseeing millionaire investors do not hesitate at the like this to sell bonds and put the money into stocks, confident that far better profits will be realized by each one on the stocks than on the bonds.

• • •

What an opportunity this presents for John J. Raskob to launch his much-discussed plan to enable workers and others of modest means to become investors in stocks! No announcement has yet come from Mr. Raskob, however, that he is actually ready to set the necessary machinery in motion.

During the excitement in the stock market yesterday Mr. Raskob and his friend, ex-Gov. Smith, calmly went off for an outing. Apparently the turmoil is bothering Johnny Raskob mighty little. Unlike many others, he does not have to spend anxious hours at the end of a telephone line expecting every moment another call for additional margin.

The very violence of the lightningque and downs in quotations on the Stock Exchange yesterday morning combined with the substantial recovery later, suggests that the market then entered the final stages of its convulsions.

Had prices done nothing but sink lower and lower the market would not have been so hopeful. But the rallying ability exhibited with bewildering suddenness from time to time was interpreted by old-timers as evidence that the tidal wave of selling has spent its main forces. Not all of the support, by any means, came from the Big Six or other institutional interests eager to stem the demoralization. You can depend upon it that not a little absorption of stocks by genuine investors was under way.

The swift attacks on such pivotal stocks as U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, General Electric, American Telephone, American Can, Montgomery Ward, United Corporation, International Telephone, General Motors, had all the earmarks of short selling by professional bears.

Rumor has it that certain well-known bears have reaped enormous profits in the last fortnight and that their success has egged them on to bolder and bolder ventures. No doubt will be shed should these gentlemen finally find themselves trapped.

Short selling is a perfectly legitimate operation. There are times when it is highly beneficial. But to kick a market already prostrated is not viewed in responsible circles as praiseworthy patriotism.

General Electric sold above 400 quite recently, whereas yesterday it went below 200. Westinghouse sold within a few points of 300 and was available yesterday around 115. U. S. Steel yesterday sold fully 100 points below its recent top of 261¾. American Telephone also is down more than 100 points. Radio sold this year within a fraction of 115 and has since touched 26. United Corporation yesterday, at one time, exactly one-third of its recent maximum.

General Motors, under 40 yesterday, sold above 90. International Telephone's price has been cut in half. American & Foreign Power cost within a point of 200 earlier in the year, contrasted with 80 during the bedlam. Allied Chemical has fallen fully 150. American Power and Light fully 200, Brooklyn Union 100, Chrysler from 135 to 80, Consolidated Gas almost 100. Electric Auto Lite 100, North American fully 100, Packard is at half price, Public Service of New Jersey at half-price, Stone & Webster went down from above 800 to a low of 72, United Gas and Improvement is at half-price.

On the Curb, Electric Bond & Share dipped as low as 50, contrasted with a high of 189; Electric Investors to 75 against better than 300, Cities Service, at 63 quite recently, touched 30, and opened yesterday only a fraction above 25; Allied Power & Light went down from 110 to the low thirties; American Superpower from above 70 to under 20, International Superpower from above 100 to 25, Niagara Shares from 139 to 60, Lehman Corporation from 136 to 76; Midwest Utilities from 568 to 201; Southeastern Power from 138 to below 60; Standard Power and Light from 189 to 81.

I understand that bankers are very well satisfied with the cooperation now being extended by the Federal Reserve authorities.

CURB TRADING IS QUIET FOR WEEK-END

New York, Nov 8 (AP)—The Curb market rallied substantially at the opening today, but sold off moderately during the remainder of the session under the influence of profit taking and week-end liquidation.

Trading quieted down markedly and soon after midday the ticker was practically abreast of trading. The three-hour session, which brings to an end another hectic week, was the most orderly experienced on this market in a fortnight.

Electric Investors was a buoyant feature in the utility group, selling up 13⅜ points to 128¾, then losing more than half its gain. Electric Bond & Share rallied nearly 6 points, but also reacted. Middle West old stock, now practically inactive, shot up more than 50 points in a few sales. American Gas & Electric rounded off 10 points and later turned downward with the rest of the list. American & Foreign Power lost about 5 points, and Associated Gas A, and Allied Power & Light sagged.

Oils were highly irregular. Cosden jumped 15 points to 80, regaining yesterday's loss. Vacuum was in good demand, and Standard of Indiana was steady. Gulf turned heavy after an early upturn.

Cities Service was again active, opening with a block of 28,000 shares, but fluctuated in the issue was mild compared to the wild activity of recent sessions, when it opened with a block of 50,000 to 225,000 shares. It was firm in the early trading, but eased later. Industrials were also highly irregular.

In the investment trusts, Goldman Sachs sold up a couple of points, then dropped about 4 from the top. Lehman and Trans-America were firm

BOND MARKET IS MIXED

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Although most of the distress selling that depressed prices yesterday had disappeared, the bond market was irregular during today's three-hour session—the last of the week—and showed a little mixture of gains and losses, most of which were fractional.

Another large reduction in brokers' loans, bringing the total declines to approximately a billion and three-quarters in the last fortnight, was a constructive factor, but it was apparent that the market had not recovered to the point of nervousness.

Small recessions were fairly common in the list of low coupon rails in the early trading. Southern Pacific Refunding 4s, Erie General 4s, St. Louis San Francisco 4s, Rock Island 4s, Missouri Kansas Texas 4s and Baltimore & Ohio 4s traded at lower levels, but there was improvement in Southern Railway General 4s and Consolidated 4s. Denver & Rio Grande 4s, Illinois Central 4½s and a few others.

Profits Increase

President T. H. McInnerney of National Dairy Products stated that so far in the current year profits have been 25 per cent ahead of last year. Business in nine months has been in excess of the full year of 1928. Company has over $36,000,000 cash on hand and no bank loans.

St. Paul Gains

Chicago, Milwaukee St. Paul & Pacific nine months' net is equal after preferred dividends to 76 cents a share on 1,174,060 common shares, against 38 cents a share in 1925 period.

Monsanto Chemical

Monsanto Chemical Works reports for quarter ended Sept. 30 net of $234,814 after charges and federal taxes, against $255,728 in third quarter of 1928. Nine months' net was $878,840, against $692,980.

Business and Finance in Day's News

PROSPERITY IN AUTO INDUSTRY IS SHOWN

Borg-Warner Corp. earnings reflect the prosperity of the auto industry. The net for 1929 should approximate closely record profit of 1928 when principal companies now consolidated reported combined net of $7,809,490, equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to $5.58 a share on 1,230,963 common shares now outstanding. For nine months net was $6,401,358 or $5.05 a common share.

Borg-Warner, through its constituent units, is a large manufacturer of automobile clutches, gears, carburetors, radiators and other accessories, including among its customers practically all automobile producers in the United States as well as an extensive overseas trade. Any substantial reduction in automobile production thus will be reflected markedly in its profits.

ADDS TO DIVERSITY

Recent acquisitions, however, have diversified its operations in addition to strengthening its position in those lines. Through purchase of Morse Chain Co., for example, it became an important factor in production of power chains for industrial as well as automobile use. Acquisition of Calumet Steel Co. similarly extended activities to the agricultural implement field. Norge Corp., recent addition, provides facilities for manufacture of electric refrigerators on an extensive scale.

Borg-Warner Corp. originally was organized in May, 1928, as a holding company for Borg & Beck Co., Marvel Carburetor Co. and Warner Gear Co. Later in 1928, Mechanics Universal Joint Co. was acquired. Combined net of these companies for the full year totaled $4,-680,831, or $10.64 a share on 410,000 common shares then outstanding.

During the year the corporation has acquired, chiefly through exchange of stock, Galesburg Coulter-Disc Co., Morse Chain Co., Long Manufacturing Co., manufacturers of auto clutches and radiators, and Borg Corp., including latter's subsidiaries, Norge Co., Refrigerator Products and Detroit Gear & Machine Co.

Based on 1928 profits, expansion during 1929 has added approximately $3,000,000 to annual earning power. Following shows consolidated earnings of present units of Borg Warner Corp. and earnings a share the past four years, excluding Borg Warner and including Morse Chain Co. only in 1928:

	Net profits	*Earned a com. share
1928	$7,809,490	6.41
1927	3,946,778	3.54
1926	3,086,560	2.79
1925	2,592,745	2.31

*Based on present capitalization of 1,230,963 common shares minus, for all years, the 82,500 shares issued for purchase of Norge Corp., and for 1925-27 the 331,099 shares issued for purchase of Morse Chain Co.

EXPANSION PROGRAM.

Expansion program has required substantial increases in capitalization since first of this year, total of 339,734 shares of common being issued in exchange for stock of acquired companies. Stockholders of record January 24, 1929, were given rights to purchase one new share at $100 for each 10 shares held and proceeds from the 52,812 shares thus issued were used in purchase of Long Manufacturing Co. On August 15 last, 379,215 additional shares were issued in a 50 per cent stock dividend. Following this distribution, the shares were placed on a $4 annual basis, equal to $6 on the old stock. Former rate had been $4 and 8 per cent in stock.

Corporation is currently in strong financial condition. On September 30, last, current assets totaled $20,-192,539 against $17,311,212 June 30 and $8,853,168 December 31, 1928. Current liabilities were $4,677,811, against $3,984,045 June 30 and $1,-795,207 December 31, 1928. Indicated working capital totaled $15,515,-938 against $13,327,167 June 30 and $6,968,961 December 31. Cash and equivalent September 30 was $7,-612,990, against $5,809,363 June 30 and $3,159,893 December 31.

Auburn Is Leader in Chicago Market

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP)—Trading on the Chicago Stock Exchange opened with a burst of strength today, active buying of small lots helping prices upward. In connection with the vote of the governing committee of the Boston Stock Exchange to remain open for trading on Monday, November 11, the Exchange states that inasmuch as banks and transfer offices will not be open as usual on that day, there will be no deliveries. WORLD GRAIN CROPS SHORT

In the Northern Hemisphere the production of practically all of the grain crops, including wheat, rye, barley, oats and corn, is smaller this year than last, and crops in the Southern Hemisphere are expected to be short, says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture. The bureau states the following on the basis of estimates it has received:

The total 1929 wheat production of 31 countries (not including Russia and China), which last year produced nearly 85 per cent of the world crop is 2,894,397,000 bushels, which is about 11 per cent less than the 3,263,036,000 bushels produced in the same countries in 1928.

Oat production in 28 countries in 1929 totals 3,817,570,000 bushels, which is 8 per cent under last year for the same countries.

The 1929 corn crop in 12 countries is 3,067,749,000 bushels, which is 14 per cent under 1928 for the same countries.

BANKS STAND SEVERE TEST IN SELLING

The nation's banking system has been put to a severe test and it is reassuring that it has apparently so far stood up well under such a strain as was put upon it by the recent panic in stock selling, Gage P. Wright, New York economist declares in a review of financial conditions in the current Business Economic Digest.

"There is so far an almost negligible amount of criticism directed toward the Federal Reserve Board," Mr. Wright states. "However, we are reminded by an occasional observer that, contrary to general opinion, the Federal Reserve System has not been able to forestall panics and that without a question a great amount of the confidence regarding the possibilities of panics, which has prevailed since the inception of the Federal Reserve System, has been shaken."

"There is no serious depression," Mr. Wright says in his summary, "and such is a time for conservative optimism, not pessimism."

The consensus of authoritative opinion, based upon the analysis of the views of forty competent authorities, Mr. Wright says, indicates:—

3—It is quite freely admitted that the full consequence of the recent market break cannot accurately be appraised for some time—probably a fortnight at least—and that some unpleasant disclosures are not only possible but probable.

4—The general business healthion, or minor recession, is expected to continue for several months, although no substantial business liquidation, such as would mark a genuine business depression, is anticipated.

5—Investors who are holding recommended stocks in a well diversified list on an outright basis should not liquidate, in the opinion of the large majority of the advisory organizations. New commitments are quite generally advised, but such advice is accompanied by caution, generally leaning toward the advisability of making new purchases gradually and on a scale down, with a goodly proportion of one's available funds, but on an outright basis.

Mr. Wright concludes that the consensus of opinion warrants maintenance at this time a bullish long-pull position in well selected securities.

Company Enjoys Its Best Quarter

Pines Winterfront Company had the largest income and greatest business in its history during the second quarter of the current fiscal year, Frederick S. Pratt, Jr., Raleigh, president, announced to the board of directors. The regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share and 2 per cent in stock was declared, payable December 1 to stockholders of record November 15.

TICKER TALK

By THE WALL STREET SPECTATOR

Editor's Note: This report is written before the opening of the market today. The report is an effort to inform you of daily developments in active stocks. The Boston Evening American takes no responsibility for the statements of the expert who conducts this column, but gives them to you for what they are worth.

New York, Nov. 8—Decrease of $656,000,000 in brokers' loans is the most important topic in Wall Street as the market opens today. The drop was more than the financial community had dared to expect, and the result was an outburst of cheerful sentiment that made itself felt throughout the district before the brokers had left their offices at the close of the day.

It takes little force to make Wall Street veer from pessimism to optimism or vice versa. Yesterday's rally in the market brought cheer, and the drop in loans helped the feeling along. Not in several weeks has the Street been as hopeful as it is today.

Bootleg Loans

An important feature of the Reserve report was the drop of $44,000,000 in loans "for others." Coming on the heels of last week's $726,000,000 reduction in this item, the total cut reaches an imposing figure. This is good news to the Street, for loans "for others" are those known as "bootleg funds" which the Federal Reserve has been so eager to reduce.

Demand Loans Slashed

Convincing proof of the last week's sweeping liquidation was contained in the report that, of the total loan reduction of $656,000,000, the sum of $652,000,000 was represented in wiping out of demand loans, of the type which make speculation possible. That is good news for the bankers and the Reserve officials.

Stock Bargains

A word of advice to so-called "bargain hunters" in the market is not amiss at this time. A bargain is a bargain if it is cheap at the price you pay for it. When you buy a stock that soon goes much higher, it is a bargain. But many of them can and will sell much lower. Investigate before you buy, and consider yield.

Threat to Recovery

Bankers and brokers alike expect, in the event of further sharp recovery, some re-selling of stocks taken over from groups and individuals who were thrashed with ruin in last week's break. These stocks have been overhanging the market for several days. While the selling must come, it is unlikely that these blocks will be dumped on the market indiscriminately. The unloading will be gradual, and will serve, probably, as a stabilizing factor.

Radio Price-Cutting

Demand for radio sets is not up to standard, and cutting of prices to fess to see in the slackening a reflection of the stock decline's effect on luxury purchases. We will take the holiday trade to prove or disprove this theory.

Railroad Stocks

When leading carrier stocks declined with the rest of the list Tuesday there was widespread disappointment, for many believed the rails, which had participated in no major advances, could not sell lower. It is noticeable, though, that stocks of this class were among the first and fastest on the recovery. In other words, stocks of real worth, whose prices are based on their earnings, will always gravitate toward their proper values.

Behind the Rally

Every time a rally appears in the stock market, there is raised the cry of "investment trust buying." Managers of investment trusts are paid large salaries for their market sense and judgment, and such men are wise enough to buy when prices are declining rather than on the upswing. Well-informed authorities say there was little or no investment trust buying yesterday. It is hinted strongly that the banking support pool, "The Big Six," was buying again.

Bank Merger Halted

None but the most nervous traders were influenced by the news that merger of National City Bank with Corn Exchange Bank and Trust Company had been held up by the decline in value of the latter institution's stock. Postponement of the consolidation is an effect of the market decline. There is no reason for it to become the cause of another reaction.

The Margin Situation

In the light of events this week, the suggestion is heard in many quarters that the reduction in margin requirements by leading brokers came too soon. If stricter requirements had been kept in force, some of this week's forced selling would have been unnecessary.

Regular Hartman Dividend Ordered

Directors of the Hartman Corporation today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the class B stock, payable December 1 to stockholders of record November 17, and the regular quarterly dividend on the "E" stock of 50 cents, payable on the same date to stockholders of record of the same date.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Weep, You Racketeers!

$5,000,000 Gold, Unprotected

(Copyright, 1929)

THE Bank of England sent $5,000,000 worth of gold in bars to Paris by airplane, without any special guard.

That is enough to bring tears to the eyes of our best racketeer citizens.

Nobody here would DREAM of turning $5,000,000 loose in the air, unprotected.

The news would spread, our energetic racketeers would "hop" a swift flying machine and that gold would not reach its normal destination.

To move gold in the American way you get a wagon made of riveted steel, with little slots for pistol fire from within, the windows protected with bullet-proof glass.

You have a driver and his companion, armed to the teeth. And you have two or three well armed men inside the bullet-proof vehicle. Even then you lose the money sometimes, when the driver goes away with the wagon.

We HAVE prohibition. And we have crime, racketeering, wholesale robbery and murder on a scale undreamed of before. How do you explain it?

Protect Your Credit

It Pays

(Copyright, 1929)

IT PAYS to keep your credit good.

Mr. D. R. Forgan, dean of Chicago bankers, says, referring to the fact that Great Britain has arranged settlement of her debt with the United States, and referring to French hesitancy, says: "If England went to war tomorrow, she could borrow as much money as she wanted. France could not raise a dollar."

France, of course, COULD raise many billions of dollars on the credit of her people. She would redeem HER own BONDS. And ten billions or twenty billions could easily be raised on French properties.

Also friendship for France is by no means dead in the United States.

But IT DOES PAY TO KEEP YOUR CREDIT GOOD.

Nebular Hypothesis

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

UNTIL recent times the layman thought of science as a body of perfect and immutable laws, and regarded the scientist as a sort of wizard. There was reason indeed for such a childlike and simple faith.

Omne ignotum pro magnifico—we all tend to hold in high regard and esteem the profound subjects which we ourselves cannot mentally grasp. The true ground for the reverential attitude toward science is that from the earliest day science succeeded in supplying an orderly explanation of phenomena.

"Our intellectual ancestors," says Moulton, joint author with Chamberlin of the famous planetesimal hypothesis, "in the valleys of the Euphrates and the Nile and on the hills of Greece looked up into the sky at night and saw order there and not chaos. By painstaking observations and calculations, they discovered the relatively simple laws of the motions of the heavenly bodies, whose invariable and exact fulfilment led to the belief that the whole universe in all its parts is orderly and that science is possible."

One of the most forward steps in the history of science as a whole is the astronomical work of Laplace, embodied in his Mecanique Celeste. He set for himself the monumental task of offering a complete solution of the mechanical problems of the solar system, and thus to explain the origin, evolution and continuity of the universe.

Today we have made rapid strides in the studies of the heavenly bodies. Our massive telescopes bring celestial objects many times closer than they were in the time of Laplace.

New laws, new formulae, new theories have raised doubts as to the mightiest achievement of Laplace, the nebular hypothesis. It was a fertile and ingenious theory of the orderly processes of nature in the interstellar spaces.

But, after all, it was a hypothesis—grand, dignified, august though it undoubtedly was. Laplace took account of certain orderly relations between the planets. All the planets travel about the same direction and almost in the same plane.

Further, the satellites also travel about their planets in this same direction and almost in the same plane. Finally, sun, planets and satellites revolve in the same sense about their own axes and this rotation is approximately in the orbital plane.

An explanation was put forward by Laplace to account for remarkable and orderly relations. He assumed the existence of an original vast nebulous mass extending from the sun even beyond the furthest planet.

Gradual cooling and contraction of the nebulous mass set up or accelerated a certain rotation of the nebula, and gradually rings of matter, under centrifugal force were thrown off. Out of these rings were formed masses of condensed matter called planets, and they in turn threw off their own satellites. It is easy to understand and as simple in conception as the account of the creation and origin of the earth in Genesis.

American scientists have caused a mighty discussion, echoes of which are heard all around us. Chamberlin and Moulton have not disproved the nebular hypothesis; but they have found so much evidence adverse to it as to cause them to abandon it.

The nebular hypothesis cannot be harmonized with the history of the earth and with the known dynamics of the solar system.

Making the Pig Squeal

By NELSON HARDING

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

A month ago we were as happy as a bookworm in a library. Had one share of laughing stock and we could hear the dividends sizzling and sputtering in the pan.

Our broker was an affable maniac who knew the racket backward. The last time we were seen alive was when a traffic cop saw us headed toward the North river. And we didn't stop on the way to take swimming lessons.

The next share of stock we buy will be waterproofed so that we can cry on it and allow for evaporation in transit.

Then they join hands and do a dance of all nations around a pump that has been dry for years.

They must know what they're doing. But we would just as soon take advice from a man wearing a paper hat.

The nebular hypothesis cannot be harmonized with the history of the earth and with the known dynamics of the solar system.

The nation will continue to be prosperous until we get enough money to buy another share of gild-edged linoleum. Then our broker will hear about it and words of honey will drip from his hive.

We will buy another share, which will bring us into direct competition with J. P. Morgan, who will polish up his slumping tools and start chiseling.

We would do much better in the street if all money didn't have so many echoes. We are so scared now that we won't even read a book that has margins on the pages.

We know the country is going to be prosperous again and that everybody will have money and be happy. But when that happens our financial rating will be that of a spy.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

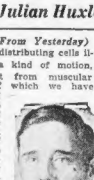
THE next distributing cells illustrate a kind of motion, very different from muscular movement, of which we have said nothing hitherto; each cell has, rising from its free surface, a number of fine, whiplike projections — cilia — by whose continual lashing it keeps in motion the fluid layer covering it. Air, as it enters the nose, leaves its coarser particles of dust entangled by the hairs in our nostrils.



H. G. Wells

In fresh country air the amount of dust is small and practically none of it gets through this protective labyrinth into the lungs. In towns, on the other hand, the air carries soot and various other concentrations, and the alveoli of town dwellers are usually definitely grubby.

In the first place, air is cold, but as it filters through the warm channels of the nose the chill of cool air is taken off and it reaches the alveoli at a more comfortable temperature. More important than heat is the question of water loss. The alveolar walls are moist and their moisture plays an essential part in the exchange of gases between air and blood. A continuous draught of ordinary room air would rapidly dry up the delicate alveoli by evaporating their water. But the lining of the nasal cavities is also moist and air is saturated with water vapor as it passes through the nose; thus in the alveoli it takes up very little.

It is curious to note in passing a system of air spaces running into the bones of the face and communicating with the nasal cavity by means of small openings.

Apparently the purpose of these spaces is to lighten the architecture of the skull. Sometimes they may be invaded by bacteria through the openings into the nose, or, in the case of the large sinus in the upper jaw, from the root of a bad tooth, and inflammatory conditions may set in.

Oxygen from the air reaches the blood in a state of diffusion. It is dissolved in the plasma. But the amount the plasma can carry in a state of solution is not be enough for the [illegible] production of a mammal. And here it is that the [illegible]ance of the red blood corpuscles comes in. They are specialized oxygen-carriers. The haemoglobin, the red substance coloring the red blood-cells, combines chemically with oxygen and so increases enormously the amount of oxygen that any given volume of blood can carry. The oxygen diffuses through into the plasma and the red corpuscles pick it up.

As has already been said, it is to haemoglobin that blood owes its color. The color of oxygen-free haemoglobin differs from that of the haemoglobin-oxygen compound; the former is purple, the latter scarlet. This is why arterial blood is red while venous blood is purplish-blue.

Let us note the structure of the cells involved in this respiratory exchange. The processes are very simple. The cells of the alveolar walls and the red cells of the blood do not perform complex and varied functions; they do not contract and relax, or secrete digestive juices, or transmit nervous impulses. Their duties involve no energy-consuming processes at all; the cells are merely water-containing structures through which dissolved gases diffuse.

We find corresponding to this simplicity of function an extreme simplicity of structure. A human red-cell is little more than a minute bag containing haemoglobin, and so shaped that it has a very large surface.

A lining-cell of our lungs is little more than a thin, flat plate. They are the extreme of cell simplicity in our bodies.

SECTION 6—KIDNEY AND OTHER EXHAUST ORGANS

THE next round in our itinerary of the immensely complicated aggregation of living cell-mechanisms which constitute a human being must be the organs that get rid of the exhaust products of billions of these internal combustion engines. And which also get rid of the waste matters resulting from their wear and tear.

The substances constituting the former class are two: water and carbon dioxide.

The members of the second class are more numerous; the most important is ammonia, but there are also other substances, such as uric acid, creatinine, and sulphuric acid, containing nitrogen, phosphorus, sulphur, and other elements in various forms.

These substances are shed into the blood in small amounts only and (with the exception of ammonia) their presence does not constitute any immediate danger to the living body.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

My Daughter, consider the damsel of 1929; for her perplexities are many and her problems are great. And all the ways of a man are confusing unto her. Also, she knoweth not whether to turn backward or go forward!

Behold, she knoweth not whether to continue to shear her locks and be independent—or to let them grow long and "go feminine." She is uncertain whether to adorn herself in trailing skirts and be seductive—or to cling unto short skirts and be youthful and comfortable.

She feareth to let a man kiss her, lest he put her down in "Class C" with the cheap ones and the easily-loved-and-forgotten.

Yet, she trembleth to refuse his kisses, lest he write her down "flat-tire" and classify her among the antiques and the joy-killers and the prudes.

She knoweth not whether to appear sophisticated and cynical, lest she frighten men to death—or to appear simple and sentimental, and perseverture bore them to death.

She hesitateth to marry and relinquish her freedom to become only "Somebody's Rib." Yet, she feareth to stay single, lest when her years are full and her child double, she may be "Nobody's Darling."

She knoweth not whether to take men seriously and thereby risk disillusionment and heartaches—or to take them lightly and thereby miss love's thrills, and in time become "hard-boiled."

For the men of today are not as the men of yesterday, who were easily handled, easily put off and woman-trained.

Nay, the men of today have become "wise to women" and they are exceedingly altar-shy!

No longer will they pursue a damsel; yet, if she pursueth them, they are sickened and make haste to escape. No longer do they offer a woman tenderness and devotion, yet, if she falleth not for their casual love-making, they are aggrieved and reproachful and soon depart.

Go to. The woman of yesterday may have known herself to be a man's slave and his chattel; but the damsel of today knoweth not whether she is a man's SUPERIOR or only his amusement! And her new "freedom" is as a loose tooth, which hath reached the middle of a crossing, when the lights change suddenly, and knoweth not whether to proceed or to BACK UP! SELAH.

Not Exactly Intellectual

But He Makes Money Rapidly

(Copyright, 1929)

THIS IS ELIGIO SARDINIAS, CUBAN-BORN NEGRO PRIZE FIGHTER

He likes to have a great many suits of clothes, and can buy them. He likes them loud, changes them often, weighs only 121 pounds when he fights.

He has never in his life LOST a fight, and has not bothered to learn to speak English. Why should he? His fists speak a language that makes English unnecessary, even in New York. Everybody seems to understand his thick roll of dollars.

Thousands of white men pay big prices for seats to see this small, savagely active boy fight, and defeat some white boy. He ALWAYS wins.

But, as you have heard occasionally, while he could beat many white young men twice his weight, a sixty-pound orang utang from his native Africa could tear him apart.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Thoughts while strolling: What's become of collectors of birds' eggs? Slick Broadway boys who try to look like yokels. Walter Chrysler admiring the skyscraper named for him on 42d st. Who remembers when plasterers went to work in street cars?

Luncheon crowds oozing out of skyscrapers like human lava. Francis Hackett, a Kilkenny, Ireland, boy who made good in the city. Delicatessen sign: "Take home a complete dinner—from soup to nuts." The 38th at. bootblack who wears a heavy black eyeglass ribbon.

Sporty young men who live off their actress sisters. Waggish magic chop announces: "Parachutes for pent house parties." The fellow who doubles for Flo Ziegfeld in the movies. Several new apartment houses stressing the California-Spanish architecture. Arch Selwyn's cigar.

Gerbert Bayard Swope going cross town — buckity, buckity! Moochers who hang around speakeasy entrances. And gin guzzling flappers known as Babe or Billie. The cellar cafes chantant with Russian cuisine—run by Italians. And with the quiescent gloom of a tomb.

Debutantes with snubby noses, generous mouths and freckles. And fearful they will not be noticed. Gigolos who wear platinum chains cater-cornered across their vests. Fannie Hurst and her husband strolling arm in arm. The "dew is still on the rose." Noel Coward's pink muffler.

The legend of Fannie Hurst and her husband being domiciled in far away apartments was long ago exploded. Yet so fixed did it become in public thought that people seem surprised when they appear in public together. They are a devoted couple, rarely separated save when he goes on concert tours, and are seen frequently in little restaurants off the beaten path—as moon-struck as two youthful lovers.

The new Waldorf Astoria Hotel rising on Park ave. in the Forties has proven a great magnet for passersby. Because of its traditions, the rapidly mounting structure has inspired more newspaper comment than almost any building since the Woolworth flared up to the skies.

One of the features of the new inn will be a motor entrance tunnel. This will permit patrons to step from their motors to elevators without passing through foyers. Only those who have to endure the long waits to reach hotel motor entrances on the street can appreciate this innovation.

There is keen speculation, too, as to whether the famous Oscar is to be a member of the managerial staff. Oscar is a perpetual fount of newspaper copy. Ruddy-cheeked, moon-faced and with a port-winey mellowness, he might have stepped from one of those English prints of a Mine Host greeting an arriving coach. Oscar refused to remain parked at a glass-topped desk after his rise from the scullery. He paid personal visits to every department daily.

An auto with a lighted cross attached to its hood has been racing up and down Broadway late at night recently. It has nothing else to indicate its significance.
